CUTLERY PUT UP TO 445%

DYE RATES CALLED EMBARGO

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—With the final vote on the tariff bill less than forty-eight hours away, the Senate was in session tonight feverishly working to get the scores of pending individual amendments out of the way. The bill will go from the Committee of the Whole into the Senate proper at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, and at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon the roll-call on its passage will be ordered.

The tension under which the Senate is ending the four-months-long battle becomes more evident with every hour. Opponents of the bill take advantage of every opening to taunt the Finance Committee with railroading the enactment of the highest tariff bill in the history of the United States. Several times today Senator Underwood charged that the bill was not a measure framed to raise revenue for the Treasury but one to continue into peacetime the wartime profits of favored interests—a charge that brought a bitter protest from Chairman McCumber.

It is also evident as the end draws near that the Administration leaders have their forces under better control than at any time since the bill was reported to the Senate last April. The insurgent group in the majority ranks is still active, but roll-call after roll-call today developed that it is practically powerless in the face of the well-oiled "steam roller" that is operating under the command of Senators McCumber, Watson, Smoot and Lodge.

Fight Over Cutlery Rates.

The hardest battle today was fought around three amendments proposed by Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin, intended to reduce the duties imposed on cutlery of all kinds. In some instances the duties, Senator Lenroot pointed out, run as high as 445 per cent., and there are other instances, Senator Underwood declared, where the protection provided in the pending bill is more than twice the American wholesale price of the cutlery against which the tax is levied.

The first Lenroot amendment provided that the maximum duty on table, butcher, kitchen, bread, cake, butter, carpenters' bench, tanners', plumbers' and other knives used by housewives, tradesmen, bakers, &c., should in no instance exceed 60 per cent. ad valorem.

The rates carried in the bill range all the way from 118 to 225 per cent., and these taxes, the Wisconsin insurgent warned his Republican colleagues, will be paid by every household in America.

The amendment was defeated, 33 to 28, the Republicans who stood with Mr. Lenroot being Borah, Capper, Cummins, Kellogg, McCormick, Norbeck and Sterling.

The second Lenroot amendment, which brought on a heated exchange between Senator Lenroot, who pleaded for lower duties, and Senators Gooding and Stanfield in opposition, would have fixed the maximum ad valorem equivalents in the scissors and shears paragraph at 100 per cent. Under the committee amendments these vary, Senator Lenroot pointed out, from 103 to 445 per cent.

Willing to Levy 4,000 Per Cent.

Senators Gooding and Stanfield led the successful fight for the retention of the higher rates. In reply to a question by Senator Lenroot, the Idaho Senator said he could visualize duties as high as 2,000 per cent. that he would support, while Mr. Stanfield declared it would be possible for him to support a duty as high as 4,000 per cent.

"I have no hope of the amendment being adopted," said Mr. Lenroot, "in view of the defeat of the amendment just offered, but I am going to ask a vote on each of the propositions so the American people may know just how Senators stand on the rates being proposed."

"Is 100 per cent. a protective rate?" asked Senator Gooding. "I want to know that before I go on record."

"Oh, I know the Senator from Idaho is willing to vote for a rate of a thousand per cent. The duty is entirely immaterial to him," replied Senator Lenroot.

"Yes, if the industry needs 1,000 per cent. protection. I have made that clear," retorted Senator Gooding.

"Well, we might raise tea in North Carolina if we put a rate of duty of about 5,000 per cent. on that article," said Senator Lenroot, "and under the policy of the Idaho Senator, he would vote for the 5,000 per cent. duty."

"I have never been accused of being foolish," Senator Gooding declared, and then he added that he realized that "tea plants and rubber trees will not grow in the United States." Because of this, he said, he would oppose a duty to protect the tea-growing and rubber tree industries in this country.

"I have made my position clear," said Senator Gooding, "and when I get

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 17.—Owing to the excessive politeness of all present, the King of Spain acquired yesterday for 2,000 francs a horse he didn't want to buy at the sale of Prince Murat's yearlings at Deauville.

The King, who is visiting the famous resort incognito as the Duke of Toledo, wishing to give a mark of esteem to Prince Murat, attended the sale of the latter's yearlings. Having no desire actually to buy a horse, the King merely opened the proceedings with a nominal offer of 2,000 francs for a horse called Ogresse. But he had not reckoned with the respect for etiquette of all others present. The King having bid, nobody else liked to go any better, the result being that Ogresse was knocked down to him for practically nothing.

UNCLE SAM STARTS WAR ON HIP FLASKS

Federal dry agents started out at midnight last night to ban hip pocket flasks from New York. Led by E. C. Yellowley, chief of the general agents, the prohibition men began by serving notice on some of the most fashionable and frequented resorts along Broadway that no longer could patrons "tote their own," except at peril of the law.

Not only are managers of such places to be held responsible if they do not force diners and dancers to obey the law and abstain from tippling, but patrol wagons are to be backed up to the doors of some of the most famous play places in the metropolis and flask users are to be hauled out unceremoniously, according to the threat laid down last night.

The officials were somewhat hampered in spreading their warning last night because of the recent edict that dancing in places in the precinct governed from the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station shall cease at 1 o'clock in the morning instead of 2. They announced, however, that within forty-eight hours news of the pocket flask ban would have been conveyed to every restaurant, cabaret and dancing place in New York and to every roadhouse in its environs. Just how soon after that active war on flask toters would open they would not tell.

The police acted hard on the heels of the Government men. Hardly had the Federal band quit the Little Club, one of the better known places on its list, when detectives attached to Inspector Bolan's staff entered there with a search warrant. The detectives said they found two pints of whisky and a pint of gin. So while the diners looked on, they led out and locked up the manager.

Dr. R. O. Matthews, Assistant Federal Prohibition Commissioner, came from Washington expressly to inaugurate a new era of ultra-dryness. Thirty minutes after he had alighted from his train at the Pennsylvania Station he had climbed into an automobile with his lieutenants and started on a tour that was to spread consternation and dismay along Broadway and the brightly lighted side streets. Accompanying him were Yellowley, Ralph A. Day, in charge of Federal enforcement in this State, John S. Parsons, Chief Federal Enforcement Agent for New York State, and John D. Appleby, zone chief of the Government forces for New York and New Jersey.

The party sped uptown bent, so it appeared from their behavior at the outset, not on laying heavy hands upon any particular individual lawbreaker, but rather upon spreading an unequivocal warning in those places where gayety and revelry have persisted even to this day, despite national and State decrees that no more shall the night's amusement (or the early morning's) by spurred by alcoholic stimulation.

First Stop at Montmartre.

The first stop was made at Montmartre, one of the more fashionable places in the upper Broadway region. The party was halted at the door by a guardian of the portal, who informed them that they would not be welcomed within unless they were escorting wo-

MURPHY AND KOENIG LINKED IN DEAL TO KILL OFF COHALAN

Surrogate's Friends Say Republicans Dropped Him in Trade for Judge Koenig.

LEADERS DENY THE CHARGE

BITTER QUARREL DISCLOSED

Cohalan Urged to Make an Independent Fight—Supporters to Hold Conference.

Charges that a deal had been entered into between Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, and Republican County Committee leaders whereby Murphy agreed to indorse Morris Koenig, brother of Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, for the nomination for Judge of General Sessions in return for which action the Republican leaders agreed not to indorse Surrogate John P. Cohalan for renomination, were made yesterday by friends of Mr. Cohalan who accounted in this way for the turning down of the Surrogate by the Tammany Executive Committee.

When friends of Mr. Cohalan recovered yesterday from their surprise at Murphy's action in refusing a renomination to the Surrogate and handing it instead to Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien they sought for a cause and found it in the fact that Cohalan and Murphy have not been friendly for the past nine years and that Murphy had once in a fit of anger served notice upon Cohalan that he would not renominate him. To keep the Republicans from doing so, Murphy, so the story goes, agreed to indorse Mr. Koenig.

Republican leaders emphatically denied that a deal of any kind had been made, and friends of Mr. Murphy explained the chief's action as based upon the Irish situation, in that Surrogate Cohalan is a brother of Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, a radical Irish supporter.

Cohalan's Friends Denounce Murphy.

A political scandal of the first magnitude is predicted as a result of the episode. All day yesterday a stream of visitors clowed in upon Surrogate Cohalan. They denounced Murphy's action unreservedly and offered all the help in their power to their friend. They urged Mr. Cohalan to make a fight in both the Republican and Democratic primaries, and offered to form a non-partisan committee to take care of his campaign. Mr. Cohalan would not commit himself to his friends, and to reporters he said he had no statement to make. He intimated he might have something to say later.

Cohalan has a large following, especially among lawyers, regardless of party. He has been endorsed by the Bar Association and the New York County Lawyers' Association, which made his rejection both by Tammany and the Republicans all the more inexplicable. If Mr. Cohalan should run on a non-partisan ticket it was freely predicted that he would poll a large vote, and, although he might not beat Mr. O'Brien, the Tammany candidate, he would have no difficulty in defeating the Republican candidate, Frank J. Coleman Jr.

A situation would arise, it was predicted, similar to that of Justice Joseph G. Newburger, who was turned down for a renomination by Tammany four years ago and taken up by the Republicans, and that of Judge Talley, who was refused a renomination by Tammany last year but was later put back on the ticket.

The Murphy-Cohalan Feud.

Friends of Surrogate Cohalan recalled yesterday the incident of his break with Murphy nine years ago, the details of which have never been made public. In 1911, when John A. Dix was Governor, Mr. Cohalan, then a State Senator, prepared a bill which would take the work of the Franchise Tax Appraiser out of the hands of the State Controller. State Controller Sohmer, a Tammany man, opposed the bill, and so did Murphy, but it was passed and was promptly vetoed by Governor Dix.

Two years later, when Mr. Cohalan had recovered from an illness, the bill was again introduced. Sulzer was then

Girl Near Death in Tank Blast; Wreckage Blown Into Homes

Several persons had narrow escapes from injury yesterday when a big air compressor exploded on the Boston Post Road at Pelham Manor, hurling big chunks of iron through several houses and an office building. A piece of the tank crashed through the roof and window of the real estate office of Prince & Ripley and a young woman at a desk escaped death by a few inches.

HEARST LINES SMITH WITH CONSERVATIVES

BUT WOULD RUN WITH HYLAN

Will Not Commit Himself at Present to Support Smith if Nominated.

William R. Hearst in an interview yesterday classed Alfred E. Smith as a reactionary and himself as a progressive, and again put forward Mayor Hylan as his type of an ideal candidate for Governor. While spurning Mr. Smith as a possible running mate for Governor, with himself a candidate for the United States Senate, Mr. Hearst announced his willingness to run for the Senate on a Hylan ticket.

In the meantime Mr. Smith's announcement that he would consent again to lead the Democratic Party as its candidate for Governor brought forth enthusiastic response from Democrats both in the city and up-State. Plans for Mr. Smith to make a tour of the State and fight the Hearst propaganda were made by Smith supporters. Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, made his own plans for a fight to the finish with Hearst. Murphy's plans take into consideration a war with Mayor Hylan, but he has hopes that the Mayor will either remain neutral or support the Democratic ticket.

"While I am not a candidate," said Mr. Hearst in response to questions put by reporters, "I have been mentioned as one; therefore I prefer to make no comment upon Mr. Smith's announcement of his candidacy for the Governorship other than to say that it is a very dignified and a very definite expression of his willingness to assume the leadership of the party in the State.

Ranks Smith With Conservatives.

"Mr. Smith is doubtless as well fitted as any man in the State to lead the Democratic Party, if it is to be a conservative party and dispute with the Republican Party the support of the great interests which are now behind Governor Miller.

"I am a progressive, however, and, without any disparagement to Mr. Smith, I believe it is the highest duty as well as the best policy of the Democratic Party to make its appeal to the masses of the people rather than to the privileged interests. For this reason my support is very earnestly given to Mayor Hylan. He has aligned himself with the citizenship generally and defended the citizenship from the exploitation of the profiteering interests.

"His record of faithful service to the public seems to me to give him the first claim upon the Governorship and the State leadership. The permanent success of the Democratic Party seems to me to lie entirely in the line of faithful service to the public.

"Considering the matter merely from a narrow standpoint of politics and party strategy, the Democratic Party cannot make a stronger appeal to the privileged interests than the Republican Party makes. Nor can any nominee offer promise of more abject service to those interests than Mr. Miller has already given.

"Therefore, should the Democratic Party assume to sit at the table of plutocracy, it would merely be a Lazarus at the feast, securing nothing but the crumbs which fall from the table of Dives. While if the party become the champions of the people in the contest of the exploited public against the exploiting profiteers, it may have, and I think certainly will have, the grateful support of the people for many years to come, and may sit proudly at the head of its own political table, and not occupy the humiliating position of a beggar at the Republican Party's board.

Hearst Advises the Party.

"I always remember the saying of that splendid old Democrat, Samuel J. Tilden, Governor of New York and leader of the Democratic Party in the days of its greatest glory. He said: 'The Democratic Party will always succeed when it has the courage to be Democratic.' That means when it has the courage to serve the people and not the interests and when it has the courage to nominate men who have served the people and not served the interests.

"I propose Mayor Hylan as the best example of that kind of public man and that kind of public service in the State of New York today.

"You ask me in the event of the nomination of Alfred E. Smith for Governor by the Democratic State convention, will I support him?

"When Mr. Smith was contemplating running for Governor in 1918 he called upon me and asked me if I would support him if nominated. I told him I would support the nominee of the convention, and is the nominee were himself I would support him.

"He went out with this promise of mine sincerely given. He secured the nomination. I supported him, and he was elected by 15,000 votes. I flatter myself that my papers, with their million of circulation, contributed at least 15,000 votes. Mr. Smith has not asked

SENIORITY DIVIDES RAIL CONFERENCE; STILL HOPE FOR A PEACE BASIS TODAY; HARDING WILL ASK FOR NEW LEGISLATION

APPEAL TO CONGRESS TODAY

TO INSURE RAIL TRANSPORT

Legislation to Prevent Coal Profiteering Is Also Likely to Be Asked.

MAY FOLLOW CANADIAN ACT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—President Harding will appear tomorrow before the Senate and the House assembled in joint session and deliver his address on the dangers confronting the country on account of the railroad and coal strikes. The preparation of the address in manuscript was completed this afternoon and sent to the Government Printing Office. It was learned this evening that the address would contain recommendations for legislation.

The President decided this morning that he would not address Congress today, as he had first intended when he reached the determination to lay the strike situation before the Senate and House in narrative form. In taking this course he was actuated by a desire to avoid doing anything which might tend to embarrass the railroad executives and the heads of the railway brotherhoods in the attempt to adjust the strike at the series of conferences begun in New York this afternoon. He indicated, however, that in taking this action he would defer his appearance before Congress for a day or two only.

Late this afternoon, after a long conference with Mr. Weeks, the Secretary of War, it was made known at the White House that the President would address Congress tomorrow.

The statement made this evening that the President's address would contain recommendations of legislation with reference to strikes caused surprise. It was the understanding that, while the President would suggest legislative remedies to deal more effectively with the situation produced by the protracted strike of coal miners, he would confine his statement in regard to the railway strike to a review of the menace to the country's welfare through the hampering of rail transportation.

Wants Railway Act Amended.

At the same time the President has indicated all along that he believed the Esch-Cummins Transportation act should be amended, at least to the extent of providing that the Railway Labor Board created by the act should have its headquarters in Washington instead of Chicago. The President has expressed the opinion that in order to accomplish the purposes for which the wage board was created it was essential that its members should be in close touch with the Interstate Commerce Commission and other Government officials dealing with railroads.

Whether the President will go beyond this in his recommendation of Congressional legislation has not appeared. He has felt that the wage board would be more effective if it had broader authority, although he has said nothing to indicate that he favored investing it with power to make its decrees compulsory.

Under the Transportation act the wage board has no power to enforce its rulings as to wages and the regulation of employment in railway establishments. All it can do is to hear both sides and ask them to accept its rulings.

In the President's opinion the voice of the wage board is the voice of the Government, and a moral obligation rests upon both railroad companies and their employes to accept its decisions.

Gov. Miller to Call Legislature Aug. 28; Sees Coal Shortage In State Despite Settlement

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 17.—Governor Miller said tonight that he would call the Legislature in extraordinary session for Aug. 28 to consider means to relieve the coal shortage in this State. The proclamation is to be issued tomorrow. He considered that even if the coal strike was settled at once, five months' production had been lost and this would mean that a shortage would still exist and an extra session be necessary.

The Governor said he would have a very definite program for the legislators. There was no need for alarm over the situation, but measures to prevent profiteering in coal would be taken in the interest of the people of the State. He intimated that the Legislature would be asked to fix a price for which coal could be delivered.

The Governor will ask the Legislature to clothe a fuel administrator with the necessary power to enforce all orders which the Government issues. The co-operation of the Mayors of various cities of the State will be asked.

Everything will be ready for the legislators when they reach Albany. The bill will be presented after the Governor's special message is read. The Governor said he did not know whether more than one day's session would be required.

The Governor said:

"There is anthracite coal to distribute at the moment only in very limited quantities. I am satisfied, from the survey we have made, that it will be necessary to have some administration of the distribution and price of anthracite coal this Winter, not that there is any occasion for any one to be alarmed, but we have practically lost five months of production, and what coal we do get from now on, if mining should be resumed, must be made to go just as far as possible. Without some power to control the situation, there would be at least a sufficient shortage so that the people who can pay the most would be the most likely to get the coal. While the emergency is not great enough to excite alarm, it is great enough to require some action by the State to protect the people, and at best we shall have to be very economical, and wherever it is practical to reduce the consumption of anthracite coal and to use substitutes. We undoubtedly will have to conserve all of the fuel that we have got."

MORE OPERATORS IN LINE

Union in Pittsburgh District Reports 12,000 More Miners Will Return to Work.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17.—Optimism prevailed tonight among the leaders of the miners and the operators directly interested in the anthracite coal situation at the end of the first session of the joint conference which is expected to result in an early settlement of the strike and send 155,000 men, idle since April 1, back to work. The operators have announced that they could return at the old wage scale.

In a joint statement given out after the conference had adjourned until tomorrow, President Lewis of the United Mine Workers, who headed the miners' delegation, and Samuel D. Warriner, spokesman for the operators, said there apparently was a "sincere determination" on both sides to reach an adjustment, "if at all possible," but that it was necessary that the union officials and the operators hold conferences between themselves before further progress could be made toward an agreement.

Both Sides Expect Peace.

At the end of the meeting Mr. Warriner and Mr. Lewis appeared enthusiastic over the prospect of peace. Neither, however, would say what their intentions were, but they indicated that they were anxious to get their respective sides to agree so as to be able to go into tomorrow's conference with a definite program. Persons in close touch with the situation predicted that an agreement would be negotiated not later than Saturday and that the men would be back in the mines a week or ten days later.

Lewis's associates in the negotiations were Thomas Kennedy, C. J. Golden and William J. Brennan, district presidents of the anthracite field with headquarters, respectively, at Hazelton, Sha-

$1,242,000 FOR COAL VOTED BY ALDERMEN

Charter Revision Asked to Raise Special Revenue Bond Issue to $6,000,000.

MAY SELL AT COST TO POOR

Appropriations amounting to $1,242,000 were authorized yesterday by the Board of Aldermen to make purchases of coal during the present emergency. The appropriations were made with the understanding that city departments could go into the open market and buy their supplies without public letting.

The board was asked to appropriate $500,000 to buy coal for distribution at cost among the needy. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Rules and Finance. Another resolution, adopted without opposition, directs that Governor Miller be requested to ask the Legislature to amend the charter so that the yearly issue of special revenue bonds may be increased from $2,000,000 to $5,000,000.

Other developments in the coal crisis included a warning from the State Coal Commission to the electric light companies that they will be granted no priority unless they bring a halt to the waste of electric current, which means coal, in electric illuminated signs for advertising purposes; the receipt of reports from other cities of the State showing alarming shortages of coal, and an appeal by County Judge J. Grattan McMahon, in Brooklyn, to the Grand Jury and to public officials generally to take immediate steps to guard against suffering from shortage of fuel.

Whalen Explains City's Needs.

The resolution authorizing city departments to purchase coal without public letting was based on a request from Commissioner Grover A. Whalen, as Chairman of the Board of Purchase, for an appropriation of $300,000 to buy coal in the open market. In his letter to the Aldermen Mr. Whalen said:

"It has been impossible to obtain bids on contracts for coal for the different city departments. The reason for this is that owing to the present coal situation the coal dealers cannot put themselves under contract obligations, as they cannot be assured in any way that they will be able to make future deliveries.

"It may be possible to buy lots of coal which become available through different sources from time to time. It is absolutely necessary that coal be obtained for the operation of the ferries, the pumping of water supply, hospitals and various other city institutions.

"We therefore request that your honorable board grant permission to the Board of Purchase to buy coal in the open market in an amount not to exceed $300,000."

At the request of Commissioner Whalen the Board of Aldermen adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That in pursuance of the provisions of Section 419 of the Greater New York Charter, the Board of Purchase be and it hereby is authorized and empowered to purchase coal without public letting, for the Departments of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, Correction, Docks, Fire, Health, Police, Parks, Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, Plant and Structures, Public Welfare and Street Cleaning, and to expend such additional sums as may be necessary for its inspection, transportation, towing,

SEE END OF SHOP STRIKE

UNIONS DENY COERCION

Jewell of Shopmen Says Car Shortage Will Provide Work for All.

LABOR BOARD RULINGS CITED

Executives at Meeting Send for Decisions Upholding Stand for Loyal and New Workers.

The conference between railroad executives and chiefs of the five train service brotherhoods begun here yesterday in an effort to effect a settlement of the nation-wide shopmen's strike adjourned late in the afternoon until today without reaching any definite conclusion.

Neither the executives nor the union leaders would discuss the issues involved in the controversy, but it was learned that the question of restoring seniority rights to strikers continued to be the main stumbling block to peace. Both sides, however, apeared optimistic over the prospect of an agreement today.

The only information given out as to what took place in the conference, held at the offices of the Association of Railway Executives, 61 Broadway, was contained in the following statement issued by Thomas DeWitt Cuyler, Chairman of the association:

"A conference was held this afternoon between a committee of the carriers and heads of the five train service organizations, who wished it to be distinctly understood that they appeared as mediators on their own motion. A discussion of the present railroad situation, so far as it relates to the shop crafts strike, took place. The questions involved were discussed with the honest desire to arrive at a solution of the problem if possible. No definite conclusion was arrived at, and the conference adjourned until tomorrow morning."

Nothing Accomplished, Men Say.

The brotherhood committee met H. M. Jewell of the striking shopmen at the Hotel Woodstock last night and made a report of what had happened at the executive conferences during the day. It was learned they reported that nothing had been accomplished. They are going into conference today, however, still hopeful of being able to break in their favor the deadlock on the question of seniority rights. After conferring with Mr. Jewell the committee went into conference with heads of the other organizations, including the leaders of non-striking railroad unions. The conference lasted until long after midnight.

Mr. Jewell, who is President of the Railway Employes Department of the American Federation of Labor, and who arrived here at the head of a delegation of executives of the striking shop crafts unions and non-striking railroad organizations, did not participate in the conference, the negotiations being entirely in the hands of a committee of a group of leaders representing the engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen and switchmen, which was headed by Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Officials of the shop crafts unions on strike and of the other railroad unions outside of the five brotherhoods not on strike are holding themselves in readiness for any conference which the brotherhood conference committee may desire in connection with the progress of their efforts to mediate the strike, Mr. Jewell explained. He declined to make any prediction as to the outcome of the negotiations or to comment specifically on the proposals which were discussed at the conference. His position is that the case of the shopmen is now wholly in the hands of the brotherhood conference committee.

"The officers of the railroad labor organizations are now here continuing as they have throughout the strike," said Mr. Jewell, "to do everything possible to bring about an honorable settlement."

Sees Coal Situation as Factor.

In a formal statement Mr. Jewell asserted that the settlement of the coal strike would "to a large degree determine the settlement of the railroad strike," adding:

"The resumption of coal mining and the vastly increased demand for coal resulting in depleted stocks will force the railroads to move more coal in the next few weeks than ever before in history. This means a record breaking demand for cars. In the face of this demand there is at the present time a record breaking shortage of good order equipment. The railroads will be required by urgent necessity to repair their coal cars in the shortest possible time."

Members of the Conference Committee of railway executives headed by Chairman Cuyler declined to discuss the conference. The conference was preceded by luncheon of the executives at the Recess Club, where a preliminary discussion took place. Before joining the union chiefs the executives declared that they had no inkling of any proposed plan of settlement.

The executives were the first to reach

Special to The New York Times.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Aug. 17.—Warden George T. Jameson of the South Dakota Penitentiary, was captured today by four prisoners who took him with them in making their escape. They left him in a church near Crooks, with his hands and feet bound and went on. He was able to loosen the ropes after a time and report his safety to the penitentiary.

The four who escaped, Joseph Teel, Joseph Forman, J. B. King and Henry Coffee, a negro, started a fight with the Deputy Warden in the tailor shop of the prison. Hearing the disturbance, Warden Jamesen hurried to the shop, where he was beaten by the prisoners and then, with a knife pressed against his breast, was forced to give word to the guards in the penitentiary to let him and the convicts through.

Once outside the prison wall the fugitives jumped into an automobile which was standing near and drove rapidly away, the Warden being forced to accompany them.

According to prison officials, the four who escaped hold the reputation of being the bad men of the prison. Forman, who is said to have engineered and led the attack on the officials, has given them trouble for months. When first taken to the prison, having been sentenced to a term of seven years for grand larceny, the officers had to wait three months before they could get his finger prints or a good photograph, as his continually pricked the ends of his fingers and distorted the muscles of his face when he was taken before the photographer.

The other three men are all serving terms for grand larceny and burglary.

In Sioux Falls and the surrounding towns, when the news of the escape was telephoned, posses of county, State and city officials were hastily formed. Several posses were also sent out from the local post of the American Legion.

It was learned that after getting into the car near the prison the escaped men went north for a few miles and then turned west to Ellis, six miles distant. Northeast of Ellis the car burned out a bearing. The fugitives abandoned it and went to a farmhouse, where they took a Ford car and continued their flight.

H. E. Pellew, Long Active American Citizen, Becomes British Viscount at Age of 94

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—Henry Edward Pellew, who has been for years a resident of the United States and now lives in Washington, has become the sixth Viscount Exmouth, through the death today of the fifth Viscount in a nursing home, following an operation.

The new peer is 94 years old and is the sixth link between present times and the Napoleonic period.

He married in succession two daughters of the late Judge William Jay of New York, the first Eliza, in 1858, and after her death, in 1880, her sister Augusta in 1873. His father, the Very Rev. and Hon. George Pellew, was Dean of Norwich and a son of the first Viscount.

The peerage was won in the Napoleonic wars, the first Lord Exmouth being created a Baron in 1814 for his services as an Admiral. In 1816 he was in command of the British fleet which attacked and bombarded a stronghold of pirates at Algiers and for this he was made a Viscount.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Henry Edward Pellew, who becomes Viscount Exmouth, resides at 1,637 Massachusetts Avenue, N. W., having been a resident of Washington since 1888. His only son, Charles Ernest Pellew, who is now heir apparent to the title, was formerly professor of chemistry at Columbia University.

Lord Exmouth's daughter said tonight that her father had no plans consequent on his reported succession to the peerage.

The new Lord Exmouth, in spite of his advanced years, is active and in good health.

He came to America in 1873 and made his home in New York. Later on coming here he devoted himself to work among the negroes and has been active in aiding plans for the construction of the Episcopal Cathedral here. He has been a naturalized citizen for many years.

Henry Edward Pellew, soon after he came to this country, was associated with Theodore Roosevelt, A. S. Hewitt and others in the formation of the Bureau of Charities here. He became interested also in tenement house reform, and for a time was President of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor. For a time also he was a member of the School Commission, and was an active member of the Society for Sanitary Reform.

the conference. They took their seats around the table and waited for the brotherhood officials to appear in their rôles of mediators. They were represented by Mr. Cuyler, W. W. Atterbury, Vice President of the Pennsylvania system; Howard Elliott, Chairman Northern Pacific Railway; Hale Holden, President of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad; J. Kruttschnitt, Chairman of Southern Pacific; W. L. Mapother, President Louisville & Nashville; C. H. Markham, President Illinois Central; A. H. Smith, New York Central Lines, and A. P. Thom, Vice Chairman and general counsel of the association.

Soon the leaders of the brotherhoods appeared, headed by Mr. Stone, and they filed into the room and took seats opposite the executives, and the doors closed behind them. The labor representatives were Mr. Stone, L. E. Sheppard, Grand Chief Brotherhood of Railway Conductors; D. W. Robertson, Grand President Brotherhood of Railroad Firemen and Enginemen; T. C. Cashen, President Brotherhood of Railway Switchmen, and William D. Doak, representing W. D. Lee, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

About the time the conference was called to order, Mr. Jewel arrived in the city, establishing headquarters at the Woodstock Hotel, in West Forty-third Street. He was accompanied by J. A. Franklin, President of the Brotherhood of Boilermakers; Martin F. Ryan, President of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen; James Burns, Vice President of the Sheet Metal Workers' Union; Edward Evans, Vice President of the Electrical Workers' Union, and Timothy Healy, President of the Stationary Firemen and Oilers' Union, all striking shop craft organizations.

Non-Striking Delegates.

Representatives of non-striking railroad unions in the delegation included W. D. Helt, President of the Order of Railroad Signalmen; E. J. Manion, President of the Order of Railway Telegraphers; E. F. Grable, President of the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes and Railway Shop Laborers; Richard Dee, Vice President of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes, and T. D. Luherson of the Train Dispatchers' Union.

W. H. Johnston, President of the International Association of Machinists, and James P. Noonan, President of the Electrical Workers' Union, it was announced, had remained in Washington to keep in close touch with the situation there, but were ready to come here on call.

While the union delegation held group meetings and kept in close touch with the progress of negotiations at the conference room, the leaders declined to make any statement, saying:

"We are simply here on call," said Mr. Franklin, "and have no fixed program. If they need us for consultation during the conference we are on hand to help."

Both railroad officials and labor leaders attached considerable importance to this marshaling of railroad union forces here and expressed the belief repeatedly that some sort of a settlement appeared likely.

Coercion Plan Denied.

Reports were current that the brotherhoods and the non-striking railroad organizations were prepared to force a settlement of the strike, even though it became necessary to resort to a sympathetic walkout. This could not be verified and union leaders declared that "no effort was being made to coerce the railroad executives into a settlement."

Before going into the meeting room, Mr. Stone, when asked for a statement, said:

"Mediators never talk in the newspapers."

It became known generally, however, in railroad circles that a proposal covering a settlement of the strike most favored by the labor group had been prepared by the executive of a leading Eastern railroad who has endeavored twice to reach an agreement with his striking shopmen. This proposal is said to be along the following lines:

Old employes who remained loyal to receive first seniority consideration.

Strikers to return as new men.

Final adjustment of the seniority rights and privileges between new men employed during the strike and strikers returning to work to be made by individual railroad managements along the line of merit or any other basis satisfactory to the individual management and employes on each road.

No railroad executive or labor leader would comment on this plan, but it was intimated by some union leaders that no such compromise would end the strike.

Many Proposals Rumored.

There were many unofficial reports as to what would be proposed in the conference. The plan that appeared to meet with the approval of the union leaders provided for the recognition of the seniority rights of loyal employes who refused to strike, with restoration of seniority and pension rights to the strikers, with no provision for the retention of the "new men" hired since the strike.

Railroad executives, however, made it plain that they were not ready to take back all of the striking shopmen with seniority rights, but might be willing to let the United States Railroad Labor Board determine the seniority matter.

Rumors of all sorts were current, when about 3 o'clock the executives sent out word from the conference room that they wanted the files containing decisions by the Railroad Labor Board in previous strikes. One such decision was made in connection with the switchmen's strike of 1920. The board ruled that the strikers were to be deprived of their seniority rights.

Another decision sought was one made in April, 1921, in connection with a switchmen's strike on Southwestern roads, in which strikers also were deprived of their seniority rights.

To Back Seniority Stand.

Later it was learned that the executives had sent for the decisions to exhibit them in support of their contention that they could not in fairness to loyal employes and new men restore strikers with seniority unimpaired. One of the decisions read at the conference was returned by the Railroad Labor Board on Oct. 29, 1921, and was known as decision No. 290. It dealt with a test case involving engineers, firemen, trainmen, conductors and switchmen employed on the Ann Arbor Railroad. The decision closed with this statement:

"The board further points out for the consideration of employes interested that when such action does result in strike the organization so acting has forfeited the rights of its members to the privileges and benefits of all contracts theretofore existing and the employes so striking have voluntarily removed themselves from the classes entitled to appeal to the board for relief and protection."

Shortly after 4 o'clock, Julius Kruttschnitt, head of the Southern Pacific, left the conference chamber. He said no agreement yet had been reached and that there was no immediate prospect of arriving at one. He said a business engagement had forced him to leave.

Asked if the conferees had failed absolutely to reach an agreement, Mr. Kruttschnitt replied that there was no indication one way or the other and that nothing had occurred at the conference to warrant a reply to the question.

The conferees remained in session until nearly 5:30 o'clock. When they were photographed by a battery of cameramen who were admitted to the conference room. As they filed out of the room they declined to discuss the conference, but said they would return tomorrow.

Stone Is Optimistic.

Asked if a settlement was in sight, Mr. Stone smiled and said:

"I am an optimist and am still optimistic."

"The fact that we again go into conference tomorrow ought to be an indication of something," said Mr. Robertson, smiling.

Robert S. Binkerd, assistant to Mr. Cuyler, then called in the newspaper men and said that "to comment or speculate on what had transpired and what may take place would be most unwise and would be without one lota of foundation." Later at the Woodstock Hotel, Mr. Jewell said his position was similar to that taken by Mr. Binkerd. He said that Mr. Stone had told him that he should be spokesman for the union men.

Neither railroad officials nor union leaders would admit that any definite plan had been proposed to the conference to end the strike. They denied knowledge of a report that Chairman C. C. McChord of the Interstate Commerce Commission had proposed a plan of settlement.

"I know of no definite proposals," said [illegible] "and they had not been

In communication with President Harding or other Washington officials and did not expect to advise him officially of the adjournment yesterday.

The new effort to settle the rail strike comes at the end of a series of attempts by the Government to bring about peace. The first attempt was made two weeks ago when President Harding proposed that full seniority rights be restored to the strikers. This offer was rejected flatly by the executives but accepted by the union shopmen.

Later the President proposed that the seniority matter be left to the Railroad Labor Board. This was rejected by the strike leaders. The executives conditionally accepted it, but were understood to have asserted that they would take back only such strikers as they needed to bring the shop forces back to normal.

The President was prepared yesterday to lay the situation before Congress, but withheld his address pending the outcome of the negotiations under way here.

Willard Behind Meeting.

While the railroad executives' statement said that the conference had been called as the result of the union chiefs' invitation, it was learned that Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, in a communication to the union leaders several days ago, suggested that such an invitation be extended to the railroad executives.

Of the report that the strike in the East would spread to the maintenance of way men, Mr. Grable, Grand President of the brotherhood, said:

"I have not approved any strike, and as far as I am concerned, the situation is unchanged. We are awaiting developments here before making any new move."

While here Mr. Grable will confer with William Parker, head of the 75,000 maintenance of way workers in this district, who are reported to be restive over the question of contract labor and wage reductions.

Regarding cars for carrying coal, Mr. Jewell said:

"Even in normal times, with a low percentage of bad order equipment, there are not enough coal cars to meet the demand. The abnormal number of cars now out of service for want of repairs will raise the weekly shortage of cars close to 100,000. The mines produce about 15,000,000 tons of coal a week when operating at a maximum. The average coal car capacity is about forty-five tons. A shortage of 100,000 cars a week will, therefore, prevent 4,500,000 tons of coal a week from reaching the consumer—or 30 per cent. of the weekly output."

Mr. Jewell, in his statement, said: "It is safe to say there will be places for one and one-half times the normal number of men in coal car repair shops." This was emphasized by other labor leaders, who pointed out that more bad order cars were constantly piling up. This, they contended, would make it possible for executives to take back all strikers and still not be forced to discharge new employes.

What seniority means to shopmen was explained in the following statement by the Southern Pacific Railroad explaining the chief points at issue in the present strike:

"In the case of railroad shopmen there are three main points of importance in seniority rules:

"Choice of jobs within the territory affected (terminal or shops). The senior workmen, that is, those who have been in the employ of the railroad the longest time, are given first choice of the better positions.

"As to tenure of position when reductions in the working forces are made, junior men are laid off first, and the senior men last.

"Preference in re-employment. After men have been laid off, they are taken back in the order of seniority, and no new labor is employed until former employes, who so wish, have been returned to their positions."

WESTERN SERVICE RESUMING.

Santa Fe and Western Pacific Anticipate No More Delays.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—The Far Western rail strike situation continued to improve today. Virtually normal train movements were reported from the Union Pacific, Salt Lake City-Los Angeles lines; the Western Pacific again was moving passenger trains and expected to move freight trains by midnight on its lines from San Francisco to Salt Lake City, and the Santa Fé lines were clearing up rapidly the congestion of passenger trains which has grown up at Albuquerque, N. M.

The Santa Fé also moved east today from Bakersfield, Cal., the first train in seven days. Negotiations between railway officials and leaders of the transportation brotherhoods continue.

From Washington State came reports that Eastern buyers were showing reluctance to contract for peaches, pears and prunes because of uncertainty as to their moving East in time to meet the market.

Preliminary reports were received at Los Angeles from Department of Justice investigators who have been inquiring into a possible conspiracy basis for the walk-outs. The United States District Attorney's offices declined to make them public.

Pennsylvania Asks 999-Year Leases

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Approval was asked from the Interstate Commerce Commission today by the Pennsylvania Railroad for a series of 999-year leases which the system intends to take upon a number of subsidiary corporations now being operated as a part of its main line. All the leased properties are owned or controlled by the Pennsylvania. But the lease arrangement would facilitate their handling, the application explained. The roads affected are the Wheeling Terminal Railroad, the Indianapolis & Frankfort, Ohio Connecting Railway Company, South Chicago & Southern, and the Cleveland, Akron & Cincinnati.

ATTEMPTS TO WRECK TRAINS REPORTED

DYNAMITE UNDER A BRIDGE

Boston & Maine Officials Report Air Hose Cut on Passenger Trains.

OLEAN, N. Y., Aug. 17.—That two attempts have been made to wreck Pennsylvania freight trains near this city within forty-eight hours was charged in police court today by Attorney Allen J. Hastings, counsel for the railroad.

Mr. Hastings charged that an attempt was made to dynamite Haskell Bridge, two and a half miles south of this city, on Tuesday night, and that a switch just outside the city was plugged last night, both just ahead of trains. The dynamite exploded when the train went over it, but did no damage. The plugged switch was detected when the slow-moving train struck it, with no derailment.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 17.—Bridges and overpasses of the New Haven and Boston & Albany Railroads here were guarded today by uniformed police officers, placed to prevent molestation of trains by strikers or sympathizers.

Representatives of the strikers ridicule the placing of the bridge guards, and deny that there is any basis for such action. No action toward placing guards has been taken by the Boston & Maine officials here.

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—The management of the Boston & Maine Railroad declared today that several air hose on a mail and express train leaving Portsmouth, N. H., this morning had been cut. Hose on two passenger trains out of that city were also severed, the statement said.

Officials said that a log had been found across the track at Ayer, near the Camp Devens station, and that the water had been drained from an engine at Ashburnham.

YORK BEACH, Me., Aug. 17.—Persons who entered the Boston & Maine roundhouse here late last night tampered with the locomotive and air brakes of the train which remains here each night, railroad officials said today. The water was allowed to run out of the boiler and the hose was cut on several air brakes.

This town is the terminus of the York Harbor & Beach branch of the Boston & Maine, but no men affected by the rail strike are employed here. Extra police have been appointed by town officials.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Aug. 17.—A machine gun detachment was on duty at the Atlantic Coast Line shops here today, following two explosions and the firing of more than fifty shots into the place last night. No one was injured, but bullet holes in the fence surrounding the shops and in the buildings inside the enclosure evidenced the severity of the attack.

The attack was made shortly before midnight. City and county officials were on the scene within half an hour, and shortly after their arrival Colonel Pope, commanding a company of National Guardsmen on duty here, arrived with a machine-gun detachment. The machine guns were made ready for action, but no trace of the attackers could be found and no further demonstration was made. The situation was quiet today.

SALISBURY, N. C., Aug. 17.—Governor Morrison, who came here late today to investigate the situation at the Southern Railway shops here and at Spencer, as a result of disorders early this week, announced late today, after a series of conferences with officials, that he would not order troops to Spencer at present. Sheriff Krider last night made formal request for such protection.

Further action will depend upon later developments, the Governor said, while labor leaders promised to make every effort to maintain order.

The conferences today were held by the Governor with the Sheriff, railway guards, railway attorneys and T. M. Ellis, President of the North Carolina Federation of Labor and the Strike Committee. Mr. Ellis stated that he would address the strikers tomorrow, informing them of the Governor's decision.

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 17.—An alleged attempt to blow up the sleeping quarters of employes of the shops of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad at Port Tampa last night prompted Sheriff Spencer today to announce that he would ask Governor Hardee for State troops to protect the property of the railroad should any further depredations be attempted.

STRIKERS RESTRAINED ON NEW HAVEN ROAD

NORWALK, Conn., Aug. 17.—Following a scathing arraignment of the alleged methods employed by striking shopmen, many of which he said were inconceivable "in a State that prides itself upon its law and order," Judge Edwin S. Thomas of the United States District Court at a hearing today granted a temporary injunction to the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, enjoining all persons from interfering with the property, business and employes of the company.

Prior to the granting of the injunction Judge Thomas denied the motion of C. A. Danaher, counsel for the shopmen, who moved that the restraining order be dissolved because of alleged illegalities in it.

In granting the injunction Judge Thomas quoted from some of the 300 affidavits submitted by the company and said that he had been astonished at their contents. In speaking of the charges of intimidation, violence and threats made in the affidavits, he said: "It is inconceivable that such things should be allowed to exist. These acts are deserving of the most intense condemnation.

"These men assemble, not alone, but in groups and intimidate the workingmen. This is an indication of cowardice. Peaceful persuasion is always permissible, but strikers or other persons have no right to intimidate by assault, nasty or vulgar language or by insulting women, the wives of men who want to work. Any man has a right to go to work and that striker has a right to stay away if he feels like it. No one is forcing him to go to work."

Mr. Danaher later filed notice of his intention to appeal, and a bond of $10,000 was fixed by Judge Thomas.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania wrote a letter today to President Loree of the Delaware & Hudson Railway Company, rebuking him for the character of his comments on the railway strike situation in telegrams to Senators.

Senator Pepper did not furnish samples of Mr. Loree's message, but it was said that it was similar in tone to one made public in New York.

This is his letter to Mr. Loree:

My Dear Sir:

I have duly received your telegram of Aug. 16, as I received your previous wire of July 28.

The tone which appears to have inspired both of these telegrams seems to me to be most unfortunate. They indicate on your part a lack of appreciation of the actual situation and of the efforts that are being made to deal with it. A great industrial crisis cannot be dealt with wisely by those who allow themselves to substitute anger for judgment.

In addition to Mr. Warriner, the operators represented were W. J. Richards, President of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company; W. L. Connell of Scranton, President of the Green Ridge Coal Company and W. W. Inglis of Scranton, President of the Green Ridge Coal Company, and Markle, a Hazleton operator and Chairman of the Miners' and Operators' Joint Conference Board, and James A. Gorman, leading anthracite cities today declined an invitation to sit in the conference. It agreed, however, to act as a neutral body and the Mayors were expected to arrive here tomorrow to render opinions and give information.

Reports from the hard coal regions today said that the mines were being put in shape for early resumption. In some places members of the union were said to have agreed to make necessary repairs, so that work could be started more quickly, but in other sections they had refused to do work of any kind until official permission was received from the union.

Mine mules are being brought in from farms where they spent their vacations and are being shod and taken back to their underground homes, while inspectors are preparing for close inspections of the workings to guard against fatalities, usually numerous after long suspensions, which leave the interiors in a treacherous condition.

More Pittsburgh Operators Agree.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 17.—Putting back to work at least 12,000 of the 45,000 striking mine workers in the Pittsburgh district, a little more than one-fourth of the men out, officials of District No. 5, United Mine Workers, with the close of business tonight had signed up a total of 106 supplemental agreements with individual operators, permitting the reopening of mines under the terms of the settlement at Cleveland.

Seventy-five contracts were signed today by acting President Fagan.

A canvass of coal and coke operators in the Connellsville coke region shows that the operators are unanimous in their determination to continue on the open shop plan.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 17.—Directors of the Kanawha Coal Operators' Association today accepted an invitation for a wage conference as presented to them by C. Frank Keeney, President of District 17, United Mine Workers.

PITTSBURGH, Kan., Aug. 17.—Agreements have been signed with five coal mine operating companies for the resumption of work, it was announced today by George L. Peck, provisional President of the Kansas district, United Mine Workers of America. Mr. Peck said that the mines affected would eventually employ 300 men. It is probable that actual digging of coal will begin tomorrow or Saturday.

STRIKERS ARRESTED IN DEMONSTRATION

GOVERNOR OFFERS REWARD

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 17.—In contravention of a Federal injunction issued today by Judge Edwin S. Thomas in United States Court at Norwalk, Conn., enjoining striking shopmen of the New Haven Railroad from intimidating or interfering with employes throughout the system, between 500 and 600 local strikers and sympathizers late this afternoon marched from the union headquarters at 903 Washington Street to the Dover Street Bridge, overlooking the shops and yards of the New Haven, and staged a hostile demonstration against the men at work.

Robert Henderson, Secretary of the New Haven Shop Crafts Union, was arrested with James F. McNamara, another official of the strikers' union, while the demonstration was at its height and after several employes of the company had been molested by the crowd as they left work. In addition, warrants were issued late tonight for three other men who took a leading part in the affray and whose arrests are hourly expected.

Samuel Dyer of 7 Oak Grove Terrace, Roxbury, a car cleaner employed in the Dover Street yards, was badly beaten in the mêlée as he came up on the bridge, and was technically placed under arrest, with Henderson and McNamara. All three were booked at the South Boston Police Station on a charge of mutual assault, and were later released in bail of $100 each for appearance in South Boston Court on Friday morning.

The arrests were made by Captain Joseph M. Kelley and Sergeant Frank Saunders of the New Haven Railroad Police, assisted by city patrolmen who were on duty in the vicinity of the yards and who afterward assisted in dispersing the crowd.

Governor Cox, after getting a report from Commissioner of Public Safety Foote on lawless acts against the railroads, this afternoon offered in behalf of the State a reward of $1,000 for the apprehension and conviction of any person interfering in any way with the operation of railroads in Massachusetts.

GRAND JURY CALLED ON HERRIN MASSACRE

Summons Is Said to Be Issued at Request of Illinois Attorney

MARION, Ill., Aug. 17 (Associated Press).—A summons for a special Grand Jury to investigate the recent mine massacre at Herrin was issued late this afternoon by Judge Hartwell of the Williamson County Circuit Court to convene here Monday, Aug. 28.

It was said the special Grand Jury was called at the request of Attorney General Brundage of Illinois.

SIX MONTHS' COAL TIEUP LIKELY IN NOVA SCOTIA

Abandonment of Pumps for Three Days More Will Flood All Mines —More Troops Called.

SYDNEY, Nova Scotia, Aug. 17.—If the present state of virtual suspension of pumping operations in the New Aberdeen coal fields, which include colliery 2, the largest coal shaft in the world, continues for three more days, an official of one of the coal companies said tonight that every mine affected by the present strike would be rendered unproductive for six months or a year.

The situation, as far as hope for an early settlement of the dispute between miners and operators is concerned, was virtually deadlocked, with both sides expressing determination not to yield. District Secretary J. B. McLachlan of the United Mine Workers definitely stated that the miners would cling to their decision, "even if it meant starving," while H. J. McCann, Assistant General Manager of the Dominion Coal Company, said that the company could not grant the demands of the strikers even if refusal meant destruction to all the collieries.

Advices received from Calgary, Alberta, stated that the Western Canada Coal Operators' Association had made a new offer to miners of District 18 to resume work under the old working conditions at a reduction of 20 per cent. in wages. The agreement would run until March, 1923, with the understanding that any schedule adopted subsequently by at least 60 per cent. of the United States coal operators would supersede it. The miners are reported to have the offer under consideration.

Troops continued to move into the strike area at New Aberdeen. The work of establishing sentries went forward without untoward incident. A contingent of striking miners and members of the World War Veterans Association paraded from the miners' headquarters at Glace Bay to New Aberdeen, stopped before the troop camp and then marched back again.

In the meantime water is seeping steadily into the shafts of all the mines in the Glace Bay area, where the operation of maintenance machinery with exhausted crews has been of little avail.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 17.—Under the authority of the Militia act, and in response to a further requisition from the officer commanding the district, the Department of Militia will send 500 additional troops to the disturbed mining areas in Nova Scotia, it was announced tonight. This will make approximately 1,000 members of the permanent force which have been sent to the strike area.

216 INDICTED IN MINE WAR.

WELLSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 17.—Two hundred and sixteen men were indicted today by the Brooke County Grand Jury for alleged participation in the battle at the Clifton mine, Cliftonville, on the morning of July 17.

Seventy-eight are charged with first-degree murder and the rest with conspiracy. All but about fifty of the indicted men are in custody.

ERIE STRIKE UP TO MEN.

"Use Own Judgment," Says Leader of Way Maintenance Workers.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 17.—William D. Roberts, Eastern Vice President of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes, today left on his return from Hagerstown, Md., where members of his organization have been on strike against the Western Maryland Railroad Company because of the road's refusal to do away with the contract system, a wire was sent to President Grable of the shopmen at Washington, over the telephone, for permission to call a general strike on the Erie Railroads.

President Grable refused to sanction a strike, Mr. Roberts said, but said that "the men will not be employed to work where guards or conditions endanger their lives." Vice President Roberts notified J. A. Hunt, General Chairman of the Erie system, tonight that the men "should use their own judgment."

New Haven Trainmen Get Rise.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 17.—An increase of 5 cents an hour for trainmen employed on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad went into effect today.

A schedule, showing the supplies of fuel on hand and the daily consumption of the various city departments and institutions also was submitted by Mr. Whalen. It follows:

The Aldermen, who were in session only a little longer than thirty minutes, authorized the purchase of coal without public letting by city departments and institutions in the following amounts:

Armory Board, $10,000; Board of Education, $700,000; Board of Purchase, $900,000, including Fire and Police and ten other departments; Borough of Brooklyn, $100,000; College of the City of New York, $9,500; Borough of Bronx, $15,000; Borough of Richmond, $5,000.

There was no opposition to the passage of the resolution authorizing these purchases. Arthur Somers, a member of the Board of Education, informed the Aldermen that his department had $700,000 for the purchase of coal, but that it lacked the authority to buy fuel without public letting. He further explained that the Board of Education merely wished to have the power to buy coal without public letting only in the event contractors refused to make bids.

The following resolution was introduced by Alderman William T. Collins, Vice President of the board:

"Resolved, That to meet the existing emergency resulting from the curtailment of coal production and to prevent or mitigate possible suffering and discomfort threatening the people of the City of New York, there is hereby appropriated the sum of $500,000, and, in pursuance of subdivision 8 of Section 188 of the Charter of the City of New York, the Controller is hereby authorized to issue and sell special revenue bonds in the sum not exceeding $500,000, the proceeds whereof may be used for the purchase and distribution of fuel to the public at cost, under the direction and supervision of a committee consisting of five members of the Board of Aldermen, to be appointed."

Seeks Charter Amendment.

Alderman Collins also introduced the resolution seeking a charter amendment whereby the yearly issue of special revenue bonds might be increased by $2,000,000. His resolution providing for an appropriation of $500,000 to purchase and sell at cost coal among the poor will be considered by the Board of Aldermen after the Legislature shall have acted upon the request for the charter amendment.

The New York State Coal Commission received answers to a questionnaire. The first returns from up-State cities and towns show an alarming shortage of coal. The reports will be tabulated probably by the middle of next week.

The following warning was issued late in the afternoon from the offices of Eugenius H. Outerbridge, Chairman of the commission:

"The New York State Coal Commission may have to refuse priority to the electric light companies generally unless they find a way to have the present wasteful use of advertising signs discontinued during this emergency.

"While the traction companies are having to travel on a hand-to-mouth supply of coal, fuel is being burned up for advertising purposes which are entirely non-essential. We have got to take drastic measures to stop it."

A. L. Ogle, President of the National Coal Association, last night renewed his demand for a fact-finding tribunal. It was through Mr. Ogle that the National Coal Association sent a telegram to President Harding outlining its proposal for the appointment of a fact-finding body to investigate the coal industry. The National Coal Association announced yesterday that it was in receipt of communications from prominent men indorsing that proposal, including William C. Redfield, Secrtary of Commerce in the Wilson Cabinet, and Henry L. Doherty, financier and active in the public utilities field.

Prepare Coal Questionnaire.

In an effort to ascertain the extent of the coal supplies in the bins of the consumers and to determine the extent of their needs, the United Real Estate Owners' Association, 280 Broadway, had prepared a questionnaire which may be obtained by coal users who care to write for it.

E. M. Bine, Vice President and General Manager of the Lackawanna, confirmed yesterday a report from Albany showing that the Lackawanna had ordered coal from England to keep its trains running. The shortage of coal on the Lackawanna was disclosed in Albany by a petition to the Public Service Commission for permission to discontinue a train running between Utica and Binghamton.

In its weekly review of the coal situation, Coal Age points out that a peculiar situation exists in the spot market where prices are high but not soaring. Free coal, even more limited than a week ago, but the demand has declined apace with the amount of tonnage offering. The procrastination of the coal buyers, according to Coal Age, has resulted in many shut-downs while the railroad and other essential utilities and industries are actively bidding for the meagre current production. The weekly review further says:

"The wise is off the market for British coals. Cargoes are arriving daily but consignees are for the most part essential industries who will be the first served after the strike.

"Shippers are being deluged with requests for quotations and the prospect that mining may soon be resumed has brought many orders for delivery immediately after the strike. The price question is being carefully left open and shippers are accepting orders on that basis, promising delivery at the earliest possible moment in the order in which the business is received.

The review shows that the output of bituminous coal for the week ended Aug. 12 was 4,900,000 or a gain of 500,000 tons.

APPEAL TO CONGRESS TODAY.

The railway employes' associations have refused to obey the ruling of the board with reference to a reduction in wages and some railway companies have declined to abide by other decisions of the board.

A strong sentiment appeared among Senators today in favor of working out a modification of the wage board provisions of the Transportation act along the lines of the Canadian Industrial Disputes act. The opinion was expressed that enough Senators had been impressed with the Canadian statute to justify the hope that an act of that general character could be passed by the Senate as a modification of the wage board provisions of the Transportation act. The Canadian act provides a commission which intervenes in labor disputes, and its decisions are binding on both parties for a specified limited period, after which either side may disregard the decision upon notice.

Nothing suggestive of any radical legislative action by Congress is expected to be contained in President Harding's recommendations in his address tomorrow. But it is the understanding that the address will not mince words in describing the condition in which the industry of the country has been placed by the railway and coal strikes. He has declared repeatedly to visitors that "the trains are going to run," and has added enough to emphasize expression to indicate that if the railroad companies were unable to operate trains the Government would see that transportation was not hampered.

Some Positive Step Planned.

Only as a last resort would the President undertake to operate any railroads under Government receiverships and it is believed that the inquiries on that score made of railway executives are intended merely as a precautionary measure of preparedness for meeting a critical situation.

That the President has determined, however, to resort to positive steps if railway strike-control seems to be needed by those who have some to be controlled by those who have some [illegible] and President had a conference of more than an hour with Secretary Weeks. Just prior to the Secretary of War's call at the White House a report had been circulated that he was preparing to call for 500,000 volunteers to operate and guard railways.

"There is not a word of fact in that statement," said Mr. Weeks. He suggested that the report might possibly have grown out of a request he had made of the Judge Advocate General of the army for an opinion as to whether the military draft might be resorted to in time of peace. That question had been asked him, said Mr. Weeks, and he had merely requested the Judge Advocate General to give him an opinion without any intention of undertaking the draft to meet the strike situation. He had gone into the matter merely as an incident of protective routine.

The Judge Advocate General held that the draft could not legally be resorted to in time of peace. He did not pass, however, upon the question of the constitutionality of a draft act for peace time that Congress might enact.

Mr. Weeks said in discussing the matter that President Lincoln had called for volunteers without the authority of an act of Congress, but the circumstances then were somewhat different inasmuch as a state of internal uprising existed. Since Lincoln's time, Mr. Weeks pointed out, there had been changes in the military laws and it was questionable whether the President would have any authority to call for volunteers now. As far as he knew, said Mr. Weeks in response to a question, no plan to call for volunteers was under consideration by the Government.

Secretary Weeks also asked the Judge Advocate General whether he had authority to recruit the army to wartime strength in time of peace and was told in an opinion that no such authority existed. The present strength of the army is about 125,000 men, while the authorized wartime strength is 298,000 men. In asking this question, Secretary Weeks explained he was following a general policy he had adopted of taking every possible measure of precaution for meeting any emergency.

It was recalled by Secretary Weeks in discussing the strike situation with newspaper men that in the switchmen's strike of 1920 a sufficient number of men volunteered in New England to operate the railroads. These volunteers included a considerable number of the alumni of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He predicted that in the event of a general tie-up of transportation on account of the strike there would be similar offers of services from competent persons all over the country.

To Insure Coal Distribution.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (Associated Press).—In the message to be delivered in Congress tomorrow, it is said that the President will suggest the need of legislation to strengthen the Government's coal distribution system and to prevent profiteering from the shortage brought about by the coal and rail strikes. In addition, it is understood, he will sketch a complete history of his attempts to settle the industrial tieups by negotiations during recent weeks, and, it is believed, will assure Congress that the Federal Government intends to give its aid and protection to the maintenance of rail operations. It is doubtful whether there will be any suggestion for legislation affecting the rail situation.

The Southern Railway began receiving contingents of new workmen at shop points today to replace striking shopmen, according to an announcement by H. W. Miller, its Vice President. Striking shopmen on the Southern, he said, are distinct from all the other large railroad systems, have the opportunity to regain their positions with full seniority status, even though the road is now attempting to break the strike.

Attorney General Daugherty announced today that he was "giving attention" to the situation in Southern Illinois resulting from the refusal of workers on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad at Cypress, Ill., to move or permit the movement of non-union coal from Kentucky and Alabama.

"That is a violation of law—when men do that," said Mr. Daugherty. "I do not care to say at this time what the department's action has been or will be."

Administration leaders, including Senator Lodge and Representative Mondell, Republican spokesman in Congress, consulted today with the President upon the terms of his message, and Secretary Weeks was closeted with him at the Executive offices late today for a study of the message.

Both the Senate and the House were in session today, in readiness to hear the President, but the House adjourned when it became known that he intended to delay the presentation of his message another day.

Representative Ward, Democrat, of North Carolina, introduced a bill to give the Interstate Commerce Commission wage-fixing authority in railroad employment and providing a system of making public wage rates similar to that now operative for new freight schedules.

HOOVER SEES CHEER IN COAL SITUATION

No Serious Shortage, He Says, If Miners Return Soon Under Cleveland Agreement.

PRICE CURB IS NEEDED

He Thinks Legislation That Harding Is Planning Should Apply Only to Interstate Shipments.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (Associated Press).—Early resumption of coal production in the union fields covered by the Cleveland agreement was looked to today by Administration officials to avert fuel troubles throughout the country next Winter.

If the miners in those fields return to work within the next few days, Secretary Hoover asserted, there should be no serious shortage of coal during the Winter, although there might be some minor inconveniences. Production of approximately 10,000,000 tons of coal weekly, made up of about four-fifths bituminous and one-fifth anthracite, will be needed, according to Federal Fuel Distributer Spencer.

Even with adequate production, Mr. Hoover added, action by Congress will be necessary to enable Federal price control temporarily and to facilitate distribution to supply the needs of the Northwest.

"With the resumption of mining," he said, "the price situation will be quickly over. While there will be some control of distribution and prices necessary temporarily, the matter will quickly adjust itself."

Expects Price Agreement Collapse.

Collapse of the fair price agreements made with producing operators, however, when the union mines resume production was indicated by Mr. Hoover. There would be then seventy-five or eighty districts, he explained, to hold in line as to prices by voluntary means which would be an "unfeasible machine," considering the difficulty experienced with the mines now in the price agreements.

Nevertheless, Mr. Hoover thought, the results of the fair price agreements thus far had constituted a "remarkable showing," with 70 per cent. of the coal now moving being handled under the established maximums of from $2.90 to $2.75 a ton. Difficulties in the price situation, he asserted, arose from the other 30 per cent., which gave rise to the charges of profiteering. Operators observing the agreements were passing up from $8 to $10 on every ton of coal sold, he said.

Emergency price control legislation, which, it is understood, President Harding will suggest in his message to Congress tomorrow, would apply only to coal moving in interstate commerce in the opinion of the Commerce Secretary. According to the best advice at hand, he contended, the Federal authority cannot extend to coal transactions within the States, and the control of speculation and the prices charged by wholesalers and retailers on intrastate sales would be up to the State authorities.

These, he believed, would have the power to regulate coal prices during the emergency, especially if the Federal Government, acting nationally, gave to the States the framework to build upon. He advanced the opinion that the Federal Government could control prices charged by operators for coal in interstate commerce and could "deliver coal over the State line at fair prices," after which the police problem would be one for the States.

Devices for fixing prices by Federal agencies, Mr. Hoover believed, would be left to Congress, but he gave the impression that early action on fuel legislation was expected. Resumption of anthracite production, he said, should provide for the needs of the nation's homes during the Winter. It ought to be possible, he said, to protect the householders, if mining was resumed at an early date, through a system of priority orders which would insure sufficient hard coal for homes in advance of anthracite supplies for industry.

Expects Short Time Price Control.

Mr. Hoover does not believe it will be necessary for the Government to keep control of distribution and prices for any length of time, as indications to him are that the operators will do everything possible to prevent prices from soaring to prohibitive figures.

"I believe that Congress is ready to act on legislation to control prices and distribution of coal in interstate commerce," said Mr. Hoover. "Those who have been dealing with the coal situation see coal going to $20 a ton unless the coal States and the Federal Government are able to work together through regulatory laws to control distribution."

What was described as "bootlegging in coal" was said to be in progress. This was described as an agreement by speculators to pay a certain price per ton of coal before it was produced. Many operators had made such agreements, said reports here.

President Harding today received a telegram from A. M. Ogle, President of the National Coal Association, urging him to promptly appoint a commission to study the coal industry. The telegram read:

Ogle Asks for Commission.

"The strike in the bituminous coal fields emphatically has demonstrated the immediate need of a nonpartisan tribunal that will thoroughly investigate in the interest of all parties every phase of the industry and make public at an early date its findings with such recommendations as it may deem proper and advisable. Coal mining is an involved and intricate industry and great confusion exists concerning it, not only in the public mind but within the industry itself.

"The immediate resumption of mining may be most important in the minds of many, but if we are to avoid further conflict in the mining industry beginning April, 1923, resulting in inconvenience to the consuming public and interference with industrial progress, all the essential facts must be investigated promptly and given full consideration in order that a proper solution may be determined.

"Accordingly, we urge upon you the advisability of appointing such a commission without delay, and I can assure you the fullest co-operation and support in such action."

To meet the pressing need for immediate dispatch of large tonnage to the upper Great Lakes region from southern Appalachian districts, the Fuel Distribution Committee is putting into effect a plan whereby all coal produced on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday of the week ending Aug. 26 in a number of districts in Kentucky and West Virginia shall be shipped for forwarding to the Northwest and other lake territory. It is estimated that this should approximate 400,000 tons of coal.

Loadings of coal throughout the country Tuesday are reported as 12,917 cars. Estimated production of bituminous coal for the week, taking no account of additional tonnage which may be produced by union mines as a result of the Cleveland conference, is 4,300,000 tons. To this it is possible that 200,000 tons may be added by new production from Ohio and Pennsylvania mines.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—Under the heading "A Scribbling Cabinet," The Evening Standard says:

"Now we really know why the Government decided on giving Parliament a three months' holiday. It is that the Ministers may devote themselves to their literary vocations. All the world is aware that Mr. Lloyd George has started his famous book, for which it has been calculated he is to be paid far more than half a guinea per word. Winston Churchill wants to put the finishing touches to his book describing his own phenomenal career and which may be published this year. Not to be outdone, Lord Birkenhead has taken himself into the country on the flattering invitation of a publisher, so it is reported, and is dashing out brilliant pages dealing with his own phenomenal career, and he expects to get it published before The [London] Times can block the book stalls.

"Other Ministers have taken to the pen, but these are enough to be mentioned at present."

OSER MEETS HIS FIANCEE.

Date of the Marriage Is Still Being Kept Secret.

GENEVA, Aug. 17.—Miss Mathilde McCormick had her first meeting with her fiancé, Max Oser, since her arrival in Europe at the small village of Veltare, near Zurich, yesterday. The fact that they were to meet was kept secret in an effort to elude the newspaper correspondents.

Doubt still exists as to when and where the marriage of Miss McCormick and Mr. Oser will take place. It is considered possible it will not be at Prangins, although Mathilde's aunt, Mrs. Stanley McCormick, recently rented a château there, at which she is entertaining several American friends.

Harold F. McCormick, Mathilde's father, and his bride, Ganna Walska, are still at Salzburg, Austria. The date of the visit they will make to the Prangins château has not been fixed.

MANY HURT IN WRECK OF 3 BUFFALO CARS

FIRST CAR RUNS INTO HOLE

Two Others Pile on It—By Seeming Miracle No Passengers Are Killed.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Friday, Aug. 18.—Three trolley cars bound for Niagara Falls on the high speed trolley line were wrecked just after midnight about a mile outside the Buffalo city line.

The cars were filled with excursionists who had arrived in Buffalo about 11 o'clock Thursday night over the Pennsylvania from Baltimore, Washington and Harrisburg.

The first car ran into a hole in the track that had been blasted out with explosives. The second and third car piled into the first and both tracks were blocked.

The hole in the line could not have been blasted out long before the cars approached, for other cars had passed just a short time before. The scene was in the open fields with few houses near.

No deaths are reported from the wreck. Although many persons were reported injured slightly, few were sent to hospitals. Most of the passengers were returned to Buffalo and sent on to Niagara Falls by other trolley cars summoned to the scene.

At the Buffalo Hospital at 2 o'clock report was made that five injured persons had their wounds dressed there. None of these were seriously hurt. They were Mrs. Anna Smith, Miss Irene Smith, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lochard, all of 6,205 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Samuel Spray of 4,191 South Fifteenth Street, Philadelphia, had a cut in his head.

The hospital in Tonawanda reported only one patient, Mrs. Elizabeth Brierly, 51 years old, of Beverly, Mass. She is not seriously injured, it was said.

This city has been in the throes of a trolley strike for several weeks.

FOUR LOSE LIVES IN NEAR-BY WATERS

Two men and an infant were drowned and several rescues were made in waters in and around New York City yesterday. One of the men, a sailor, fell into the North River while attempting to jump from a motor boat to a float it was towing off West Ninety-seventh Street. He was D. W. Riker, 25, attached to the battleship Maryland lying off West 100th Street. A companion recovered the body, which was taken aboard the Maryland.

Louis C. Green, 28, of 844 South Sixteenth Street, Newark, was drowned in Newark Bay yesterday afternoon, and a companion, Benjamin Aparto, 38 years old, of 539 East 124th Street, Manhattan, connected with the United States Board of Vocational Training, nearly lost his life trying to rescue him. Aparto collapsed and was pulled onto a dredger; but Green's body was not recovered.

James P. Kane, 27, of Sheridan Boulevard, Far Rockaway, was drowned in Jamaica Bay off Beach Thirty-sixth Street yesterday afternoon, when the small boat from which he was lowering a heavy mooring capsized. The body was found last night.

Salvatore Palmorio, 15 months old, of 83 Ross Avenue, Newark, fell into the Morris Canal at Sixth Street and Heller Parkway yesterday afternoon and was drowned. The child's companions were so frightened that they gave no alarm, and some time elapsed before any one knew of the accident.

Stephen Woodbine, 29, of 47 Ninth Street, Jersey City, lost his balance and fell overboard while crabbing in Newark Bay yesterday afternoon, capsizing his boat and catching his foot under the seat in such a way that he could not extricate it.

SMITH REVIEWS INFANTRY.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith reviewed the 165th Infantry at its Summer encampment here today. One of the first persons to greet Mr. and Mrs. Smith after their motor trip from New York was Lieutenant Alfred E. Smith Jr., adjutant of the Second Battalion.

The former Governor also reviewed the Tenth Regiment of Albany under the command of Colonel Walsh. Subsequently Mr. and Mrs. Smith messed with the officers, and the ex-Governor made a short address congratulating Colonel John J. Phelan on the work of his regiment.

SHORT CIRCUIT HALTS ALL LINES OF B. R. T.

TIE-UP LASTS 8 MINUTES

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit surface, subway and elevated lines were completely tied up for eight minutes from 11 o'clock last night by a short circuit at the main power house in Kent Street. This power house supplies electricity to twenty-eight smaller stations, so that the breakdown paralyzed the whole system while it lasted. It was speedily repaired, and the movement of cars resumed on all lines at the end of that time. Travel was small at this hour, and the delay caused no trouble among passengers. It was not until reports arrived from several lines, indicating that they had all been tied up simultaneously, that it was known that a general breakdown of some kind had occurred.

General Manager W. S. Menden of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, said last night:

"The short circuit was in one of the feeders in the main power house. I cannot be more explicit, because I have not yet made a thorough investigation, since the damage was repaired so quickly. The trouble was not connected with the coal supply, but was a routine local trouble which might occur at any time. I don't know the exact cause."

The lights were out in all trains while the tie-up lasted, but the emergency lights in the subway trains continued in service.

All information as to the exact nature of the accident was refused at the power house. It was said that no one had been hurt and that the accident was nothing extraordinary.

Although less serious, the accident was said to resemble that which occurred on July 25 when at the peak of the rush hour, a breakdown in the main power house stopped every wheel on the system, causing many panics and delaying hundreds of thousands for hours. On that date two hours elapsed before the trouble was set right and traffic resumed.

There is no danger of a recurrence of last night's breakdown, according to W. S. Menden, who said that it had been completely repaired.

OLD GUARD MACHINE SETS HIGHER DUTIES

through, the Wisconsin Senator will know I have answered his question. If an industry in this country which is established and employing American labor needs 1,000 per cent. protection at the present time, when the world is in a chaotic condition, then I will vote for the 1,000 per cent. rate. It would be a crime to destroy such an American industry and thereby give employment to Germans or anyone else, although I have no prejudice on earth against German citizens."

"The Senator from Idaho answers the question very fully," said Senator Lenroot. "He is willing to have the people of America pay 1,000 per cent more for an article, if necessary, in order to have it manufactured in this country rather than abroad. There is a limit beyond which I am not willing to tax the American people in order simply to have the article produced in this country.

"There is a limit, also, where we cannot, as protectionists and Republicans, say that we are justified in taxing the American consumers in order to maintain an industry here if it requires a protective duty of 100, 200, 300 or 600 per cent. I supposed that was accepted Republican doctrine; that there was a limit somewhere; that if the American manufacturer cannot get along without us taking the people twice as much for an article as it may be imported for, then we should say to the American manufacturer that we are sorry, but the price is too high to continue your industry. That is a simple proposition.

"The Senator from Idaho, however, has shown time and time again that he is entirely indifferent as to how much the American people may be taxed. He is willing to have a farmer pay 200 per cent. duty on some product which he must buy simply to have that article made in this country."

Senator Lenroot remarked that the 445 per cent. ad valorem equivalent in the cutlery schedule must, under the circumstances, be very pleasing to Mr. Goodings, and it was then that Senator Stanfield broke into the controversy.

"Are those duties in excess of the difference in cost of production at home and in foreign countries?" asked Senator Stanfield.

"I do not know, but I am not willing to vote for a duty that requires 400 per cent. difference," said Mr. Lenroot.

"Not even if American labor is dependent upon the duty?" asked Mr. Stanfield.

"I am not if it requires 400 per cent. duty. Is the Senator from Oregon willing to vote for a straight 400 per cent. ad valorem duty?" inquired Senator Lenroot.

Stanfield Would Go Higher.

"Yes, or 4,000 per cent.," exclaimed Mr. Stanfield, "if it takes such a rate to equalize the difference in the cost of manufacture in this country and the foreign country which produces the article competing with the American product."

"Then there is a fundamental difference between the Senators from Oregon and Idaho and myself," replied Senator Lenroot. "The question resolves itself into this: If they are willing—if it costs the American people four times as much to buy an American article as a foreign article, then they are willing to tax the people that four times, or 400 per cent. I want to say deliberately to them that that kind of tariff making does not spell prosperity for the United States. Where would the Senators stop?"

"I would stop," said Stanfield, "when the rate is so high that it is not necessary to equalize the difference in the cost of production in this country and abroad, including labor and the other elements of cost."

"Even if it requires 5,000 per cent.?" asked Lenroot.

"That would make no difference, because it would pay the American people to keep employed. If labor is out of employment, the price makes no difference, because they would have no purchasing power."

"I see your position," concluded Senator Lenroot. "The Oregon Senator is willing to vote for a thousand per cent. in order to make certain the production of an article in the United States."

To Protect Profits, Underwood Says.

"It has been clearly demonstrated today," said Senator Underwood, who followed Mr. Lenroot, "that this is a bill which was written and which is to be enacted not for the purpose of equalizing conditions in trade, but for the purpose of protecting profits. What has happened here clearly proves this to be true. In many instances, the tax exceeds the wholesale producing cost in this country, as, for instance, an ordinary kitchen knife which is made in this country for 6¼ cents is taxed 15 cents, and that is only one of innumerable instances.

"When he realizes what has happened in the Senate today, is there a man in the United States who can be fooled as to the real nature of this bill—a bill not to raise revenue for the Treasury of the United States, but to protect profits, to continue the war-time profits of certain favored industries over into the time of peace?"

The second of the Lenroot amendments was defeated, 33 to 29, the Republicans who supported the amendment being Borah, Capper, Cummins, Kellogg, Lenroot, McCormick, Sterling and Wadsworth. On this vote Mr. Wadsworth deserted the Old Guard, but on all others he stood with the Administration.

The last of the Lenroot amendments fixed a maximum ad valorem of 100 per cent. on pen-knives, pocket knives, erasers, manicure knives, pruning and other knives. Senator Lenroot pointed out that ad valorem equivalents recommended by the committee run from 108 to 300 per cent.

By 35 to 29 this amendment was defeated. Senator Wadsworth returned to the Administration fold. With that exception the Republicans who supported the amendment were those who stood with Lenroot on the two previous roll calls. Only one Democrat voted for the higher cutlery rates—Mr. Broussard of Louisiana.

Drops Retaliation on Newsprint.

With the cutlery amendment out of the way, Senator Oddie of Nevada submitted a substitute for the proviso in the paper schedule, which provided that when a foreign country imposed an export duty on newsprint paper and wood pulp, which the bill puts on the free list, the President should investigate and, if he thought necessary, impose a duty of 10 per cent. ad valorem in addition to a specific rate equal to the highest export duty by the foreign country in question. The Oddie amendment limited American counter-action to the imposition of an import duty equal to the export duty imposed by the exporting country.

Senator Walsh of Montana said he thought the Oddie amendment was an improvement, but proposed that the proviso should be stricken out entirely, adding that if this was done there would be no occasion for the adoption of the Oddie amendment. The Walsh motion prevailed, and there is now no retaliatory proviso in the bill, so far as newsprint is concerned.

Another amendment by Senator Oddie to put rotogravure paper on the free list was defeated. This paper is taxed 1 cent per pound.

Dye Rates More Than Doubled.

By a vote of 38 to 23 the Senate tonight increased the duties on dyes to rates which in effect are more than double those approved by the Senate weeks ago, when the chemical schedule was first considered. The duties which the Senate voted tonight are 10½ cents per pound, plus 75 per cent. ad valorem, American valuation, on intermediates, and the same rate per pound, plus 90 per cent. ad valorem, on finished dyes. The new rates, it was contended by opponents of the amendments, practically amount to an embargo against all foreign-made dyes.

The author of the amendments is Senator Bursum of New Mexico. The duties previously voted by the Senate were 7½ cents per pound, plus 50 per cent. ad valorem, foreign valuation, on the intermediates, and the same rate per pound and 60 per cent. ad valorem, foreign valuation, on the finished dyes. In the amendment adopted tonight the flexible tariff provisions do not apply, thereby preventing increases or decreases by executive order.

Senator Smoot declared that the Bursum proposition was "even more vicious than an embargo," while Senator Simmons pointed out that the change from the foreign to the American valuation would in itself practically double the duties.

Senator Lodge argued that the adoption of the higher duties was necessary to build up the industry in this country and as an essential factor in the national defense.

Representatives of the dye interests were stated by Senator Frelinghuysen will put the dye embargo proposed before the Senate again tomorrow, but it is common talk tonight that the dye men are satisfied with their victory of tonight and are indifferent as to what action the Senate may take on the embargo.

The Republicans who voted against the Bursum amendment were Senators Capper, Kellogg, Keyes, Lenroot, Moses, Newberry and Smoot. Democrats who voted for it were Senators Broussard, Ransdell, Jones of New Mexico, Myers and Sheppard.

The Finance Committee made public today a profusely illustrated book of 128 pages, entitled "Imported Merchandise and Retail Prices." It is a program of the tariff show given in the Senate some weeks ago, of which Senator Gooding was the stage manager. Among the halftones are pictures of a package of cabbage seed, a statuette of a nude woman, the famous cuckoo clock, a pair of men's socks, a pot cleaner, a monkey doll, a jumping dog, a scrub cloth, a bird cage, a jointed doll, a pipe, a walking cane and a corkscrew.

Senator Harrison announced that at the first opportunity he would demand that the committee make public what it cost the Treasury to produce this book. He added that he would also inquire of the committee why such a book had been printed by the Government Printing Office without the sanction of the Senate. He added that the book looked very much like a campaign volume printed at public expense.

Cotton Futures Bill Turned Down.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (Associated Press).—Senator Dial of South Carolina tried late today to attach his cotton futures trading measure to the Tariff bill as an amendment, but sharp division of opinion developed among the Democrats, and he finally withdrew it and asked unanimous consent that it be made the unfinished business of the Senate on the fifth day of the next session. This request was denied as being in violation of Senate rules.

Senator McCumber said at the outset that he would have no objection to offer to the proposal provided the Senators from the cotton growing States could agree on the amendment.

Opposition immediately was expressed, and since the bill recently was returned to the Senate by the Agriculture Committee with a unanimous adverse report, it got no further than to cause an hour's debate.

Prior to withdrawing the amendment Senator Dial declared that Congress had unintentionally arrayed itself on the side of the bears in the cotton market, an "evil" which Senator Smith of South Carolina, agreed should be corrected, but the two Senators from that State could not get together on the merits of the bill.

Senator Underwood asserted that no other plan had been suggested and that it was time for Congress to quit dodging the issues involved.

Senator Ransdell, who made the adverse report for the Agriculture Committee, opposed any action on it, telling the Senate that "the committee turned down the Senator from South Carolina so hard that it ought to end the matter."

Senator Heflin and Senator Smith opposed the proposal on the ground that it would injure the cotton producer without being of help to anyone. To this Senator Dial rejoined that Senator Heflin was not acquainted with the subject of which he spoke.

men. There was an unbuttoning of coats and a display of impressive looking badges, and a moment later the whole party was trooping through a door held wide by a meek and mild man in uniform who had entirely changed his mind as to their welcome.

The invaders, marching quietly in upon diners and dancers, found, so they said afterward, that the law was being broken. They rather felt that it was being disregarded boldly and ostentatiously. They made no charges against proprietors or managers, but they asserted that some of the guests were wiping themselves and each other by way of the bulging hip.

A demand was made for Sam Salvin, manager of the place. They were told that he was at the Palais Royal, another in the same chain of places. Even while disquieting rumors that the big Pooh Bahs of the Government's aridity spreaders were among them were disquieting the diners, the invaders were withdrawing, bent upon finding Salvin. They came upon him at the Palais Royal. They told him what they had found at Montmartre. They informed him that it was not enough that proprietors of such places should refrain from selling liquor.

It was up to them to see that their restaurants were not made gathering places for habitual lawbreakers. Salvin was told to stop the drinking in Montmartre. He was ordered to stop it in the Palais Royal. He was told that the same order went for the Moulin Rouge, the Boardwalk, the Plantation, the Little Club, the Rendezvous and the Club Maurice, all in the same chain and all directed by Salvin as part owner and manager.

Managers Promise to Obey.

Salvin received the orders attentively and assured his visitors he would carry them out. He said his places did not approve of patrons breaking the law and preferred that they should not. Now that the positive word had come from headquarters, the practice should cease. He added assurance that in none of the resorts mentioned was any liquor sold.

The prohibition party has only begun with the Salvin chain; they had not singled it out for particular attention. They had a long list and they proposed to carry their message of gloom from one end to the other of the paths of revelry. Departing from the Palais Royal, they set out for the Knickerbocker Grill, intending to publish the same stern command along Forty-second Street.

The Knickerbocker Grill was found to be closed, so the official party went in turn to the Strand Roof, the Tent, the Broadway Garden and the Tsudeshow, formerly known as the Ted Lewis Club. At this last place they got unmistakable evidence that patrons were indulging, for just as they entered two women tumbled down the stairway, recovered their poise and did an impromptu dance in the lobby.

The prohibition men got a respectful and, apparently, a sympathetic hearing in all places visited. In virtually all they were told that proprietors and managers would welcome strict enforcement of the law, provided only that it were administered impartially. One manager said he was a nervous wreck from trying to run his place in conformity with prohibition laws and dance regulations.

It was suggested by the dry agents that notice that the law was to be respected be displayed on cards on the walls or printed on the menus.

Broadway soon got wind of that automobile load of prohibition brass hats and its mission. It was a sad word for many. Some made haste to empty their flasks. Others, foreseeing an end to open conviviality, anyway, decided to steal away with the last drink intact for a mournful nightcap at home.

No one pretended to say whether New York's night life, already dwindling, as has been evidenced by the closing of one erstwhile gay resort after another and the changing of others into the most prosaic of eating places, had heard its doom at last. There have been other alarms and the more hardy frolickers have laughed them down, but in this group were men with many minions to carry out their demands, their denunciation was earnest, their orders uncompromising. And Broadway wondered, rather sadly.

ARREST 14 MEN IN BOOTLEG MURDER

Two Auto Gunmen Pump Six Bullets Into an Italian and Flee.

ROW OVER SPOILS BLAMED

Slain Near Scene of Ferraro Shooting—Was to Have Been Killed Sooner.

Fourteen men, nearly all of Italian extraction, were arrested in Brooklyn late yesterday afternoon on charges of homicide in connection with the murder of Joseph Vicchio, 27, a bootlegger of 14 Rapelyea Street, Brooklyn. After questioning the men, Assistant District Attorney Selvaggi of Kings County and detectives said that the fourteen had been involved in a bootlegging scheme and that Vicchio's death resulted from a row over the division of the spoils.

Vicchio, a well-dressed Italian who had no definite occupation, was standing at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in front of a small grocery store at Hicks and Degraw Streets, Brooklyn, a block from the scene of Cammello Ferraro's murder on Tuesday night. A seven-passenger automobile containing three men moved slowly south on Hicks Street into Degraw. Two of the men jumped out with pistols drawn and emptied their weapons at Vicchio, who dropped unconscious.

Witnesses said the car continued to travel slowly and that the two gunmen, after hesitating a moment to satisfy themselves that their mission had succeeded, ran after the car and leaped aboard, throwing their pistols into the gutter. The automobile disappeared east in Degraw Street.

Vicchio was taken to Long Island College Hospital with bullet wounds over the heart, in the right shoulder, in the right arm, in the left leg and two in his back. While surgeons probed for the missiles a squad of Italian detectives stood by in the hope Vicchio would recover consciousness and name his assailants. But he died at 2:30 o'clock without recovering his faculties.

Meanwhile the police combed Brooklyn's Italian section. They soon established Vicchio's identity, and in a garage, a block from the scene of the shooting, found an automobile which witnesses identified as the murder car.

The license plates showed that the car was owned by Gasteno Russo of 111 Harrison Street, the address of the garage. Detective Sergeant Clare of the Butler Street Station, in charge of the detectives, then learned from witnesses that Russo had been one of the three men in the automobile. A search for the man indicated that he had fled. A general alarm was sent out for him.

An hour or two after this discovery, detectives reported arrests from all over the Italian section. Russo, detectives said, was the leader of the bootlegging "ring," while Vicchio was only one of five men marked for death. They said he was to have been killed several days ago.

Seven of the fourteen men arrested were locked up in the Poplar Street station and seven in the Bergen Street station. All were charged with homicide and acting in concert in the murder of Vicchio.

They were Vincent Lararto, 28, a truckman, of 103 President Street; Salvatore Aline, 33, a chcauffeur, of 93 Monroe Street; James Biscedia, 21, a clerk, of 93 Poplar Street; Anthony Romeo, 21, a longshoreman, of 113 Union Street; Charles White, 29, a clerk, of 244 East Thirty-fifth Street, Brooklyn; Anthony Spinella, 25, a laborer, of 24 First Place; Daniel Metrucci, 27, a truckman, of 60 Coles Street; Dominick Cusumano, 36, a storekeeper, of 117 Harrison Street; Lorenzo Marato, 31, a laborer, of 54 Cheever Place; Munzio Reina, 56, a laborer, of 54 Cheever Place; Salvatore Samteso, 20, a laborer, of 71 Fourth Place; Salvatore Sauvone, 35, a laborer, of 151 Schermerhorn Street; Frank Lacorta, 27, a laborer, of 73 Fourth Place, and Guisseppe Colombo, 27, a laborer, of 73 Fourth Place.

It was said that the killing of Vicchio had no apparent connection with the murder of Ferrarox on Tuesday.

SEAPLANE OFF FOR RIO; LANDS AT MANTEO, N. C.

MANTEO, N. C., Aug. 17.—The giant seaplane, Sampaio Correia, in which Lieutenant Walter Hinton left Jamaica Bay, N. Y., this morning for Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, safely completed the first leg of its long flight this afternoon and landed here for the night.

The aviators passed beyond this point during the afternoon, hoping to make a longer flight on the first leg, but were forced to return because of squalls in Pamlico Sound. Strong head winds, they reported, were encountered all the way from New York. They expect to leave tomorrow for their next stoy, which probably will be Charleston.

The seaplane Sampaio Correia "took off" from the waters of Jamaica Bay in front of the Rockaway Naval Air Station at 7:20 yesterday morning, and started on the 8,400-mile flight to Brazil. The personnel of the party consisted of Walter Hinton, pilot; Dr. E. Pinto Martins, a Brazilian; John Wilhusen, mechanic; Thomas Baltzell, photographer, and George T. Bye, a newspaper man.

The actual getaway was made under difficulties, four unsuccessful efforts being made to rise. Returning to shore Hinton ordered 200 pounds of extra oil and several generators taken off the plane to lighten it. The Sampaio then mounted into the air.

The first stop after Charleston will be Port and Prince, Haiti, thence to Georgetown, rBitish Guiana and intermediary stops to Rio de Janeiro. Hinton expects t oreach Rio by Sept. 7th in time for the opening of the Brazilian Centennial Exposition.

DUMMY MURDER SCARE.

Coroner Responds to Telephone Call and Finds Body of Straw.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Somebody telephoned to Coroner Edward F. Fitzgerald here today that a body of a murdered man had been found near Armonk, about a mile from the spot where Clarence Peters was shot by Walter S. Ward. The Coroner, accompanied by Deputy Sheriffs Fred Ruscoe and Charles F. Lent and several reporters, made a fast motor run to Armonk. When they reached the hotel of William St. John on the State highway they learned that the find was only a straw dummy.

St. John said that George Nordman, employed in the city water works department, had rushed in and told him that a dead man was lying near a fence not far from the hotel. St. John hurried out and found a dummy fixed up in clever style, with streaks of red paint on the shirt front.

Window Cleaner Killed by Fall.

Frederick E. Becker, 30 years old, of 147 North Portland Avenue, Brooklyn, a window cleaner who neglected to bring his safety strap with him, went to work yesterday cleaning a window on the fourth floor of the American Lithograph Building at 35 East Nineteenth Street. He lost his footing and fell to the ground. He was dead when Dr. Chapman [illegible] Bellevue Hospital.

Bouquets on Ice

The lovely ferns that grow deep in the Northern woods and the shiny laurel of the Southern Blue Ridge Mountains are now being gathered and put into cold storage for your next winter's bouquets. If it weren't for the fact that Christmas ropes of laurel are made and stored in Summer, the price of greens at Christmas would be almost prohibitive. So ice not only reduces the cost of living by keeping foods fresh from the time of plenty to the time of scarcity, but gives us summer bouquets in winter at less than greenhouse products.

To keep your summer bouquets fresh and fragrant, drop a piece of sparkling Knickerbocker ice into the vase.

COURSE OF CUPID'S COURT TURNS ROUGH

7 MORE MATCHES REPORTED

Special to The New York Times.

HAMMONTON, N. J., Aug. 17.—Mrs. Helen Long Rodgers, who presided at yesterday's initial session of "Cupid's Court," designed to introduce spinsters and bachelors with the object of marriage, resigned today, and was followed by some of the jury. The owner of the local motion picture house also served notice upon Thomas B. Delker, editor and newspaper correspondent who originated the idea of the "court," that he could no longer permit the use of the theatre by the "Lovers' Co-operative Union."

The announcement of Mrs. Rodgers's resignation was made by her husband, O. C. Rodgers, a Hammonton jeweler. Mr. Rodgers said he thought the idea of a matrimonial "bureau" a foolish one. After her experience of yesterday Mrs. Rodgers agreed with her husband. Mrs. Clyde Smith, one of the jurors, said Mr. Delker had tried to persuade her to take the vacant rôle of Cupid, but in declining she reminded him that she was a grandmother. Lewis Samuel Conley, President of the union, added to Delker's troubles by saying that he could not spare the time to attend the court because the hunting season was close at hand.

Despite these defections, Mr. Delker declared that he would carry on his self-appointed mission. He said that if he couldn't get a theatre here he would try to get one either in Camden, Atlantic City or New York. An effort was made to hold a session this morning with three jurors present. According to Mr. Delker seven couples were matched, including a "Western saleslady, who makes $12,000 a year, to a Brooklyn salesman who wants to make his home in the West." In speaking of the action of the jury yesterday in arbitrarily bestowing a "daughter of old Kentucky," an 18-year-old girl who filled out one of Delker's questionnaires, upon the Secretary of the union himself, Delker said that he would appeal that award. He said he had a Brooklynite, a 23-year-old war veteran, in mind for the Kentucky girl.

If a place is obtained in the meantime, Delker said, the next session will be held on Thursday.

FOURTH MAN FIGURES IN MAIL ROBBERY TRIAL

The trial of George Anderson and Gerald Chapman on a charge of robbing a United States mail truck of cash and securities valued at $2,400,000, was continued yesterday in the Federal District Court before Judge Holmes with Frank Haverack, driver of the mail truck, again on the stand.

Haverack, who on Wednesday identified the prisoners as the ones who had boarded his truck at Broadway and Leonard Street, was asked if two months ago he had not picked out two other men as the robbers. He replied that he had been taken to a jail in Hoboken where he saw a man he partially identified.

"I told the inspector he looked like the second man who had pointed a revolver at me," Haverack said.

William Baker, attorney for Anderson, had the witness describe the man in the Jersey jail, then asked him if there was any similarity between the man and his client. The witness thought they resembled each other in several ways.

Mr. Baker developed that Haverack had made a complaint against the man in the Hoboken jail, swearing before a United States Commissioner that he was one of the participants in the robbery. Haverack denied knowledge that the man had been held in $50,000 bail at the time.

Henry F. Gurley of Harris, Forbes & Co., identified two bonds he had sent by registered mail to a customer in Shamokin, Pa. The trial will be continued this morning.

Porfiros Arrest a Mistake.

John S. Porfiros, who was arrested in connection with the Capitol Theatre robbery and exonerated after two months in prison, was not the driver of the car in which the bandits escaped, according to his counsel, Benjamin Weiss. Porfiros was arrested by mistake, according to the District Attorney's office.

"What motion-picture production needs today is an infiltration of new blood—new thoughts, new dreams, new ideas, new points of view—in short, a new imagination."—Photoplay Magazine

ANNOUNCEMENT

THE Palmer Photoplay Corporation announces that it will immediately enter the field of motion picture production. This extension of our service will be on terms that open wide to the public the closely guarded gates to screenland.

We shall produce, and release for exhibition in the theatres, the best photoplays of new creative genius and fresh imagination. It will be talent discovered and trained by the world's largest and most authoritative school of photoplay technique.

We shall share the proceeds of each production with its author, on a royalty basis which recognizes the just claim of creative effort to participate as long as the earnings continue. For the first time, the screen author will be raised to the same dignified level of professional compensation as the stage dramatist and novelist.

This constructive undertaking is intended—

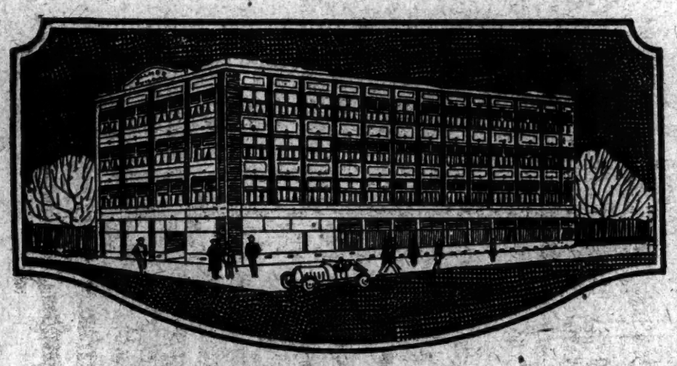
(1) To provide for the unknown writer, outside the gates, a greater opportunity than he has heretofore enjoyed; (2) To bring to the screen the drama which springs from the people themselves, who live it and create it, and who can best reflect it in the universal medium of graphic expression, the photoplay.

Our production enterprise is the logical culmination of a vision which inspired the founders of the Palmer Photoplay Corporation four years ago. Our search for fresh imagination for the screen has uncovered a gold mine of vital human drama. Our training has revealed the tremendous possibilities of creative imagination equipped with the technique of the screen interpretation.

Our institution has attracted the warm support of thoughtful, cultured men and women who realize, from the public's unerring point of view, what a mighty spiritual force the motion picture can and ought to become in the life of the whole world. They feel the urge to contribute something within them. They have shown their earnest purpose by enrolling in the Department of Education of the Palmer Photoplay Corporation.

Nearing completion in Hollywood is the new building which we shall occupy this autumn; the time is ripe to realize our dream. We shall now back, with finished productions, our faculty's judgment of talent—and our editors' judgment of photoplays. It is the hope of this organization of 250 earnest men and women that, through a medium which we have the honor to provide, the people shall acquire and permanently retain controlling influence in an art which peculiarly belongs to them; and that the author, whose story is the indispensable starting point of every picture, shall have a reward commensurate with his contribution.

The Palmer Photoplay Corporation will carry on with renewed vigor its nation-wide search for creative imagination and dramatic ability. It will continue to train properly qualified persons in the screen technique. Its Sales Department will continue to supply story material for those producers who have the vision to purchase screen stories on their merits. Our producing enterprise is merely an extension of our activities which does not alter our long established educational and story marketing policies.



The new building in Hollywood in course of construction for the Palmer Photoplay Corporation. It will be occupied this autumn.

THE HOMERIC BRINGS MANY VACATIONISTS

George F. Baker, Lindley M. Garrison and H. A. Gibbons Among Voyagers.

YACHT MEETS C. H. K. CURTIS

Many prominent Americans got home on the White Star liner Homeric, in yesterday from Southampton and Cherbourg. The vessel brought 364 first cabin passengers. Chief Electrician William McLaughlin of Liverpool died suddenly during the voyage.

Dr. Herbert Adams Gibbons, traveler and author, returned after six months spent abroad. He spent some time in Constantinople and he expressed the opinion that the Greeks eventually would enter that city under mandate, not as occupied territory. He met Lloyd George, Poincaré, the Pope and other leaders of Government in the countries he visited. He did not think France and England would get together as their aspirations and their opinions radically differ. England, he said, wants a market in Germany, while France seems intent upon crushing her old enemy.

George F. Baker, Chairman of the board of the First National Bank, was another passenger. He was away two months. Mr. Baker visited France, Italy and England. He would not discuss financial conditions on the other side.

Another returning traveler was former Secretary of War Lindley M. Garrison, Receiver for the B. R. T. Mrs. Garrison was with him. He expressed the opinion that Germany was trying to split the Allies and that it was time the United States took a hand to stop it. No matter how severe the results might appear to be, he said Germany should be held to her promises.

Mrs. Edwin C. Gould, her son Frank and Miss Fannie Cantine returned after a visit to France and England. They were met by Mr. Gould and went to the Gould home at Ardsley.

The steam yacht Lysonia was waiting yesterday morning at Quarantine to welcome Cyrus H. K. Curtis of Philadelphia, who, with Mrs. Curtis, returned from a trip to London and Paris. After their baggage had been examined, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis boarded their yacht from the pier. Mr. Curtis said Clemenceau told him that, while America had aided France in the war, we had failed to finish the task. Mr. Curtis said France seemed to be well off financially. He said that many capitalists in Great Britain were bitter against Lloyd George, and the Directors of fourteen corporations had met and decided it was time for him to go.

Dr. John D. Stewart of 36 West Fifty-ninth Street, and Mrs. Stewart, who is Mme. Olga Petrova on the stage, made the round trip on the Homeric. While the vessel was in drydock on the other side Dr. Stewart and his wife visited Spain. They went to their Summer home at Great Neck.

Anna Mullen of 419 West Seventeenth Street and Catherine Fleming of 423 West Seventeenth Street, two little girls who went aboard the Majestic just before she sailed from here to see the swimming pool, and who were carried to sea, got home on the Homeric. Catherine is 13 and Anna 14. Their experiences included visiting a fair in Southampton and of having seen all the sights of that place. Both agreed they would not "do it" again and that they liked New York best. The passengers made much of them on the trip over and back. Catherine wore a black dress given her by the passengers on the Majestic. In addition there was enough left of the fund collected to give them spending money. They also received fruit and dainties from their fellow voyagers. Both traveled in the steerage.

Frank O'Malley, a writer, Mrs. O'Malley and their two children, returned. Hubert Stowitts, former dancing partner of Anna Pavlowa, returned after spending the Summer in Spain studying the dances of the Spanish gypsies.

Rev. Frederick E. Mortimer, rector of St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal Church, Jersey City, returned from his fifty-fifth crossing, having visited friends in London, Yorkshire and Brighton. Others on board were the Rt. Rev. John T. O'Connell, Mrs. Marjorie Oelrichs and her daughter, C. B. Pingree, Mrs. Wynne Smith, Nathaniel Thayer, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Grace and Colonel Stephen Slocum.

SAYS 300,000 FEDERAL AIDS OPPRESS PUBLIC

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 17.—The present governmental policy seems to be a race between the two parties as to which will outdo the other in interfering with personal initiative, said former Governor E. C. Stokes, Republican State Chairman, in an address before the Rotary Club here today. He charged that business activities had become opportunities for the speculation of political adventurers.

"The tendency of government today is toward interference with private affairs, and a parental regulation of life even to questions of maternity," said Mr. Stokes, "and the extent of this movement is little appreciated.

"Senator Poraker once lamented that in ten years Government agents had increased from 167 to 3,000. Today 300,000 would not cover the number. There is a Government sleuth at almost every business man's elbow. If Senator Stanley is correct, there are over a hundred commissions for the regulation of individual activities, and in ten years they have spent $7,000,000 of the taxpayers' money to do what the people themselves could do better and more economically.

"The movement will not stop with the railroads, with the public utilities, with the meat packers, with the coal industries, but unless checked it will sweep like a forest fire through every activity until individual initiative and ambition are destroyed by the straight-jacketing of individual effort. Every day life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, as vouchsafed in the Declaration of Independence, are ceasing to be inalienable rights."

NEW KIND OF MOSQUITO RUINS BALTIC SEASON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—The whole Baltic seacoast of Germany is suffering from a most disagreeable plague of rainy weather, which has driven large numbers of visitors back home again long before the end of their holidays. But it has done something worse. Behind the Baltic's fashionable seaside resorts the whole country is flat and swampy. The swamps have been greatly enlarged by heavy rain and in them illions and millions of a new kind of mosquito have come to life. In their swarms these insects have invaded the seaside towns and life there has become misery.

This insect is not the ordinary mosquito but is thought to be a cross between a sort of midge and a mosquito. Its bite is a fierce one and can cause sufficient pain and inconvenience to send its victim to bed. It has none of the agility of the ordinary mosquito in avoiding the avenging hand, but the insects come in such numbers that the ease with which they are slaughtered avails little. Chemists are doing an enormous trade in all sorts of embrocations to prevent or cure bites. A queue is to be seen outside every chemist's shop all day long.

Nearly everybody is so badly bitten that bathing is scarcely indulged in at all. Women are not wearing bathing dresses and as the new mosquito has a weakness for feet and ankles, the dancing halls are almost deserted. Only a painfully slow dance called the "mosquito shimmy" is at all popular.

The Scenarist's Revenge.

Paul Dickey and Mann Page are the authors of the moderately amusing farce called "Lights Out," which came last night to the Vanderbilt, where late those uppity girls, Anna Christie and Fanny Hawthorne, held sway. When the guileless young man trots into the play with a satchel full of unaccepted movie scenarios which he has tried to insure for a half million, you feel pretty sure that the authors did their work in the flush of their first amusement at "Merton of the Movies," but thereafter the piece veers off on a tack of its own.

It then becomes a fairly conventional crook farce, with pistols flourished, detectives baffled and casual glimpses of the underworld. It derives most of its excitement and laughter from its original notion of having an accomplice in a celebrated bank robbery lend his inside information to a scenario writer, so that the thieves are thereby run to earth, but the police are never quite sure which were the thieves and which the scenario writers.

So good an actor as Robert Ames is wasted on such folderol, and, indeed, the happiest contributions are made by some of the lesser people of the theatre, who have only casual moments in the farce's unfolding. G. Henry Gordon and Lorin Raker, for instance, are excellent, and by all odds the most amusing fellow on the Vanderbilt stage at present is one Sam Janney, who hasn't a word to say and need only enter twice and look cryptic. It should be said of Mr. Janney that no one ever looked quite so cryptic before.

DANISH PRINCESS GETS CONSENT TO MARRY

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 17.—The National Tidende learns that King Christian has given permission for the early marriage of his sister, Princess Dagmar, to Lieutenant Castenskjold, formerly of the Guards, who only recently returned to Denmark after a two years' stay in Alaska.

Princess Dagmar is the youngest of the brothers and sisters of King Christian. She was born at Charlottenlund, May 28, 1890.

CONFESSES KILLING A MAN.

Brooklyn Slayer Gives Himself Up in Bridgeport.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 17.—As Police Officer Thomas Cafferty was entering headquarters this afternoon he was accosted by a man giving his name as Edward Young, who said that he wanted the officer to arrest him, as he had killed a man in Brooklyn on Wednesday night. Young confessed the shooting in detail. He said Orlando had cut him with a knife about two weeks ago. Last Wednesday night, he said, Orlando put his hand in his pocket as though to draw a pistol, whereupon Young killed him.

James Orlando, 20, of 327 Jackson Street, Brooklyn, was shot and killed by an unidentified assassin on Wednesday night at Humboldt and Skillman Streets, Brooklyn. He was shot in the left breast and died in an automobile on the way to Greenpoint Hospital. Orlando was with several young men when a man approached them, shoved several of the others aside and aimed a pistol at Orlando. Neither said a word so far as the police could learn. The slayer fired one shot only and then fled.

Yesterday one of the witnesses told the police that the murderer was Edward Young, alias Si Young, Hooker and Young Ritchie. The police were told that there had been enmity between Orlando and Young over a girl.

VETERANS INVITE WILSON.

Asked to Attend Reunion of 78th Division in Atlantic City.

Former President Woodrow Wilson has been invited to attend the reunion of the Seventy-eighth (Lightning) Division, to be held in Atlantic City Sept. 30 and Oct. 1. "There is now no glory of marching armies, but your need is still felt," the telegram said.

HEARST LINES SMITH AND CONSERVATIVES

me this year whether or not I will support him, nor has he said whether he will support the nominee of the convention, whoever that may be.

"Under the circumstances there does not seem to be any necessity for me to make any declaration of the attitude of myself and my papers until the convention meets and nominates. It may take a conservative stand and nominate Mr. Smith; it may take a progressive stand and nominate Mr. Hylan. Furthermore, I do not think too much discussion of personalities among Democrats at this time is desirable. The party seems to me to have an excellent chance of winning in this election if it takes the good, sound Democratic ground of honest service to the public.

"Therefore the less personal discussion and personal dissension there is the better for the party and the better for the public, which sorely needs honest and faithful service from some party.

Would Run on Hylan Ticket.

"2. You asked me if in the event of Mr. Smith's nomination for Governor would I accept the nomination for United States Senator on the same ticket. Let me say positively that I am not a candidate and that I would not accept such a nomination under any ordinary circumstances. There is, however, one condition on which I would accept such a nomination, and that is in case Mayor Hylan were nominated for Governor and he should wish me to run in some capacity on the ticket.

"Under those circumstances I would run for any office he wished, or would do anything within my power that was believed to be for the benefit of the ticket and that might help in any way toward its success. Left, however, to my mere personal preference I certainly would not run.

"3. You ask if William J. Conners is acting with my authority and sanction. Mr. Conners is a very able man, a wealthy man and an absolutely independent man. He is acting entirely on his own initiative. He is, however, one of the most loyal men in the world and one of the best friends any man could possibly have. I want to be just as good a friend to him as he is to me and just as loyal to him as he is to me. Therefore, whatever he does is right, so far as I am concerned.

"I do not agree with him about the desirability of my running for office and I do firmly believe that in the last analysis I will find Mr. Conners with me in support of Mayor Hylan for the Governorship. But Mr. Conners is entitled to his opinion, and I am deeply complimented by his good opinion and his fine friendship. I am firm in my admiration and appreciation of Mr. Conners. He does not want my authority and sanction for anything he does, but if he did want it he could have it. He is my friend and I am his, and my cardinal principle is to stand by my friends.

Hearst On a Third Party.

"4. You ask me if I think the nomination of Mr. Smith by the Democrats and Mr. Miller by the Republicans would necessitate the creation of a third party. This is something I know nothing about. I should think as a general political proposition it would be wise to give the progressive sentiment, which is apparently very strong at this time throughout the whole country, some avenue of expression in order to prevent the formation of a third party.

"But I feel confident that that avenue of expression will be furnished by one or the other of the existing parties. In many States—like Pennsylvania, Indiana, Iowa and North Dakota—the progressives are gaining control of the Republican machine. In this State I think they should, and I believe they will find their natural home in the Democratic Party under such leadership as Mayor Hylan's.

"This is a progressive period. Any one who does not realize that cannot read the handwriting on the wall. For my part, I have not deviated one jot from the position I took at the beginning of this campaign. I am for the nomination of Mayor Hylan on the Democratic ticket and for Major LaGuardia on the Republican ticket. If either party has the intelligence and the conscience with the powerful progressive sentiment existing throughout the country at this time, it will nominate such an able and sincere representative of that progressive sentiment as each one of these men has proved himself to be. I believe that the party which does make this appeal to the progressive sentiment and to the popular interest will win the election. That is my personal opinion as a progressive Democrat."

Mayor Hylan, upon reading Mr. Hearst's statement, lost no time in declaring himself a "progressive" Democrat.

"Mr. Hearst says he would be willing to become a running mate of yours on the State ticket in the event you are nominated for Governor," Mayor Hylan was informed.

Hylan Says He Would Not Accept.

"I have just read Mr. Hearst's statement with great care," replied the Mayor. "The article speaks for itself. I will not under any circumstances accept a nomination on the State ticket. The people elected me, or hired me by the election, and I am under contract to serve them for four years. The people of the State have determined that this is the accepted time that the Government of the State be taken from the hands of the corporate interests and restored to the hands of the people, where it properly belongs. Mr. Hearst should be commended for making a fight along this line."

The Mayor was asked if he would support the nominee of the Democratic State Convention.

"I am a regular Democrat," he replied quickly.

"Mr. Hearst indicates that if the progressives of New York State do not receive proper representation there may be a third ticket," the Mayor was reminded.

"I am a progressive," the Mayor replied quickly.

"Do you believe Mr. Smith, if nominated, could defeat the Republican nominee?"

"That's for the people of the State to determine," said the Mayor as he disappeared.

Pro-State sentiment in favor of Mr. Smith's nomination continued to crystallize yesterday. Reports came from many sources that Mr. Smith was acceptable to the Democratic organization. From Oneida County came word that Mr. Smith's announcement had completely demolished whatever Hearst sentiment had existed there. County Chairman August Merrill announced he would support Smith.

TALE OF CHAMPAGNE SETS COURT ATHIRST

Diamond Marty Kline Tells Why He Stopped Check After Spending $20,000 in Restaurant.

In the sweltering air of the West Side Court yesterday, sopping men with parched throats listened to a tale of popping corks and sparkling bubbles that might have come out of the roaring Forties in the days before soda water became the national hot weather drink. Instead it was a story of the present, and those cascading rivers of cooling champagne were alleged to have flowed within a weak stone's throw of Columbus Circle long after Mullan, Gage and Volstead got on the job.

The tale was told by an indignant man whose full name is John Martin Kline, but who, by reason of his jewels and his hospitality, is known affectionately to Broadway as Diamond Marty. He is a real estate broker, with theatrical leanings, living at the Hotel Hamilton, 142 West Seventy-third Street, and he appeared before Magistrate Simpson on a charge of having given a check for $200 on which he subsequently stopped payment. He was arrested several days ago on complaint of Harry Reichenbach, headwaiter at the Paradise, formerly Reisenweber's, at Fifty-eighth Street and Eighth Avenue. Flanked by his lawyer, Joseph H. Rosenbach, Kline appeared, ready to tell his troubles. Reichenbach failed to appear to press the charge. But Magistrate Simpson became so interested in Kline's revelations that he ordered a subpoena issued for the headwaiter and set the case for a hearing today.

Kline said that within the past three months he had entertained in the Paradise to the extent of more than $20,000. He asked no one to take his word for it and produced the canceled checks. He even disclosed something as to the indiscriminate quality of his hospitality, mentioning that he had entertained David Lamar, the "Wolf of Wall Street," and two Judges. But he wasn't treated right, Kline said. Friends told him that waiters were taking whole quarts of champagne out of his supper room—quarts he had paid for, too. That was just cause for indignation. He would retaliate. Therefore he paid that latest reckoning, as usual, with a check for $200, but he was going to teach those people that a couple of experiences along the Rialto couldn't be "topped" by any waiter. He stopped payment.

Kline added that when his answer had cooled he settled the whole row for $150. He exhibited a receipt from the treasurer of the restaurant which, he said, verified his assertion that there had been a compromise.

MURPHY AND KOENIG IN DEAL ON TICKET

Governor and vigorous opposition springing up, the bill died in committee. Cohalan heard at that time that Murphy's opposition had killed the bill, and calling upon Murphy at Tammany Hall one day, Cohalan asked the Tammany leader why he had opposed it.

"What concern is it of yours?" Murphy is alleged to have remarked, and turned on his heel and left Cohalan.

"You will find out during the next nine years what concern it is of mine, and besides, you can go to hell," Cohalan is said to have replied as he walked out of Tammany Hall. It is said that Cohalan has never set foot within Tammany Hall since that time. Murphy was greatly incensed at Cohalan and it is said to have remarked that it would cost Cohalan a renomination. Cohalan replied to the threats with the prediction that Murphy would never last as leader long enough to wreak his vengeance.

The trouble thus begun between Murphy and Cohalan is said to have made no difference with the latter in the matter of appointments for Tammany has been well taken care of by the Surrogate. As proof of this it was pointed out that among the appointments made by Cohalan were those of John F. Curry, a Tammany leader, as Commissioner of Records in the Surrogate's office at $7,000 a year; David Lazarus, another leader, as Deputy Commissioner at $6,000; Thomas F. Smith, Secretary of Tammany Hall, a Public Administrator at $10,000 a year; James J. Frawley, as Deputy Administrator at $5,500; ex-Senator Martin G. McCue, as Special Deputy Clerk at $6,000, and James O. Farrell, as Private Secretary. This last appointment was demanded by Murphy himself.

Leader Never Forget His Threat.

During all this time Murphy is said never to have forgotten the threat he made that Cohalan should not have a renomination. In this determination he faced the probability that the Republicans would endorse Cohalan following the unwritten law that a candidate for judicial office whose record was good was entitled to a renomination. At one time, it was said, the Republicans intended to endorse Mr. Cohalan, following the action of the Bar Association and the demand of lawyers in general that he be kept in office.

But Murphy is said to have seized upon the desire of certain Republicans to have Morris Koenig kept on the General Sessions bench as his opportunity to have the Republicans carry out his wish to have Cohalan dropped. If a deal was made, it is stated, last night it was made several days ago, as petitions to have Mr. Cohalan designated by the Republicans were in circulation. After Murphy made his alleged agreement with the Republicans he is said to have been suspicious and to have demanded that the Republicans take action on the Surrogate matter before the Tammany Executive Committee met. At any rate the Republican Executive Committee met Wednesday afternoon and produced its slate with Judge Coleman of the Ninth Municipal Court designated for the nomination for Surrogate. Wednesday night the Tammany Executive Committee met and designated Corporation Counsel O'Brien.

De Ford May Succeed O'Brien.

It was learned yesterday that William R. Hearst will name the successor to the Corporation Counsel after Mr. O'Brien retires. The appointment will be made, of course, by Mayor Hylan, but Hearst is said to have picked William A. De Ford for the place. Mr. De Ford is private counsel to Mr. Hearst, and is his ablest political lieutenant since the death of L. J. O'Reilly.

There are indications that Judge Koenig may not have a walk-over, although he has been designated by both the Republicans and Tammany. Governor Miller last year appointed both Mr. Koenig and Robert S. Johnstone to the General Sessions bench. Johnstone is a Democrat, and it was expected that he would be indorsed by Tammany. The Republicans did designate him, but he was turned down by Tammany in favor of Justice Cornelius F. Collins of the Court of Special Sessions. Mr. Johnstone's friends urged him yesterday to make a fight in the Democratic primary. If he decides to do so he has a chance of defeating Judge Koenig, for Tammany voters will be confronted with the alternative of voting for a Democrat or a Republican.

Several of Surrogate Cohalan's friends met last night at the Hotel Commodore, but although they expressed their indignation at Murphy's action, and suggestions were made that a non-partisan lawyers' committee be appointed to induce him to run in the primaries, no action was taken. Other meetings are expected to be held.

NEW FIGHT ON VARDAMAN.

Both He and Stephens Seek Miss Kearney's Mississippi Vote.

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 17.—Campaign managers for former United States Senator James K. Vardaman, who, on the face of available unofficial returns, gained a plurality but failed to obtain a majority in Tuesday's Democratic primary, and Hubert D. Stephens, who will oppose Vardaman in the "run-off," perfected their plans today for a second campaign to obtain endorsement as the party nominee for United States Senator to succeed John Sharp Williams.

Statements issued from the headquarters of the two candidates expressed confidence of drawing to their support the vote given Miss Belle Kearney, who ran third in the race.

Miss Kearney thus far has issued no statement to indicate that she will ask her supporters to favor either candidate. It was conceded that much of her support was from women who voted in a State primary this year for the first time.

Under the State law the second primary will be held Sept. 5.

Unofficial returns from the six Congressional Districts in which there were contests indicated the renomination by substantial majorities of Representatives E. D. Lowrey in the Second District, Percy E. Quin in the Seventh and J. W. Collier in the Eighth, but the probable defeat of Representative T. U. Sisson in the Fourth and a close race in the Fifth between Representative Ross Collins and Floyd Loper. Representative Sisson ran second to Jeff Busby of Houston in a four-cornered race, with Busby maintaining a lead which his supporters insist will give him the nomination. In the Fifth District newspaper dispatches today unofficially gave Collins a majority.

CANADA STILL AFTER PAPER.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Aug. 17.—Another wild scramble for pulp and paper securities occurred in the Montreal stock market today. Trading assumed large proportions, and advances at times were almost spectacular.

Brompton advanced to 58, up nearly 3 points; Wayagamack rose sharply to 60¾, up 3½; St. Maurice A to 80¼, Smith to 55¾, Laurentide to 96, Abitibi to 65, Spanish River to 102½ and the preferred to 107, Price Brothers to 46¾, all new high records on the advance.

The situation on the street today is that practically all else is being neglected, and were it not for the papers, it is doubtful if the stock market would be worth keeping open.

ALONSO PULLS LOST MATCH FROM FLAME

PATTERSON EASY VICTOR

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17.—Benefiting by one of the most extraordinary uphill battles ever waged in Davis Cup tennis history, the Spanish team broke even with the Australians this afternoon at the Germantown Cricket Club, Manheim, in the opening matches of the final round of the tournament to decide the challenger of the United States. Manuel Alonso, the greatest player Spain ever produced, was responsible for keeping his team in the running. He snatched a victory over Pat O'Hara Wood out of the very jaws of defeat in a manner dramatic enough to delight the soul of the fiery Latin he is. He proved himself one of the truly great players of the world in his triumph by scores of 2—6, 8—3, 6—2, 8—6, 6—1.

This was by all odds the better match of the two. Gerald L. Patterson, captain of the Australian trio, fired the opening gun for his team and defeated Count Manuel de Gomar in three straight sets, 6—3, 8—6, 6—4. This match was raggedly played and Patterson will have to reveal stronger tennis than he showed today if he is to defeat Alonso in the concluding singles test on Saturday. It looks very much as though there would be an even division of the four singles matches, so that tomorrow's doubles test is likely to decide the series. Patterson and Wood are naturally the favorites in the doubles over Alonso and de Gomar. But their victory is far from being a foregone conclusion.

Footfault Is Costly.

One little footfault by Mrs. O'Leary's cow started the Chicago fire, according to a disputed tradition, and one little footfault by O'Hara Wood robbed him of what would have been the most gloriously earned victory of his tennis career. Fiction could hardly have invented a more curious twist of fortune.

Wood had the match apparently actually won. He was leading two sets to one and, in the fourth set, the games stood 5-2 in his favor. Wood was serving the eighth game. The tally stood 40-30 in his favor. Straight down the centre line winged the ball at rifle shot speed. Alonso could not even get his bat on it. It was as perfect a service ace as ever left a racket. On the face of things, it ended the match in Wood's favor.

But Paul W. Gibbons of the Germantown Club, who was serving as footfault judge, had seen the flash of Wood's foot across the service line, a fraction of a second before he heard the ping of the ball against the racket. It was an ungrateful task he had to perform, but he did it courageously. He called the footfault and thus, as it transpired, changed the entire course of the match.

The incident plainly threw Wood off his game. Also it encouraged Alonso to glimpse an opening to salvage what looked like a hopelessly gone match. Wood sent one glance of indignation in the direction of Gibbons and muttered his expostulation. Then he returned to the task of trying to do it over again, while the Spanish champion began grimly to work to retrieve the irretrievable. Julling brands out of the burning seemed a light and genial occupation in comparison with what confronted the Spaniard. Yet he did it. Miracle as it was, he accomplished it.

Again, in the ninth game of the match, Wood needed but one more point for the victory. Again he led at 40—30, and this time he drove out of court off service. Alonso took the remaining points of the game on errors. It was wonderful how steadily and beautifully the Spaniard played and with what courageous determination when defeat was not only dogging his footsteps but fairly scraping his heels.

Wood started this most eventful of sets by breaking through Alonso's service in a game in which Umpire Hoskins called deuce no less than seven times. Then Alonso won a counter-break, but Wood took the next four games in a row, the fifth and sixth with Alonso at love. Thus Wood led two sets to one and 5—1 in the fourth.

Faced Situation Nervily.

It was a situation that might have disheartened the boldest, but it did not daunt the Spaniard. Any one who contends it is the Anglo-Saxon rather than the Latin who fights his hardest when the odds are heaviest against him would do well to consider the case of Alonso. He pulled himself out of one desperate situation after another through deuce games in which the slightest failing of eye or arm or nerve meant the loss of the match. He has heart, this temperamental Spaniard, heart and sturdy courage and daring, as well as brilliant skill.

After Alonso had drawn up to 5—all, with the foot-fault decision pulling him out of the deepest hole from which a tennis player ever climbed to victory and the count had gone to 6—all, Alonso won the thirteenth game to love on a passing shot and three errors and finished the set in the fourteenth after Wood, struggling bravely all the time, had lost a lead of 40—15. Twice Wood might have saved the game, but again fortune perched on the banners of the Spaniard. Both times Wood drove and missed sure-fire placement aces by the merest inch or two. Alonso took the game and the set after the second deuce on a net and an out.

That set really decided the match. Any one who could stage a comeback like Alonso's, losing the first two sets and then fighting his way to a level count as he did, could not be denied the fruits of his labor. The tide had set definitely in his favor after the fourth set and he played out the fifth and last with full measure of confidence, while Wood, though he was always gamely playing his best, could not discount the effects of the depressing breaks of the contest. Alonso took the last set in seven games, finishing it in a love game in which Wood made four errors in a row.

Wood played such tennis through the match as made it perfectly understandable how he has been able to defeat Patterson on occasions. In fact, his tennis was better rounded and more effective than his famous team-mate's today. He is a splendid volleyer, and, while not possessed of Patterson's heavy service or spectacular overhead shots, he is always decisive in his finishing shots, and in his strokes off the ground, especially off backhand, is far more dependable than Patterson.

Keyed Up to High Pitch.

Alonso is a bundle of fiery energy. He is slight of figure, so that one wonders sometimes whence comes his power. He is extremely nervous and addresses himself in quaint protestations when his shots are miscuing. He amused the gallery this way. Once while he was making his big fight in the fourth set, with every nerve on edge, Wood kept him waiting a minute or two between games and the Spaniard paced back and forth along his baseline with the impatience of a caged lion.

Alonso's strokes uphold the reputation they have earned him in Europe. He is a good deal of a stylist, and his drives and volleys are executed in beautiful form with perfect footwork and follow through. His backhand is excellent, and his handling of volleys, whether they come to him above his shoulder or below while not irresistibly forceful, is still finally positive and effective. His places admirably, and his manoeuvring for the openings reflects a wide awake mind and sound judgment. He knows the fine points of the game as thoroughly as any one.

Alonso's service is his most unusual asset. It is a good and effective delivery with a high bound and a sharp break, and he controls it well. But considerable wasted motion goes into the preliminaries of it. He winds up like a temperamental pitcher. He has four or five separate motions before he connects with the ball. But he gets his back into it and it travels fast.

Patterson's Play Indifferent.

Patterson crushed de Gomar beneath the weight of his powerful service and smashing. But apart from these two assets he played indifferent tennis. His ground strokes were wabbly and some of his errors at the net were inexcusable. He netted easy returns on the volley more than once. His backhand drive shows no improvement, except that he rarely scoops and rushes the ball back as he used to. The form is better, but there is no attacking force in his backhand. At his baseline, Patterson made several clean misses of shots that should have offered him no trouble at all.

In justice to the big Australian, it should be added, however, that he is playing under a severe physical handicap. He has a sore shoulder and his leg injury sustained in Boston has not yet healed. That he is playing at all is evidence of his pluck and gameness and sportsmanship.

De Gomar has the splendid form in making his shots that so many Europeans acquire, but his game is too soft to do much execution in top-notch circles. He makes many errors off his back hand and he has no finishing spurs to write home to Madrid about. He is at his best at his base line, and he caught Patterson a number of times on beautifully directed passing shots. He volleys well, but not forcefully enough. He was evidently unused to any such speed as Patterson employed in his service.

Slashing Service Settles It.

Patterson scored no less than seventeen service aces in the three sets, and the fact that he made eleven double faults is explained by his willingness to apply as much pace to his second ball as to his first. He made service his one big weapon, and it won the match for him. When he was not scoring aces on it, he was achieving immediate position for a kill of a soft return.

Besides the Davis Cup doubles match, Tilden and Richards, national doubles champions, who are practicing here for the defense of their title next week at Boston, will play an exhibition match tomorrow afternoon against Samuel Hardy and Wallace F. Johnson.

CLEVELAND CAN'T SEND MAN

Tennis Association Won't Finance Title Aspirant.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 19.—If Cleveland is to have a representative in the national lawn tennis championship in singles at Philadelphia next month the player will have to "go on his own." The local tennis clubs have no funds to send even one player. The Cleveland Associated Tennis Club's finances were hard hit when that organization suffered a loss of $300 in promoting the intercity tennis tournament.

There is some talk among the tennis enthusiastsa of Cleveland Heights of sending Malcolm Rees, the junior district champion, to the national junior championship at Boston. If he goes it will be at the expense of individuals who play on the Cleveland Heights and St. Ann courts. It is possible that Kirk Reid may be in Philadelphia on business during the week of the tournament, in which case he may compete in the national classic.

H. P. Whitney Offers $100,000 To Belmont for Messenger

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Still another huge price has been offered for a race horse, this being a season for high figures on the turf. Harry Payne Whitney is the bidder this time and he has made an offer of $100,000 to August Belmont for the two-year-old chestnut colt, Messenger, which yesterday won the Grab Bag Handicap. This colt is by Fair Play, out of Mission, by Rock Sand, and is a half-brother of Man o' War. Mr. Belmont left for New York yesterday evening and is expected back here tomorrow afternoon or Saturday morning, when he may make known his decision. Experts declare that Messenger is as promising as Man o' War was, and Louis Feustel, who has trained both horses, is as enthusiastic over Messenger as he used to be over the champion. If the purchase goes through, the colt will fill his racing engagements and afterward be placed in the Brookdale stud.

KELLEHER'S STEADY TENNIS BEATS NILES

He Downs Veteran in Newport Tourney, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3, and Enters Final With Johnston.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 17.—Hugh Kelleher today reached the climax of a week of splendidly consistent tennis when he defeated Nathaniel W. Niles, 7—5, 3—6, 6—3, in the semi-final round of the invitation tournament at the Casino. He will contest the final tomorrow with William M. Johnston, who came easily through the upper half of the draw at the expense of Howard Kinsey, 6—3, 6—2.

The doubles teams to reach the semi-finals were Williams and Washburn, Davis and Voshell, Niles and Cochet and the Kinsey brothers. They meet in that order tomorrow, with the final round scheduled for Saturday.

Niles and his partner eliminated the French double team, Gobert and Borotra, 6—4, 7—5. The Kinseys dropped a set to Harry Johnson and the Australian Wortheim, while Davis and Voshell were carried through two long deuce sessions by C. M. Bull Jr. and Walter Wesbrook. Williams and Washburn were also extended to defeat Neer and Davies.

Hugh Kelleher's game is a deceptive one with sound but not showy strokes, and its best efforts seem always to be preserved for the pinches. His service is not graceful, starting with a back swing and then hunching rather awkwardly to the proper elevation, but it is sufficiently fast and well placed, with unusual freedom from double faults. His ground strokes are not as free as those of Niles, but today they attained distinctly greater accuracy. He has good volleys when he needs them, and in general his judgment is exceedingly good.

His Strength Underrated.

It is just the game to beat any one who is a trifle below form, as it wastes few opportunities and keeps the ball coming back with irritating persistence. That is the chief reason why Kelleher has beaten Philip Neer, Willis Davis and Nathaniel Niles in succession this week at Newport. They all underrated him a little, for his tennis is seldom pretty and never spectacular. It just happens to get there.

Today it was the same old story. It was very hot in front of the tarred and feathered grandstand (depending on whether you looked at that or the hats under it) and Niles did not seem inclined to work harder than was necessary in the opening set. Both players wore white hats to keep off the sun and soak up perspiration, and Niles played comfortably and easily up to a lead of 5—3. Then he lost his own service, largely through carelessness, and in a few moments Kelleher had tied up the set. The latter broke through again for a 6—5 lead, and before Niles could gather his powers of resistance the set was gone at 7—5.

The Bostonian did not yet this reverse affect him, however, and ran ahead quickly in the second to a lead of 3—0, eventually taking the set, 6—3, by simply winning on service.

Kelleher Gets Three Love Games.

When Kelleher lost his own delivery on a double fault and other errors, to start the rubber, a Nines victory seemed in sight. But right there a sudden panic seemed to seize the bespectacled player. He dropped a love game on his own service, with Kelleher cleanly outplacing him, and then four more straight points made it 2—1 for the dark horse. Another love game against his own service found Nides going complete to pieces—three games in a row without a single point to his credit. Then Kelleher made the mistake of trying to hurry matters by rushing in behind his own service. As a result Niles passed him repeatedly and took the game which should have saved the match for the veteran.

But the stage was now set for some read pinch hitting, and a wonderful recovery in the extreme corner of the court helped Kelleher through to another break for a 5—4 lead. He made it 5—2 with the help of a net-cord shot and a clean ace down the centre line.

Then Niles took off his hat and got to work in earnest. But it was too late. He won a love game on service without great opposition and had the winning edge in the next. Wiping his glasses did not help Niles, however, and after several errors he brought up the match point by hitting out of court. With Kelleher crowding him and all set for a final volley, Niles then netted an ordinary ground-stroke and completed his own downfall at 6—3.

Johnston Is Not Extended.

Johnston did not have to reach his limits against Howard Kinsey, whose rather soft game is a set-up for the former champion. Kinsey's short chops invited Johnston to his favorite net position and his powers of anticipation resulted in deadly volleys once he had been drawn in. A heavily topped drive, which Kinsey tried more often than usual, came up like a balloon, and Johnston usually murdered it off his forehand.

It was a case of too much speed and steadiness for a game whose success depends largely on the other man's mistakes, and the set went quickly to Johnston at 6—3, 6—2.

Niles played the best tennis of the quartet when he teamed up with Cochet against the other two Frenchmen, but all three of the visitors showed better form than in their earlier matches.

Johnson and Wortheim surprised the Kinseys when they ran away with the opening set, and the Boston man proved himself again a first class doubles player. But the team work of the Californians told its story for the rest of the match, both of the remaining sets being scored at 6—4, for the family team.

The summaries:

Newport Invitation Singles—Semi-final round: William M. Johnston defeated Howard Kinsey 6—3, 6—2; Hugh G. M. Kelleher defeated Nathaniel W. Niles 7—5, 3—6, 6—3.

Doubles—Third round: Kinsey and Kinsey defeated H. C. Johnston and Wertheim 4—6, 6—4, 6—4; Niles and Cochet defeated Gobert and Borotra 6—4, 7—5; Davis and Voshell defeated Bull and Wesbrook 13—11, 7—5; Williams and Washburn defeated Neer and Davis, 6—4, 7—5.

BARNES WINS ON TRACK.

Leads Beagan and Bayer in 1,000-Yard Run in St. Anselm Meet.

The St. Anselm Athletic Club held a track and field meet for members at Macombs Dam Park yesterday afternoon. The featured event was a 1,000-yard handicap run. It resulted in one of the most interesting races and one of the closest finishes of the outdoor season. The three runners who started from scratch finished in a bunch with John Barnes the winner by a matter of a few inches over Charles Beagan, the junior national indoor champion, with Harold Bayer third. The time was 2:27 4-5. Beagan led all the way until the last turn, when Barnes challenged him and finally nosed him out.

The summaries:

100-Yard Dash, Handicap—Won by Dan O'Reilly (8 yards); John Mitchell (scratch), second; George Nevins (2 yards), third. Time—0:10 2-5.

440-Yard Run, Handicap—Won by George Nevins (4 yards); Harry Anderson (16 yards), second; Jack SweSweeney (16 yards), third. Time—0:52 2-5.

JERSEY CHAMPIONS ARE EASY VICTORS

Defeat of Misses Bancroft and Bayard an Upset in Women's Tennis Championship.

One upset marked the doubles play in the women's national tennis championship tournament on the courts of the West Side Club at Forest Hillls yesterday. This occurred in the third round when Miss Marie Wagner of New York and Miss Clare Cassel of Elberon, N. J., doubles champions of the Skeeter State, eliminated Miss Leslie Bancroft of Boston and Miss Martha Bayard of Short Hills, N. J., in straight sets. The scores were 6—4, 6—2.

The team work of the victorious pair was far superior to that of the losers and this coupled with some bad tennis on the part of Miss Bancroft, who ordinarily should have been the star of the quartet, decided the issue. Miss Bancroft again showed that she is weakest off her backhand and netted many a ball played from that side.

Another feature of the day was the playing of Miss Helen Wills and her partner, Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, the metropolitan doubles champions, who entered the semi-final bracket by scoring a double for the day. Their first opponents were Miss Marguerite Davis of St. Paul and Mrs. William Shedden. They disposed of them in handy fashion, 6—4, 6—0, and then came back to the courts in the afternoon to outplay Mrs. George Chapman and Miss Marion Chapman of New York, a mother and daughter team. This victory was achieved with equal ease, the scores being 6—2, 6—3.

One of the closest matches of the day resulted from the Bundy-Hooker and Hutchins-Gardner clash. Mrs. Bundy, the individual star of this tie, played her customarily strong game and this proved too much for the younger combination to cope with successfully. Miss Hutchins and Miss Gardner displayed far better team work, but Mrs. Bundy's playing offset this, the game resulting in favor of the Californian and her partner by scores of 6—3, 7—9, 6—4.

To return to the surprising defeat of Miss Bancroft and Miss Bayard, the losers took an early lead in both sets, but on each occasion the steady playing of the Cassel-Wagner combination soon began to tell and finally put the two teams on even terms. In the first set this occurred with the score in games at 4—all. In the ninth game Miss Cassel and Miss Wagner broke through their opponents' service to win and then won the tenth in easy fashion on their own.

In the second set Miss Bayard and Miss Bancroft again ran away with the first two games, yielding only two points to their rivals. In the next game the leaders were within one point of making the score 3—love before Misses Cassel and Wagner could get going and pull the game out of the fire at 5—3. In the next game the score reached deuce before Miss Cassel and Miss Wagner could capture it, but from that point on the match was all theirs. Miss Bancroft and Miss Bayard apparently losing heart and failing to win another game.

The point score follows:

Allows Tigers Only Four Hits In Seven Innings and Hugmen Win, 7 to 1.

RUTH SHOWS RESTRAINT

Babe Changes Tactics and Makes Two Timely Infield Blows—Easy Day for Outfielders.

After playing a genuine paprika brand of baseball in the two opening battles of the series at the Polo Grounds, and holding the Yankees to an even division of the spoils, the Detroit Tigers folded up yesterday afternoon when confronted with the celebrated animal tamer, Joe Bush. Joe made the ravening beasts from the jungle roll over and jump through and play dead for the edification and entertainment of a large throng of fans who braved the blistering heat to enjoy the spectacle. The Yankees won by the score of 7 to 1.

During the first seven innings Bush allowed the honored guests just four widely scattered singles and nary the semblance of a run. With seven tallies stacked up behind him by his pals, he released the Detroit batsmen from his hypnotic spell in the eighth and permitted them to clutch one run to show the folks at home, who might otherwise think they had been wasting their time. Bush was not well and was feeling the heat, which made his performance all the more creditable. Manager Huggins gave him a respite after the eighth, and Sam Jones finished the game.

Dauss got the twirling assignment from Manager Cobb and lasted until the eighth, when he gave way to a pinch hitter, Moore officiating for the rag end of the game. The Yankees did not treat Dauss with any immoderate harshness, but, except for one single in the third inning, every one of their safe blows was inserted where it could play its part in the forging of a run.

The battle was more or less conspicuous in these days of long hits by the utter absence of heavy artillery. Whether it be attributed to the wiles of the pitchers or to the subduing of the sluggers by the weather, the fact is that the outfielders had a holiday in the matter of chasing the ball. Only four of Bush's shoots were slapped into the outer garden on the carry, and Witt gobbled three of these. Ruth attending to the other. The Yankees' hitting was a little more powerful, but not much.

Two Infield Hits for Ruth.

As an example of the dignified restraint shown by the leading maulers, it may be mentioned that, although Babe Ruth got the same number of hits that he made on Wednesday, a pair of them, they averaged in distance something like one-half of 1 per cent. as much as those tremendous pokes of the second tussle of the series. One of Babe's safeties yesterday got as far as first base, where it became entangled with the scenery and the players, so that he managed to beat it out. The other one was a roller a few feet long, placed with such Machiavellian ingenuity that nobody could field it to first ahead of him.

The Tigers toppled in a row in the first inning, Blue bouncing an easy one to Ward and Jones and Cobb flying to Ward and Witt respectively. The Yankees, however, found Dauss uncertain of the location of the plate, and they profited by his wildness to the extent of one run.

Witt was the recipient of four wide ones and centered to first, but was promptly forced by Joe Dugan, whose attempt at a sacrifice went awry. Ruth swung mightily but vainly at one low ball on the inside, and the startled Dauss, unable to stand prosperity, gave the slugger four straight bad ones, sending Dugan to second. Wallie Pipp slapped a single to left and Dugan sprinted all the way home, Ruth stopping at second. Schang's hard bounder landed in Dauss's glove and Ruth, trying to advance, was slain at third, Meusel's hoist was gathered by Hellmann.

Once again in the second Bush mowed the foe down in his tracks in one-two-three order, but the local crew garnered another run. Ward opened with a one-base slam to left and took second while Cutshaw was tossing out Scott. Bush bounded to Rigney in deep short field and beat the throw to first. Ward getting to the far corner on the play. A well executed squeeze play enabled Aaron to finish his trip to the plate, Witt's bunt furnishing the impetus. The latter was thrown out at first by Dauss, and Cutshaw tossed out Dugan.

Rigney's Hit Wasted.

Rigney got the first safe drive off Bush, a single to centre at the outset of the third chapter, but his mates couldn't see a thing for him owing to the strict subjection in which they were maintained by the Yankee boxman. A one-hitter by Schang in the latter half of the inning was equally fruitless.

After stowing away their helpless foes again in the fourth, the Yankees indulged in a field day performance which netted a quartet of runs and stacked the game away on a large block of crystal ice. Dauss acted as master of ceremonies, passing Ward, the first man up. Scott tried to sacrifice Aaron along, and the effort proved successful beyond the fondest hopes, for both men were safe, Dauss fielded the bunt speedily and threw to second to head off Ward, but Umpire Hildebrand decreed that Rigney, who took the throw, had had no feet whatever touching the bag. The Tigers growled mildly over the decision, but didn't make a permanent issue of the matter.

Meusel, toiling the stage all set for action, furnished it in the form of a solid blow over first to the right-field wall for two bases. Ward reported at the plate on this stab. Scott pausing at third. Cobb took Witt's hoist to short centre and held the runners in place. Dugan's slant was too hot for Jones to handle, and it went for a single, Scott scoring and Bush advancing to the head of the homestretch. Ruth got a lucky one-bagger, his bounder drawing Blue off first in a futile effort to field it, so that Cutshaw, after gathering in the ball, found the bag uncovered. Blue tried to scramble back, but was just too late. Bush crossed the pan on this lucky Dugan batting and passed Pipp to Rigney, advanced both runners and Dugan tallied on Wallie's sacrifice fly to Cobb. Blue looked after Schang's bounder unassisted.

The Yankees added a seventh marker to their heap in the seventh period, the run being carted across the plate by Ruth. The Babe entertained the crowd by beating out a bunt down the third-base line. He progressed the rest of the way on Pipp's sacrifice, Schang's single and an infield out.

In the eighth inning the visitors finally managed to break the coating of ice cast about them by Bush. Dan Clark bobbed up to bat for Dauss and launched the attack with a two-bagger to left. After Blue had hoisted to Ruth, Jones slashed a single to centre and Clark dashed all the way to the plate. That was the extent of the Detroit harvest, although the Tigers filled the bases later in the period with two out. Cutshaw tried mightily for a four-bagger in this emergency, but only raised a high foul, which Dugan pocketed.

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—The Red Sox took both ends of a double header from Chicago today, 3 to 2, and 5 to 1. Pratt's single to right scored the winning run in the tenth inning of the first game. Boston took advantage of Leverette's wildness in the sixth inning of the second game, and three passes with hits by Pratt, Menosky and Leibold scored four runs. Curves and Bingles.

It was the eighth victory in succession for Joe Bush and his nineteenth of the season, while only four defeats have been chalked up against him. Peculiarly enough, despite his triumphant march this year, he has yet to be credited with a shutout.

It was not a day for crisp, snappy work, and the players seemed a bit lethargic as they stewed in the sun's rays. Bassler, the Tiger catcher, was about the most wilted of the lot. He declined to raise more than a saunter on his way to first after forcing Rigney in the fifth and a double play resulted. Ty Cobb gave him the rest of the afternoon off as a reward.

When Babe Ruth appeared at the plate in the seventh, swinging his war club menacingly, the Tiger outfielders moved back to the fence as usual and the infielders played deep. Then the slugger produced a tiny bunt and got to first on it. The delighted throng cheered this six-foot hit about as much as the Babe's half-mile one of Wednesday.

This man Dan Clark may not have a large collection of medals, but he looks to the New York fans like the Emperor of all pinch hitters. In the second game of the series his double in a pinch turned the tide for the Tigers, and yesterday he delivered a similar blow which robbed Bush of a shutout.

Bobby Veach, who, in his unobtrusive way, is on a batting rampage, collected a couple of singles which didn't make any difference to anybody except Veach himself. He has now hit safely in seventeen successive games, according to the computation of the veteran figuremonger, Al Monroe Rhea.

Umpire Dineen took a rough smack on the chest protector in the eighth from a foul tip that almost carried him back against the grandstand. He patted the distended pad as tenderly as if it had been flesh and blood and invoked a blessing on its inventor.

CHAMPIONS CRUSH PIRATES IN FINAL

FRISCH FLASHY IN FIELD

Frankie Turns In Two Excellent Plays Behind McQuillan's Steady Pitching.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 17.—There was too much fire in the Giants' attack today for the Pirates—too much force on the offense and brilliancy on the defense for the ambitious Pittsburghers. If their pennant chances weren't cooked in the flames, at least they were badly scorched, for the 6-3 triumph today put the Giants seven full games ahead of McKechnie's team.

McGraw has just begun to realize on his Hugh McQuillan investment. The late Boston refugee, who fled from the Hub straight into John J.'s comforting arms, beat Johnny Morrison in what started out to be a pitchers' battle. Johnny, hereabouts, is considered only a step behind Wilbur Cooper. Despite this, McQuillan had much the best of it; he finished the game, which was more than Pittsburgh Johnny could do, and kept the ten Pirate hits fairly well separated.

McQuillan was hindered by a fluke home run by Max Carey in the first inning, but brilliant support saved him in several embarrassing situations. Frisch was guilty of two miraculous plays. In the fourth he grand larceniedd Cotton Tierney out of a single with a running glove hand stop of a grounder with men on first and third and one out.

Then in the fifth with runners on first and second and only one down Maranville stabbed a terrific liner toward right field. Frisch went skyward six leagues, broke the ball's flight with his glove, caught it as it fell and tossed to first for a double play. How the frenzied multitude did sulk after that play.

Stengel Batting Hero.

Offensively, it was all Casey Stengel today. The one-time Pirate, who is as popular here as a Democratic candidate, started the fifth inning rally which put the Giants in the lead by crashing a triple just inside first base. Old Casey nobly cemented his effort with another three-sack drive in the eighth, just over third base and to the fence, with Young and Kelly astride the base lines.

Morrison passed out in the seventh. Babe Adams coming in and inducing Groh to hit into a double play, but it was Babe who absorbed the punishment in the eighth, and a pinch hitter's entrance in the same frame brought Harold Carlson on the scene. Harold, after walking Bancroft in the ninth, became so annoyed at Umpire Hank O'Day that he up and used real rough language, being bounced for his pains. Whitey Glazner came on cold and checked the budding rally.

Two of the three local runs were from homers. Carey's ordinary single in the first took a bad hop and flecked Young's fingers en route to the fence. In the ninth Red Russell whisked a genuine drive to the left centre barrier. Tierney followed with a double, but Traynor, Grimm and Schmidt were easy for McQuillan.

The Giants left tonight for Chicago, there to grapple with the embattled Cubs, the latest sensation of the National League. Another crosstrial "series seems to be in the offing.

With the exception of the first inning, a fluky frame, the Pirates couldn't break through McQuillan until the fourth. Maranville was out on strikes to start the game, but Carey rapped a grounder to Kelly. Then it took wicked hop past Young, eluding his fingers and rolling to the wire fence. Max was too fast in his round of the bases and beat a speedy relay from Young to Frisch to the plate. Then Bigbee and Russell filled to Young, but the unearned run was in.

Stengel's failure to hit stopped the Giants in the second, after Young and Kelly had singled with one out. Casey hit to Maranville, who forced Young at third. Grimm took Smith's hard smash and stepped on first.

Nothing in the third, but a tring run in the fourth on Frisch's single, Meusel's poke to centre and Young's sacrifice fly to Russell. Meusel, who was on second, broke for third, but Maranville outsmarted Irish Interpreid's throw and stopped the Giant at Traynor's station. Kelly's grounder to Traynor ended the fuss.

Carey's single, his force by Bigbee and Russell's single to right put Carson on third in the same frame. Tierney jabbed between second and first, but Frisch robbed him with that glove hand, 18-carat stop, the run coming in notwithstanding.

Giants Go Ahead.

Then the Giants went ahead. Stengel opened the fifth with a triple over first base. After Silent Smith had silently grounded to Maranville, McQuillan ferried Casey across with a single to centre. With the count three and two Bancroft flogged a two-bagger dead on third base line, McQuillan sprinting home from the first corner. Groh's pop to Grimm that leaping catch by Frisch paralyzed allowed up the rally and Frisch's lift to left killed it.

the Pirates in the fifth, and the Giants cantered three furlongs further in front in the eighth. Frisch bunted to Adams and was out, but Hart called him safe. Following Meusel's fly to right, Young busted a single to centre, Carey's fumble admitting Frisch to third. Kelly's base hit to centre and Stengel's second triple accounted for the three runs.

SKEETERS IN EVEN BREAK WITH LEAFS

Jersey City Wins First Game, 3 to 2, but Is Thrashed by Toronto, 9 to 0, in Second.

Ben Egan's Jersey City Skeeters and the Toronto Maple Leafs celebrated the close of their season's series at the Jersey ball park yesterday by an even division of the honors. Jersey City made it three games in a row over their rivals by annexing the opening half of the bill by a margin of 3 to 2, and then permitted the Torontos to reel off a one-sided victory in the concluding game by a score of 9 to 0.

The opening struggle developed an animated pitching duel between Rube Zellars for the Skeeters and Taylor for the Maple Leafs, the former winning the laurels by holding the visitors to six hits scattered through as many innings. Jersey City hung up eleven on Taylor. In the concluding battle the Maple Leafs cut loose at the start against the curves of Arthur Gutzhaltz, hammering him unmercifully in the opening round and forcing him to retire early in the second frame.

SARAZEN WINS FROM BOBBY CRUIKSHANK

FRENCH SWAMPS GOLDEN

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 17.—Continuing his victorious march through the field in the annual Professional Golfers' Association championship, Gene Sarazen, national open champion, today won the right to make his first bid for the P. G. A. title. The Highland Country Club pro defeated the former Scottish amateur, Bobby Cruikshank of the Shackamaxon Club, by the margin of 3 and 2, and will meet Emmett. French, Youngstown pro, in tomorrow's final on the Oakmont Golf Club course. French fairly swamped John Golden of Tuxedo, 8 and 7, in a match that was never close.

Cruikshank made a great uphill fight against Sarazen, especially in the final stages of the morning round, but he squandered two golden opportunities on the greens in the afternoon, and the national open title holder ended matters at the thirty-second hole. Had the former Edinburgh player been able to play the same brand of golf in the afternoon that he played in the morning the chances are that he would have beaten Gene, who was plainly fagged out toward the end. Bobbie, however, developed a sudden streak of wildness in the closing part of the struggle and this, plus the fact that he stumped off in his driving, gave Gene the victory.

The Golden-French match was a runaway for the tall Ohioan, who finished the morning round with a lead of four holes and then eliminated the New Jersey home-bred at the twenty-ninth green. Johnny found entirely too many traps to cope with his rival, who had a medal card of 76 in the morning and then played eleven holes in even fours in the afternoon.

Cruikshank took the lead on Sarazen by winning the first hole, 4 to 5. Gene's drive landed in the rough and he was short coming out and then took two putts after getting on in three. Bobby sank a nine-footer for his win. He dropped the second hole, putting his drive into a ditch, but was on the green in three, close to the hole. Sarazen, however, sank a twenty-footer for a birdie three.

Sarazen Is Two Up.

Gene took the next two holes and became two up. At the third, Bobbie, after laying an approach putt up to within three feet of the pin, missed, while Sarazen, in the rough on his drive and over the green on his second, putted back to within four feet and then holed. Cruikshank was trapped going to the fourth and took two more to reach the green, Sarazen laying an approach up dead for an easy 4. The next was halved in 4.

Both were on the fifth green from the tee, Cruikshank sixteen feet away and Sarazen ten. Bobby sank his and then Gene followed suit for another birdie 2. Sarazen was attended by a bit of luck at the seventh, when he won by holing a chip shot from fifty feet away, Bobbie missing a fifteen-foot putt for a half. He rimmed the cup at the eighth, which was halved in 4, but Sarazen became 4 up by holing a difficult fifteen-footer at the ninth. Sarazen was out in 32 and Cruikshank in 36.

Sarazen won the tenth, Bobbie being trapped off the tee and taking a 6. After a half at the eleventh, Cruikshank won four straight holes from Sarazen. At the twelfth he followed up a good drive and brassie with a twenty-foot putt.

Both reached the thirteenth green in one, but Gene missed a three-foot putt. At the next Bobbie sank a fifteen-footer which he followed up with a fine putt from eight feet at the eighth, whereas Gene missed another yarder.

They halved the sixteenth in par 3, but Sarazen took the seventeenth when Bobbie's putt from three feet failed to drop, and the home hole was halved in 4, both reaching the green in two. Cruikshank's putt hitting the cup. Sarazen had a 69, equaling the mark made by French on the preceding day, while Cruikshank was 71.

Bobbie Starts Poorly.

Bobbie started toward defeat when he sliced his second going to the first hole in the afternoon and then missed a shot coming out. The next six holes were halved, Sarazen failing to win the third hole by taking three putts and Bobbie getting a lucky break at the long fourth.

Bobbie practically gave Gene the eighth when, following a fine approach, he missed a two-footer for a half. Sarazen was trapped going to the ninth, but by means of a fine shot out of a trap he saved his half.

Bobbie was trapped off the tee going to the tenth and barely got out with his second, while his third shot bounced just short of the green and flew into a wagon box. He was allowed to drop and pitched up close enough to get his 5, which earned him a half when Gene, on in two, missed an eighteen-inch putt after being short on his approach.

Cruikshank holed a nine-footer for a win at the eleventh and appeared to be started on a winning streak when Gene hooked his second badly at the twelfth. Cruikshank was just short of the green in 2, while Bobbie played his third into a trap, from where he just managed to get out. Following a fine approach to within a few feet of the cup, Cruikshank missed the putt and gave Gene an uncarned half in 6.

They halved the thirteenth in 3, but Bobbie lost the fourteenth through being trapped off the tee and then playing his next far wide of the green. Bobbie had two fine shots going to the fifteenth, while Gene, wild off the tee, put his second into a trap. Bobbie's second had trickled into the fringe of a trap and he was short on his third.

After Gene had failed to get out on his first effort and was short again on his next, he holed out a long putt for a 5, but Bobbie claimed the hole on the ground that Sarazen had soled his club in the bunker. His claim was upheld by Bill Fownes, acting as referee.

French Gains Early Lead.

After halving the first hole with a pair of sixes, one more than the easy par 5, French went into an early lead against Golden by taking both the second and third holes. At the 363-yard second Golden had a fine second shot, but his ball buried itself in the green, costing him a 5. He lost the third by taking one too many putts. They halved the fifth in exact pars, but two topped drives by Golden and a 10-foot putt by French put the Ohioan 5 up at the seventh. His long putt gave him a birdie 2 at the 172-yard sixth.

Golden topped his drive again at the eighth and was bunkered, but he saved a half in 5 by holing a 12-yard putt. His first win came at the ninth, where he had an eagle 3, putting a mashie iron to within three feet of the flag. French was 36 at the turn, one under par, while Golden was 40.

French went to 2 up by taking the tenth when Golden, after missing his drive, missed a short putt. Johnny won the eleventh with a par 4, French taking a 6 by driving into a gulley and then taking three putts on the green. Emmet got down a long putt to save a half at the twelfth, but he lost the next by getting into a bunker. Golden wasted a fine second by failing to drop a 3-foot putt at the fourteenth and he dropped back to 4 down by taking three putts at the fifteenth.

Both Hole Long Putts.

Both got down 10-footers for 3s at the sixteenth and they divided the honors on the last two in the morning round. French, had a medal score of 76 and was 4 up at the end of the first eighteen holes, Golden being 79.

The first four holes of the final round were halved, French sinking a long putt for his 4 at the first after being in the rough off the tee. At the fourth French played a great iron second from the rough and got home in 2, while Golden was short of the green on his second. Emmet lost the fifth through being trapped, but he won the sixth with a par 3, Golden taking a 4.

After halving the seventh in one over par figures, French clinched the match by taking the next four holes in two strokes less than par. He had a 3 at the eighth, a birdie 4 at the ninth, another birdie 4 at the tenth and wound the match up with a par 4 at the eleventh, Golden being a stroke more in each instance.

U. S. G. A. WITHHOLDS ACTION ON HUNTER

Will Not Rule on Status Until He Enters Amateur Tourney—Von Elm Out.

Officials of the United States Golf Association are waiting for W. I. Hunter, former British amateur golf champion, to enter the forthcoming United States national amateur tournament before ruling on his status as an amateur, it was learned here yesterday.

He has not yet been declared ineligible, it is stated, but officials of the association confirm reports that the entry of George von Elm of Salt Lake City in the national amateur tournament has been rejected.

Officials said today that no formal statement of the reasons for the action in von Elm's case would be issued. Nor would they indicate what action would be taken in case Hunter should enter.

Reports published recently said that both Hunter and von Elm had been declared professionals by the association. These reports were circulated shortly after the entry of one Willie Hunter in the national professional tournament at Oakmont was revealed. Similarity in names led to confusion. The Hunter playing in the professional tournament was not the former British champion, but his cousin, who is the professional at the Onwentsia Club, Chicago.

GETS ON TRAIL OF KILBANE.

Flournoy Seeking to Match Him With Dundee.

Matchmaker Frank Flourney of Madison Square Garden yesterday made an effort to communicate with Johnny Kilbane at his home in Cleveland to ascertain whether Kilbane is willing to meet Johnny Dundee in a bout for the featherweight championship. Flournoy was unsuccessful, but intends to keep after Kilbane until the latter either declines or accepts the issue.

Dundee called at the Garden to post his $1,000 for his bout with Pepper Martin for the junior lightweight championship to be held at the New York Velodrome on Aug. 28.

BOXING IS ASSURED FOR POLO GROUNDS

License Granted to Republic Athletic Club—Offer Made for Dempsey-Wills Bout.

Boxing at the Polo Grounds is now assured. At a meeting of the New York State Athletic Commission yesterday a license was granted to the Republic Athletic Club, organized to stage boxing bouts at the home of the Giants under Coogan's Bluff. The granting of the license had been expected, for it was generally understood that the new club had complied with all of the requirements of the commission.

According to the plans filed with the commission, the seating arrangements for boxing at the Polo Grounds will provide for a capacity of 85,000, making it the second largest open-air stadium in the country. Tex Rickard's arena at Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City has a seating capacity of slightly more than 90,000.

Just as soon as John M. O'Connor, President of the Republic A. C., was notified that the license had been granted, he started negotiations for a bout between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills for the world's heavyweight championship, to be held at the Polo Grounds in October. O'Connor offered Paddy Mullins, manager of Wills, 12½ per cent. for his share, and it is understood that these terms are acceptable to the manager of the big negro challenger.

O'Connor also immediately communicated with Dan McKetrick, the local representative of Jack Kearns and Jack Dempsey, offering the champion 37½ per cent. of the receipts. Under the rules of the New York State Commission a promoter cannot give away more than 50 per cent. of the receipts to the boxers in a main bout. The rules also provide that 37½ per cent. is the maximum to be given to one boxer. This, of course, makes 12½ per cent. the minimum to be given a boxer.

With such an enormous seating capacity a gate of a million dollars would be virtually assured. The rules of the commission provide that a maximum of $25 can be charged for championship contests in this State. O'Connor stated that this would, of course, be the top price for the bout if it is arranged, but he also stated that there would be a sufficient number of seats at popular prices to permit the average man to see the bout. It is understood that the prices would range from $3 to $25.

Now that Governor McCray has come out as being unalterably opposed to a meeting between Dempsey and Bill Brennan in Michigan City, Ind., on Labor Day, it is believed in local boxing circles that Dempsey will be willing to entertain a proposition to fight Wills this Fall. This, of course, with the proviso that the efforts of Tex Rickard to promote a bout between the champion and Jess Willard are unavailing.

Rapid calculators figured that if Dempsey accepts O'Connor's terms he will receive upward of $300,000 for his end.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 17.—In the course of the second day's play for the Rathborne Cups, the Myopia team went through Point Judith by the score of 10 to 6. For Myopia the two Burrages staged an attack that should have put away most clashes of the kind. A. C. Burrage was especially effective, feeding the ball up neatly to his forwards.

Nell Rice at No. 3 was one of the best scorers of the day, turning the play at critical stages. One of the best players on the field, and one of the best mounted, was Young Almy, perhaps the most promising youngster of the season.

Point Judith started the clash with 2 goals on the credit side by handicap. The Bostonians closed the first period without a score. Working into the second session, Frederick Ayer fed up neatly, and R. Burrage came through and shot the ball between the posts.

The two Burrages now were working well together, but they were not counting on the splendid defense of Gerald Dempsey. Dempsey turned the game more than once, hitting on both sides of his pony, and providing much of the teamwork for his four. Clever riding, stick work, and general, all-around good polo marked Dempsey's work today.

Frederick Ayer turned out a pretty shot in the second period, with the result that R. Burrage scored from the inevitable mêlée. Subsequent fine backing by Dempsey, as well mounted and as clean hitting a player as has been seen in the games here, led to another tally.

The line-up:

MYOPIA.	POINT JUDITH.
No. 1—R. Burrage.	No. 1—Almy.
No. 2—A. C. Burrage.	No. 2—A. F. Goodwin.
No. 3—Nell Rice.	No. 3—R. Hudson.
Back—Fred'k Ayer.	Back—G. H. Dempsey.

Goals—Myopia: R. Burrage 1, Nell Rice 5, A. C. Burrage 2, Frederick Ayer 2; total 10. Point Judith: Almy 3, Goodwin 1, by handicap 2; total 6.

World Brace Football Teams Between Halves With Poetry

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 17.—The last day of the course in football at the Harvard Summer School saw a touch of poetry added to the occasion. Howard R. Reiter, former Princeton star, who is director of physical education at Lehigh, is in charge of the course and at the parting class advocated the use of poetry to strengthen the spirit of the football players, particularly during the halves after things have gone wrong, or before or after the game. "The Test," by Edward V. Cook, is one of Mr. Reiter's favorites. Another is "God Hates a Quitter," a copy of which was found on the dead body of Sam Reed, former Princeton baseball captain, after a search all night in No Man's Land. Still another is "To Those Who Have Tried and Failed."

CARPENTER LOSES IN VELODROME FINAL

Heat cannot melt the ardor of the Simon pure boxer nor custom stale the infinite variety of his punches. This was proved last night when the flock of amateurs who had survived the preliminary bouts of the Metropolitan A. A. U. tourney in the Velodrome ring met in the same squared circle to fight through to final honors; or to fall by the way (several to fall heavily) in the semi-final round. A moderate sized crowd occupied the chairs about the ring and overflowed into the tier of seats above the bicycle track.

The first final bout to be decided was over before it had much more than begun. Sailor Carpenter of the Battleship Maryland, had no defense against the concentrated fire of Alex Sciiar of Union settlement. After witnessing one minute and twenty-six seconds of punishment of the mariner, Referee Tommy Smith put his arms about Carpenter and led him to his corner.

Larry Eatridge, the lanky negro from St. Christopher's Club, knocked out G. J. Kniss in the final of the 158-pound class. The paleface went half way through the ropes after two minutes and five seconds of the second round, the propelling force being a right jab to the stomach. Anthony Palmer, Young Men's Club, won the final in the 138-pound class. The referee stopped the bout just before the end of the second. The 147-pound final was won by Ben Bostein, Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A., who got the verdict of the judges over John Fogarty of St. Jerome's Catholic Club.

Final honors in the 118-pound division went to Wilbur Cohen, unattached, negro fighter, who got the judges' decision of Joe Kochansky, New Jersey State champion. The winner in the 128-pound group was Joe Scappetone, unattached, who was carried four rounds to a 2 to 1 decision by Paul Gullotte of Brooklyn.

Both semi-final bouts in the 175-pound class were won by knockouts. Alex Sciiar of Union Settlement landed his left on John Hayes of St. Brendan's Club, so heavily that the latter, after the count was carried to the dressing room where he was attended by a physician and later sent to his home. Sailor Carpenter of the U. S. S. Maryland, of the same weight, put Solly Jacobs of Union Settlement out in the first round with a solid right over the heart.

The summaries:

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 17.—Gene Tunney, Greenwich Village fighter, outpointed Charlie Weinert of Newark in a twelve-round fight at the Broad A. C. tonight. Weinert cut Tunney's mouth in the first round and Gene bled throughout the bout. This, however, was the only serious damage that Weinert did to Tunney, while the Greenwich Village scrapper had Weinert groggy in the fourth and ninth rounds.

Tunney fought a good deal on the style of Harry Greb and kept punching with rights and lefts to the face and body throughout the fight. He had Weinert's left eye almost closed when the bout ended. Weinert weighed 184 pounds and Tunney 174. Harry Greb, Johnny Dundee and Senator Walker of New York were at the ringside.

DEMPSEY-BRENNAN BOUT DECLARED OFF

Governor McCray Says Labor Day Contest Will Not Be Held in Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 17.—Governor McCray made official announcement here today that the fight between Jack Dempsey and Bill Brennan, scheduled for Michigan City, Ind., on Labor Day, will not be held.

"The fight will not take place," the Governor said.

Whether the bout will be called off by the promoters or direct action by the Governor will be required has not been determined. If local officials have not acted by tomorrow afternoon, however, the Governor will send a letter to Sheriff William E. Anstiss of La Porte County directing him to stop the bout.

When told that Sheriff Anstiss and Earl Rouley, La Porte County Prosecuting Attorney, had announced they would take no action in regard to stopping the bout, the Governor said: "They have not heard from me yet."

Statements of promoters of the bout that the affair is a boxing exhibition and not a prizefight are not taken seriously by the Governor, who has collected newspaper advertising of the affair, which leads him to believe there is no doubt of the nature of the contest.

"Either the affair is a prizefight or somebody is trying to fool the public," said the Governor after examining accounts of the bout in a Chicago newspaper in which the knockout blows of Dempsey were discussed.

The attitude of Governor McCray toward the Dempsey-Brennan bout is no surprise in view of his repeated statements that Jack Dempsey will not be permitted to fight in Indiana. He has been advised by the State legal department that prizefighting is illegal in Indiana, and is of the opinion that any bout involving the world's champion should be classed as a prizefight.

American Legion officials, under whose auspices the proposed ten-round bout was scheduled to be held at Michigan City Labor Day, will call off the contest if Governor McCray continues to maintain the opinion that the affair is illegal, according to a statement issued by Oswald Ryan, National Committeeman of the legion from Indiana.

STEINGUT SUPPORTS CHEAPER SEAT PLAN

The drive for lower prices for boxing bouts in this State was augmented yesterday when Assemblyman Irwin Steingut of Brooklyn came out in support of the request of Assemblyman McKee that the New York State Athletic Commission place a maximum of $5 per seat for championship contests and $3 per seat for other bouts. Assemblyman Steingut wrote the commision to this effect. His letter follows:

I noticed in the press a communication sent to you by Assemblyman McKee with reference to the excessive prices prevailing at boxing exhibitions in this State and I take this opportunity of backing up the gentleman from the Bronx in coming out flat-footed against promoters, managers and boxers becoming wealthy over night at the expense of the public.

I think it is high time you took a hand in this matter and saw to it that popular prices should prevail at all boxing exhibitions.

If in your judgment you feel that you have no right to fix prices, I am sure that the Legislature has, and as a member of that body I will use every effort towards bringing about such legislation.

I hope and trust that some action will be taken by you along the lines suggested by Assemblyman McKee.

CAPABLANCA DRAWS WITH RUBINSTEIN

LONDON, Aug. 17 (Associated Press).—Today's game between José R. Capablanca, the chess champion, and A. Rubenstein, the Polish player, in the fourteenth round of the international chess tournament, was drawn by agreement after thirteen hurried moves of a farcical character, it being stated that neither was desirous of winning.

This game provoked much adverse comment, the suggestion being made that in future tournaments something should be done to prevent such "playing to score"—either that the play should be so managed that the stronger players meet in the earlier rounds or that a drawn game should count one-third of a point instead of half a point.

It was argued that the public desires not to see Capablanca overwhelm Dr. Davide Marotti, the Italian, but to see him in a serious struggle with such masters as A. Alechine of Russia or Rubinstein.

E. G. Watson of Australia defeated Marotti today, the game between M. Euwe, Holland, and E. D. Bogoljubow, Russia, was drawn. In an adjourned game H. E. Atkins, England, beat E. Smoke Berowsky.

The scores at the end of the fourteenth round were: Capablanca, 12; Alechine, 11; Rubinstein and Vidmar, 10; A. Retl, Czechoslovakia; Dr. S. Tartakover, Russia, and Bogoljubow, 8; G. Maroczy, Hungary, and R. O. Yates, England, 7½; Euwe and Atkins, 5½; J. S. Morrison, Canada, M. Wahltuch, England, and Watson, 4½.

BRITISH YACHT SHIPPED.

Colla III. on Way Here for Six-Meter Regatta Sept. 9.

The first yacht of the British team of four which will compete against a similar team of American boats in the international regatta for six-meter boats, which will be held in Long Island Sound beginning on Sept. 9, was shipped from Liverpool yesterday on the steamship Scythia. She is Colla III., designed and built by F. J. Stephen of Alexander Stephen & Son, Govan. Owing to the illness of Mr. Stephen, his son, John Stephen, will be at Colla's helm during the international races. Mr. Stephen and his crew accompanied the little yacht on the Scythia.

The other three yachts making up the British team will be shipped tomorrow from Southampton. They were selected from among the fifteen British six-meter yachts available. They are: Jean, owned by Sir John Ward; Reg, owned by Norman Clark-Neill, and Rose, a syndicate boat subscribed for by members of the Royal Yacht Squadron, the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, the Royal Thames Yacht Club and the Royal London Yacht Club.

Jean, which took part in last year's races won by the British yachts, will be sailed by Sir Ralph Gore. Mr. Clark-Neill will have the assistance of Captain R. T. Dixon in Reg, while Rose will be sailed by her designer, Charles Nicholson, who also designed Shamrock IV.

THE END OF THE SHOW.

Tomorrow the McCumber Tariff bill, with all its imperfections on its head, so far as it can be said to have one, will be passed, largely by the votes of men who have small heart for it and smaller faith in it; in no small part by the votes of men who are sick of it and feel that the country is sicker. Its last days in the Senate have been worthy of its previous career. After the interminable debate had been practically shut off, the Finance Committee brought in some 160 amendments, most of them raising duties, sprung upon the Senate too late for more than the barest discussion. Senator HARRELD of Oklahoma, though beaten 5 to 1 on his amendment imposing a duty of 35 cents a barrel on refined and 25 cents a barrel on crude petroleum, illustrated the practice that has been followed, and usually successfully followed, in the making and remaking of this comprehensive scheme to give bounties to the few at the expense of the many—to put up the cost of living.

Mr. HARRELD pleaded for the downtrodden owners of small wells. For their behoof, every user of gas and gasoline in the United States must be taxed. He was reminded that in the first six months of this year 2,800,000,000 gallons of oil had been exported. This "infant industry" was a little bit too sturdy for most of the protectionists; but the bill swarms with grotesque examples of that sort of protection. It would be incongruous to speak of protection in connection with it. It is better to substitute for the old phrase that of "protection to absurdity." Tomorrow the vast unanimity conglomerate of gratuities and reciprocal favors and logrolling will be sent to conference. Is Mr. FORDNEY still ready to fight to the death for the sacred principle of American valuation? There is a world of subjects for controversy between the two houses. It can't be said that the country takes much interest in them. The measure won't be made much better and it can't be made much worse. As it has dragged through the Senate, the people have had a long and sufficient course of instruction as to its general character. It would be ordinary gratitude for the Democrats in Congress to pass resolutions of thanks to Mr. MCCUMBER and his associates and to all the known and unknown begetters of this great collection of taxes for the protection of groups only and for the detriment of the people at large.

COAL STRIKE SEQUELS.

The President proposed a Federal Coal Commission to devise a permanent reorganization of the industry. The bituminous operators ask for a fact-finding commission. The strikers are willing that there should be an inquiry, though they are satisfied with the situation as it stands. Senator BORAH contrasts the prices of coal in April and August, showing that in the latter month they are several times larger. That is part of the price the public will pay for rescue from frost. It is notoriously difficult to interest consumers in next Winter's fuel before last Winter's supply is exhausted. They dislike to pay in advance of necessity and to meet the costs of storage. They exercised their option, and now the bill comes in.

When the Federal Commission investigates, it should look into Mr. LEWIS'S statement that the strikers win on the three "main and principal issues." The first is the establishment of a basis for a national settlement and the rejection of district or State settlements. All operators" will be "obliged to conform to the principles outlined in the basic statement."

Secondly, the miners win their struggle against "deflation" of their wages. How much the wages of others will in consequence be deflated is not stated. Thirdly, the strikers win in preventing the substitution of arbitration of industrial differences for collective bargaining, although the attack on the unions was made with "astonishing ferocity." This statement is at least as astonishing as the ferocity of the massacred workers at Herrin and in West Virginia and elsewhere.

The Federal Commission will have before it the "agreement," signed under duress, setting up the principles which are to guide the fixing of wages after this year. The first is that the rate of pay "shall be sufficient to "afford not only a living wage, but "also to allow reasonable opportunity "for accumulating savings." Life is said to depend on the liver. Savings may be said to depend on the saver. The thrifty will save where the shiftless starve. The union subsidy to inefficiency will mean such excess in cost of fuel that savings will be impossible for millions of workers as worthy of public esteem and care as the miners. By all means let us have a fact-finding commission. But how shall the policy based on the facts be realized?

HEARST ON SMITH.

Mr. HEARST'S statement about the New York Governorship shows that the general public has been wronging him. It appears that he is not a self-seeking candidate or wrecker of parties, but simply a deep-revolving political philosopher. Conservatism and progress, not personalities, chiefly occupy his mind, and his references to ex-Governor SMITH are marked by studied politeness and entire disinterestedness. Nobody, he declares, is better fitted to lead the Democratic Party in New York than Mr. SMITH—that is to say, if the party desires that kind of leader.

Nothing could be handsomer than that, and Mr. HEARST recurs to his support of Mr. SMITH for Governor in 1918, when he was elected by some 15,000 plurality. He adds, solely in the interest of historical accuracy: "I "flatter myself that my papers, with "their millions of circulation, con"tributed at least 15,000 votes." It was, of course, purely an oversight on the part of Mr. HEARST that, with his thoughts thus turned to the past, he omitted to stats that in 1920 Governor SMITH, after having been subjected for many months to the most virulent and sustained attacks by the millions of the Hearst circulation, ran ahead of his ticket by nearly 500,000 votes.

THE ARMY'S WELFARE INVOLVED.

When Representative ANTHONY was asked in the House to explain the provisions of the Army Appropriation bill requiring a reduction of officers, he made an estimate of the number that was far below the total announced later by General PERSHING in Circular 152. It is now said that the House would not have passed the bill but for Mr. ANTHONY'S assurance that the reduction would not be drastic. In Washington a review of the legislation is urged for the protection of competent officers who should be retained in the service, and, what is of equal or greater importance, for the welfare of the army. Mr. ANTHONY, replying to a request by Mr. MCKENZIE for information, said that 1,000 officers would have to be eliminated, that 400 of the number would be dropped from the list of dental, veterinary and medical officers and chaplains, leaving only 600 officers to be removed "from what we call the "single list of the army, largely in "the line." General PERSHING in Circular 152, "Governing Reduction in Number of Officers," stated that 149 Colonels, 90 Lieutenant Colonels, 616 Majors, 1,235 Captains and 59 First Lieutenants would have to leave the army or be demoted—a total of 2,149. In a letter to Chairman MADDEN of the Appropriations Committee the General has drawn attention to Mr. ANTHONY'S statement to the House without charging him with intending to mislead it. The General says that his letter was written to keep the House advised as to the effect of its legislation and the difficulties confronting the War Department in solving the problem of reduction.

The Army and Navy Journal points out that "the provisions of the bill are complicated and difficult to interpret," in part because "the conferees en"deavored to reach a compromise be"tween the advocates of demotion and "elimination." As the War Department was reluctant to give the bill an interpretation that would call for a loss to the service of more than 2,000 officers, its total must have been reached only after an exhaustive study of this measure. It seems to say definitely that "on and after Jan. 1, 1923," there shall be retained so many officers under the rank of Brigadier General. By calculating those now on the active list General PERSHING must have arrived at his number of 2,149 who will have to be retired, eliminated and demoted.

To a layman it would appear that Representative ANTHONY blundered. Congress should be asked to reconsider its work in the light of this controversy. If the directions of Circular 152 are carried out, many officers whose usefulness is not impaired will have to be prevailed upon to retire, or even be dropped. A Colonel who is in no danger from the fist of the Plucking Board, said the other day: "If there is a considerable loss of the "junior officers in my organization, it "will take me or any other com"mander years to build it up to its "present state of efficiency. It "sickens me to think of losing some "of my younger officers who have "worked so hard to bring up the "morale of their units." It is not to be disputed that the reduction legislation, so sweeping in its character, has had a demoralizing effect upon the army. If Congress did not know what it was about when the Appropriation bill was passed in a fit of parsimony that ignored the National Defense act, it should have the courage to correct any mistake that was made.

ANTAGONISTIC ROUND TABLES.

The circumferences of two of the Round Tables of the Institute of Politics at Williamstown touched each other for a moment on Wednesday and then went wandering in diametrically opposite directions. Former Secretary HOUSTON'S circle contained a positive program of rehabilitation and world-order, while that of Mr. CROSBY, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and President of the Interallied War Purchase Council, seemed to embrace only categorical negatives of all that was proposed in the other. Secretary HOUSTON did not lack explicitness. His eight points included only one that was not substantive and measurable; and yet that one, intangible and imponderable as it is, must lead the way for all the rest. It is "mental disarmament."

Six of the other points—physical disarmament with corresponding reduction in expenditures, large reductions in reparations, increased taxation, balanced budgets, cessation of the printing of paper money, and removal of trade and transportation restrictions—must be all but universally accepted as conditions precedent to the restoration of European peace and order. But these are all things that Europe must do for herself. These are the means of salvation that are largely in her own hands. But the seventh point is American membership in the League of Nations "as at "present constituted or with such "modifications as experience may "have dictated."

It must have pleased Mr. HOUSTON, who since leaving the Treasury has become associated with a continent-wide telephone and telegraph system, to hear the League of Nations called a "great telephone exchange." As if that were an inconsequential organ of our social existence! It is hardly conceivable that the economic and social fabric of such an expansive territory as ours could be held together without the means of ready communication. And the "telephone exchange" in which the wires of all the nations centre is essential to reaching economic stability throughout the world. The alternative is promiscuous and confusing individual "broadcasting." The analogy through which Mr. CROSBY would belittle the service of the League of Nations is one which really illustrates the importance of the League in a world that sorely needs a central "exchange" with which America is connected up.

THE WOLF AMONG FLAPPERS.

The professional moralist may gluttonize new evils and the professional paragrapher exploit them with an eye to the humorous and the picturesque, but faith springs eternal for those who keep their eyes steadfast upon established books of etiquette. The latest of an honored line comes from the pen of EMILY POST (Mrs. PRICE POST). The word "flapper" is absent from its pages. There are no jeremiads against short skirts and the like nor fulminations against "new" dancing; only sage counsel adapted to the sober seeker after light, backed by a tacit confidence in the permanence of human good.

Witness the chapter on the chaperon! Does a young girl aspire to be "really free"? Let her not stray and meander, but hover within range of the maturer eye. There "she need "give conventionality very little "thought, because her chaperon is al"ways a strong and protective de"fense." Have not the wise ones always said it? The only freedom of value is freedom within the law. "A "young girl who is unprotected by "a chaperon is in the position pre"cisely of an unarmed traveler walk"ing alone among wolves—his only "defense is in not attracting their "notice." That saying should sustain and soothe sundry male creatures too long oppressed by the tradition of the "vamp." They may not aspire to be wolves precisely, but if a flapper some day slips the tether and comes romping by—well, it should be possible to forget the fate of those others as pictured by KIPLING and the movies. One may not be sure that our author was thinking of the problem from this angle. "Ethically," she adds, "the only chaperon is the young "girl's own sense of dignity and "pride." Mrs. POST may know that. Certainly the lone wolf of these latter days would like to believe the protection sufficient. But what about the flapper-vamp?

The ultimate verdict of "Etiquette" is measurably reassuring. Young men of fashion, to be sure, no longer pay party calls and young women of fashion are "informal," but "it is "difficult to maintain that youth today "is very different from what it has "been in other periods." One thing Mrs. POST finds certain: "We have "advanced prodigiously in esthetic "taste." "Prodigiously" is a large word. It may even mean that the flapper has become too dignified and too proud to vamp so humble a wolf as the modern male.

AN INADVERTENCE.

Senator LA FOLLETTE, in his campaign for re-election, has the open or tacit support of the Socialists and also of certain labor organizations. A "special Wisconsin edition" of Labor, the newspaper, contains impassioned appeals to the workers to vote for "BOB," and publishes long extracts from his speech opening his Senatorial campaign in Wisconsin. As regards national issues, the Senator's position is naturally that everything that is is wrong, except in so far as he has been able to make it partially right. He condemns the legislative program of Congress, so far as it has been carried out, and says ominously that "even greater plans to plunder the "American people are now in the "making."

The Senator proceeds to give the damning specifications. He says: "I "refer to the shameful Fordney-Mc"Cumber Tariff bill; the Ship Subsidy "bill, which is to follow close upon its "heels; and, lastly, the scheme which "has behind it all the power of the "Administration to postpone and, if "need be, defeat the adjusted compen"sation bill for the soldiers of the late "war." It seems as if Senator LA FOLLETTE, in the heat of his oratory, had blundered into a self-contradiction. To defeat a scheme for putting an extra five billions or so on the taxpayers is a queer way to set about plundering them. In the common view, the plundering is on the other side. But, as it was said by an English Judge that "the truth will come out, even in an affidavit," it may be held that the Wisconsin Senator builded better than he knew when he grouped the bonus scheme under the general head of "plunder." He ought to be thanked for the inadvertence.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

There Was Another Responsibility.

With the revelation of the record as a reckless, law-breaking automobilist that had been made by WILLIAM WOOD JR., it is evident that responsibility for what happened the other day on the Reading-Andover Boulevard is not confined to the participants in the fatal race. It extends to judicial authorities of several degrees in several Massachusetts towns before whom WOOD had been brought many times for conducting himself on the public highways in a manner that proved him to have been a persistent violator of the statutes and ordinances upon the enforcement of which depend the safety, the very lives, of all by whom those highways are used.

Now and then he was compelled to pay a petty fine, one that was for him neither a punishment nor a deterrent. Occasionally he was threatened with loss of his license to drive motor cars, and once his license was suspended for a while, but the State Highway Commission gave it back to him on his promise never thereafter to exceed the speed of twenty-five miles an hour. Usually, "Case filed" is the phrase that marks the termination of a complaint or trial.

It would be harsh and probably untrue to charge that this long-continued lenience was due to the fact that WOOD was the wealthy son of a more wealthy father, the latter the head of a great Massachusetts industry and powerful in both finance and politics. That, however, will be the inevitable explanation of those fond of exaggerating the power of money and "influence," even in our courts.

Of course, the courts of Massachusetts are not corrupt, though recent events have proved that some prosecuting officials in that State were so. But whatever the reason for the mercy with which WOOD was treated, obviously the mercy was undeserved—obviously, he had demonstrated long ago and repeatedly that, either by temperament or character, he was unfit to drive automobiles and that his license should have been revoked, not suspended.

Revocation Rarely Inflicted.

That automobile licenses are not revoked, in Massachusetts and elsewhere, as often and as promptly as they should be is hard to explain. The severity of such a punishment may be one of the reasons, for revocation, to the professional chauffeur, means the loss of his livelihood, and, to the amateur, permanent exclusion from a pleasure which has come almost to be numbered among the necessaries of modern life—so nearly that the victim of such a decree would have some excuse for protesting against his punishment as not less cruel than unusual.

The sellers and makers of motor cars, too, do not like anything that restricts or diminishes the use of their vehicles, and it is their opposition, silent but effective, that, as much as anything, has prevented the regulation of automobiles by ordinances and laws demanding, much more sternly than do those now in existence, that all drivers shall be of real competence, demonstrated in a real examination, and that permanent loss of license surely should follow highway misbehavior.

And not only bad folk should be forbidden to drive cars; some good and well-intentioned ones are constitutionally unable to meet the requirement as to quick mental and muscular reaction which the safe driving of cars imperatively demands. But it takes a psychologist to discover that lack—before, that is, it has been revealed by a more or less long series of small "accidents," and Police Justices do not consider much more than the particular facts directly before them.

These Glides Are All Disappointing.

Still there remains the mystery why there has been accomplished at the gliding tournament in France nothing comparable with the wonders recently reported as done with such machines in Germany. The engineless planes at Clermont-Ferrand make but the briefest of flights, instead of keeping aloft for many minutes; the length of the journeys they make is measured by feet instead of miles, and their gains of altitude above point of departure are small.

In explanation of this difference in achievement one can take his choice between the assumption that Germans are better gliders than the men of other nations and the suspicion that the stories that came from Germany were largely indebted for their impressiveness to—well, call it the creative imagination and let it go at that.

And even some of the statements that come from France test sufficiently the credulity of folk who think that the familiar laws of physics have not been revoked, or even revised, in favor of this sort of aerial navigation. Such folk hear unmoved references to ships that sail against the wind and of birds that do the same thing and do it better. The skeptics insist that ships do not sail against the wind, but against the water, which resists the wind, and, as for birds, nobody knows that their seemingly motionless wings really are motionless, and there are pretty good reasons for believing that they are not.

Anyhow, there is no essential resemblance between a glider and either a sailing ship or a sailing bird, while the essential differences are enormous.

Ireland and Griffith.

If there were any doubt as to what the general sentiment in Ireland is with respect to the Free State, it would be removed by the diversity that marked the multitude which attended the funeral services of ARTHUR GRIFFITH and followed, with manifestations of deepest sorrow and respect, his body to the grave.

Seemingly every class and group in the population of the island were represented there except the followers of EAMON DE VALERA. They alone held back from paying the last tributes to the dead leader. The recalcitrants by clear implication charge all who went in their thousands to this funeral with something like treason to Ireland, and the accusation would be absurd if it were not outrageous. Gaurrry, of either a very good and able Irishman or he was a very bad and incompetent one. To make the second of these characterizations is little less than proof of insanity.

THE POOR PARK.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The plea of Commissioner Gallatin for more expert gardeners for Central Park is no doubt reasonable, and will meet with the approval of many citizens and park lovers, but those conversant with conditions, and who have followed the downfall of our once famous pleasure ground, will hardly expect it to be the cure-all for the blight which is now upon it.

The letters from experts and laymen, serious and trivial, that have appeared in your columns, for and against park betterment or despoliation, under headings too numerous to classify, form a scrapbook of goodly proportions, and it would seem that everything from wits to politics had been touched upon, but through all these ramifications the "human element" seems to be too often overlooked or ignored.

As an almost daily visitor to the park for many years, both early and late, and in all weathers, I have watched with distress and chagrin the gradual decadence that marked the Stover régime, when the bars were let down and the sheep ran wild, and it was given out at City Hall that the park was for the people; and, as expected, liberty gave way to license with results painful to contemplate.

Allowing that war conditions, lack of funds and inadequate protection, with ever increasing visitors, wrought the inevitable changes, there seems no excuse for the wanton vandalism, disregard of law and order, and almost open defiance of the police that now obtains. Unless this shameful abuse of property can be curtailed, the possible appropriations for the commission's increased force will vanish without results.

When the Park Commissioner himself admits, as he did in a letter printed in your columns not long ago, that his rebuke to a trespasser was openly defied, it would seem time that the Police Department take a hand in the preservation of the park.

As to the Shakespeare Gardens it will require more than additional help and a few "gorgeous" plants to restore the prestige it enjoyed under the fostering care of Professor Southwick and a few garden lovers who acted as volunteer aids on Sundays and holidays when visitors from afar were eager to find some pet flower, insignificant herb or shrub, now probably among the missing.

Protecting the National Parks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The stand taken in your editorial opposing the bill to create the so-called All-Year National Park is very gratifying to the many friends and defenders of our national parks. There was danger that this pernicious measure might be slipped through the House as it was through the Senate. Your calling public attention to it is therefore timely and helpful.

The passage of this bill would seriously threaten existing national parks, and those which may be created in future. Even the sponsors of the bill do not claim that the small isolated spots would constitute the All-Year National Park. The friends of the parks have with difficulty defended them from commercial invasion. Here would be a park with commercialism firmly intrenched, a precedent which would threaten the destruction of our entire national park system, with all that it means to the people of the country.

Where Is Mr. Hays?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A news item in THE TIMES of Aug. 8 says in part: * * * "the Federal Trade Commission inaugurated a campaign * * * designed to prevent motion picture exhibitors and the public being imposed upon by film brokers and producers through marketing of old films under new titles or of films bearing titles of noted books or plays when the subject matter has little or no connection with the name."

Thus the principle of the Pure Food law is to be extended to amusements. The article states that "it was said by the commission" that such practices do "an irreparable injury to the playhouses and injure the industry in the eyes of the public."

One would like to be advised why any amusement enterprise should be protected against itself, and what the cost to the taxpayers is going to be of a Federal supervision of the quality of moving picture productions. Applied to necessaries of life, there is a sound basis for protection, under the police power, against false labeling and similar devices that permit the sale of an essential of subsistence as a superior article. Justification for extending this principle to amusements is not apparent but, evidently, to the bureaucratic mind there is no distinction between necessaries of life and luxuries or superfluities.

CORN IN THE FORTIES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of the immense yield of corn this year, the following may be of interest to your readers. My grandfather, Evan Griffith, who was in London in 1847, the year of the Irish Famine, told this story:

Going into the banking office of Baring Bros. Mr. Bates, the American partner of the firm, said that at a dinner given by Lord John Russell the conversation turned to the Irish Famine and to the relief given by the United States; then to the marvelous products of the States. Lord John said he had heard that maize or Indian corn was grown with as many as twelve or fourteen rows to the ear. Mr. Bates said he had seen as many as twenty, and there was a general laugh.

Mr. Bates said that they might laugh but he would wager a dinner to the company that he would prove his assertion. Lord John said, "Done." Mr. Bates asked my grandfather what he thought about it. My grandfather told him that he was quite safe, and when he returned to New York he wrote to Rogers & Reynolds, the largest grain exporters in the Wabash Valley (where at that time our greatest harvests were grown), telling them of the wager and begging them for the honor of the States to come to the rescue. In due course he received a handsome brass-mounted oak box in which were six ears of corn of the variety called horse tooth. Two ears had twenty-eight, two thirty and two thirty-two rows. The box with its contents was forwarded to Mr. Bates. Lord John Russell gave the dinner, and, as Henry J. Raymond expressed it in his account in THE NEW YORK TIMES, "Acknowledged the Corn." The corn was placed in the British Museum.

The Soldiers' Rest.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is an ideal home for our soldiers, sailors and marines who were disabled in the war, the Soldiers' Rest, in Virginia. The head is Captain H. G. Stephens, whose secretary is Lieutenant J. F. Beattie, both of whom are soldiers. Soldiers' Rest is at Griffensburg, Culpeper County, Va., in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains. The spacious old farmhouse and its lands have been in the family of Captain Stephens for generations, and it was by him that the home was established in 1920. A year later the home received financial support when the Washington Lest We Forget Association, instead of creating a camp of its own, joined the Soldiers' Rest movement. The officers of this organization are: Mrs. Warren G. Harding, Honorary Chairman; Mrs. John Allen Dougherty, Chairman; Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, Vice Chairman; Roland Robbins, Treasurer.

Soldiers' Rest is endorsed by the Veterans' Bureau, by which medical care is arranged. This and nature's remedies, wholesome food, comfortable living and a proper amount of work and exercise have done more for these men than can be described.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reference to the pollution of our neighboring beaches by refuse pumped from oil-burning ships, it would seem to me that the companies operating such ships could carry enough steel drums or oil barrels to pump this refuse into and deliver it to docks at their port of call.

There are enough railroads with sidings, dirt or gravel ballasted, to take this refuse from the docks without charge and return the receptacles. The refuse ought to make an ideal top dressing to prevent dust in dry seasons, and it would also answer for highways. Corporations are now paying good prices for similar material for the above purpose, and it would seem that there should be enough demand for it to keep the docks clear.

A Plan to Settle the Strike.

I suggest the following as a basis for the settlement of the strike:

Let all the men whose places are still vacant be re-employed, with unimpaired seniority rights. Where places have been filled offer the new incumbents a bonus of, say, one month's pay if they will resign. Wherever this offer is accepted let the old men be reinstated with unimpaired seniority rights; where it is rejected let the new incumbents keep their places and the strikers lose their jobs. The bonus is to be paid 75 per cent. by the railroads and 25 by the returning workmen.

Cleveland and the Mails.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am hoping you may be able to give chapter and verse, as I cannot, for the characteristic anecdote of Mr. Cleveland, told me not very long ago. A railroad strike in the West interrupted the United States mails. President Cleveland is reported to have said: "A postal card mailed in California shall be delivered in Smithtown, Kan., if it takes the entire army of the United States to get it there."

Nurses on the Adriatic.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your report of the accident aboard the Adriatic you omit mention of two of our stewardesses who, I may inform you, are trained nurses. They were called out at 1:30 in the morning to render assistance and were up night and day attending the poor fellows who were injured. A great deal of praise is due Miss Lynns and Miss Boothby.

ON CRUSHING A CATERPILLAR.

As men must break and bend when gods
Their narrow walks pass through,
So have you tasted Death too young
Through me, a worm like you.
For we were brothers, you and I,
With hands outstretched to grope
Our ways o'er perilous ascents
In search of fleeing hope.

Like you, I, too, have harbored dreams
Of wings to bear me far;
I mouthed high boasts, my sacred vaunt
To ride the farthest star.
But ill-winds blew and tempests raged
O'er field and crested mere;
My budding wings are one with a dim
Remembered yesteryear.

But Life at least was kind to you
In granting quick surcease;
From feet that err like these of mine
You have eternal peace.
When breaks the tender chrysalis,
When Summer dreams are told,
And fairy patterned arabesques
Emblazon webs of gold;

When comrades dear whose stars gleam now,
Whose limbs are firm and strong,
Sweep by to taste the unknown joy
With raillery and song,
You, little one, in Lethean sleep,
Serenely calm will lie;
You will not see your friends don wings

GIFTS TO THE ART MUSEUM.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Presents Quentin's Silver Porringer.

Among the recent accessions to the Metropolitan Museum of Art the last month—one which has not only the charm of its own quality but a sentimental interest from its previous ownership, is an 18th century silver porringer. This is a gift from Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, and comes with its pedigree from the time it was made by the silversmith William Moulton through the Roosevelt family and to Quentin Roosevelt, to whom it would have descended but for his early death.

Its first owner in revolutionary days was the daughter of Nathaniel Gorham. In the Spring of this year another silver porringer, made by another Colonial silversmith, but which had been owned by Nathaniel Gorham, had come to the Museum as a loan, and was announced in the Museum Bulletin. It was following this announcement that Mrs. Roosevelt wrote the President of the Museum saying that the porringer might be lonely without a mate, and if they would accept it she would be glad to present the one which had been intended for Quentin. When the Museum wrote that it would gladly accept the beautiful old piece of silver Mrs. Roosevelt answered:

"I am deeply gratified that space is found for Quentin's porringer within the walls where he passed so many happy hours of his short and happy life. As country people say: I could not 'feel to' have it anywhere else."

The porringer is absolutely simple in design and workmanship, only a little openwork in the handle where are the initials H. L. for Elizabeth Leighton. The Roosevelts have the portrait of this lady wearing a low-cut bodice with a frill around the neck, a deeper ruffle outlining the lower edge of the full draped body over a very full long skirt. The full sleeves reach half way to the elbow and an ermine-trimmed mantle is slipping from the shoulders. The hair worn back from the face is finished with curls. There is a bird on a tree beside her. Mrs. Roosevelt says of the original owner of the porringer:

"The portrait of Elizabeth Leighton, its first owner, hangs here. She is prim and childish in her stiff bodice and full skirts. A parrot perches on a Lilliputian tree at her elbow. She died as Mme. Lee, stately and full of years, in Norwich, Conn., and there her memory still lived but a few years since, though all her descendants had gone."

Elizabeth Gorham m. John Leighton.
Elizabeth Leighton m. Benjamin Lee, 1797.
Emily Lee m. Daniel Tyler, 1832.
Quentin Roosevelt.

In different rooms in the Egyptian Department there have been put on exhibition Egyptian antiquities of unusual interest, the gift of Edward S. Harkness. There are treasures of antiquity from old tombs, a beautiful decanter in a wonderful green tone in faience, with an inscription; a goblet in alabaster, in the form of a lotus flower, also with an inscription, gifts of a great king to a favored subject over 1,000 years B. C. There is a signet ring in the fine unalloyed gold of the Egyptians, a magnificent ring, one of the finest rings of its kind which have come down from antiquity and in intrinsic value, if its value was computed in that way, worth at least $50 from the weight of the gold alone. There are figures in alabaster and in ivory, and among the examples of the work of the sculptors of the period are trial pieces, some of them perhaps the work of pupils, and portraits at the beginning of the actual portrait period.

In the armor department there has been placed on view an exhibition of Japanese sword mounts, an unusual exhibition for it is gathered from the collections of members of the Armor and Arms Club, who have famous collections. There are some 450 items, altogether, representing the masters of this equally decorative work, painters, chiselers and lacquerers combining their arts, often in a single tiny piece. There is also an exhibit of coins in the main armor gallery. On these are interesting studies of contemporary armor and the coins date from the Middle Ages to the close of the Eighteenth Century. This collection has recently been presented to the Museum.

TOD DEFENDS ELLIS ISLAND.

Commissioner Denies Slackening of Morale at Station.

Immigration Commissioner Todd at Ellis Island said that there was no controversy between himself and Commissioner General W. W. Husband at Washington over the Special Board of Review to hear immigration appeals from decisions of the special inquiry boards. There had been, he said, a difference of opinion as to whether such a board should be established.

The Board of Review was established in July by Commissioner Tod, with permission of Secretary of Labor Davis; but functioned only a week, not long enough, Commissioner Tod believes, to get into efficient operation. He said that the reports of a controversy were merely propaganda emanating from hostile political sources.

The Commissioner also denied that there was a slackening of morale at Ellis Island, as charged. He admitted that there was some dissatisfaction, due, he said, to the fact that through an error in Commissioner Husband's office there had been $160,000 too little appropriated for the department, with the result that inspectors had been forced to take furloughs of a month each.

The Baltic American line steamship Latvia arrived yesterday with more than 1,000 repatriated Poles returning to the United States after fighting in the Polish Army for several years. The hundreds of friends and relatives who went to the pier at the foot of Forty-sixth Street, Brooklyn, to greet the returning soldiers were disappointed, as they were sent to Hoffman Island to have their effects fumigated. They probably will be released tomorrow.

Special exemption was made to allow the men to return to the United States. Their friends had planned a big reception, but the health officers decided upon a preliminary fumigation.

LIMITS SENATORSHIP FUNDS.

Committee for Restricting Campaign Cost to $10,000.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—A Senate elections subcommittee today agreed upon an amendment to the Corrupt Practices act, which would limit the campaign expenses of Senators in general elections to $10,000.

The amendment was said to follow the outline of the bill of Senator Pomerene of Ohio, and will be submitted to the full committee soon in the hope of action before Congress adjourns.

DEFENDS HUGHES ON CABLE POLICY

GOVERNMENT AID NEEDED

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 17.—Interest at the Institute of Politics today was divided between the public lecture this morning by Raymond Recouly of Paris, who discussed journalism and international politics, and the discussion in the round table on international journalism and international electrical communication services, where Walter S. Rogers reiterated his demand that the United States have a system of cable communication that is comprehensive and well rounded enough to meet political, military and commercial needs.

Mr. Rogers discussed the history and significance of the cable monopolies running until 1931 held by British and Danish companies. He pointed out the unfortunate effect upon relations between the United States and Great Britain and Japan through the latter powers sustaining the monopolies.

The virtual monopoly held by Great Britain over cable lines, Mr. Rogers said, dated from the laying of the first transatlantic cable in 1858.

"The cabled greeting of President Buchanan to Queen Victoria, expressing the hope that all nations might unite to guarantee the neutrality of the cable," said Mr. Rogers, "has never resulted in any such agreement."

Going on to the lines from China to Europe, Mr. Rogers showed how a Danish and a British company obtained a monopoly by an agreement with the Chinese Government at the time when responsible government was completely demoralized and virtually non-existent as a result of the Boxer rebellion. The purpose of these monopolies, declared Mr. Rogers, was to keep the United States from entering the Chinese field and ever since that time the British cable interests have resisted the efforts of American companies to institute direct communication with China except with the agreement of the British and Danish concerns operating there.

Mr. Rogers said that in spite of Great Britain's almost complete control of the world's cables she had found it profitable to accord fair treatment and good service impartially to all.

In reply to the criticism which Newcomb Carlton made in THE NEW YORK TIMES of today regarding the delays caused by the State Department in the issuance of cable landing licenses, Mr. Rogers said:

"I quite agree with Mr. Carlton as to the desirability of the prompt granting of cable licenses, but Mr. Carlton has overlooked the fact in his interview that the recent delay has been due to the efforts of the State Department to break down cable monopolies in foreign countries. While this has resulted in certain delays, the policy of Mr. Hughes if successful will create a situation permitting a much wider development of American cable system in the future.

"As to the German cables, in asking a constructive program what I said was that the Government lacked a comprehensive program for furthering the development of American communications with other countries. What Mr. Hughes is doing is a part of such a program and is very valuable part. What is needed, now, is if the United States is to have a system of communications adequate to meet American political, military and commercial needs, is a comprehensive, well-rounded, constructive program. Such a program involves not alone satisfactory situation as to landing licenses, but the definite enc

By Cable and Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The funeral service for Viscount Northcliffe was held in Westminster Abbey at noon today and was attended by a great gathering of representative men and women, including many directly or indirectly connected with newspaper production.

The Prince of Wales was represented by General Cetter, Prime Minister Lloyd George by Sir Edward Grigg, formerly a newspaper man, and Winston Churchill by J. E. Stephenson. American Ambassador Harvey and the French Ambassador, Comte de Saint Aulaire, were present with a number of other members of the Diplomatic Corps and representatives of several of the British Dominions.

The chief mourners were Lady Northcliffe and Viscountess Rogers and members of their families. Mrs. Harmsworth, Lord Northcliffe's aged mother, was not able to be present.

Only two wreaths were placed on the coffin when it was moved from the late Viscount's residence in Carlton House Gardens to Westminster, one inscribed "From His Wife" and the other bearing the words "With Everlasting Love, Mother." Eight motor cars filled with floral tributes were driven straight to the Cemetery of St. Marylebone, where the Harmsworths have a family vault. The Bishop of Birmingham conducted the service at the grave.

There were large crowds outside Westminster Abbey and along the route of the funeral procession. The concourse at the cemetery is said to have been the greatest ever seen there.

Noticeable among the many hundreds of floral tributes was a representation of "the chief's vacant chair," sent by the staffs of Lord Northcliffe's papers.

Simplicity Marks Funeral.

LONDON, Aug. 17 (Associated Press).—Viscount Northcliffe was laid to rest this afternoon in St. Marylebone Cemetery, Finchley, with services of simplicity, beauty and solemnity.

The funeral ceremonies in Westminster Abbey were devoid of all the pomp usually associated with the last rites to the country's national figures. They were in consonance with the great journalist's unostentatious life and character; Lord Northcliffe's favorite hymn was sung and the Dead March in Saul and Chopin's Funeral March were played.

There was not a single military, naval or other uniform visible in the Abbey. The interior of the church was a broad expanse of sombre black. Men high in the world of State, church, diplomacy and journalism were present.

Americans at the Service.

Several hundred British newspaper men marched from Fleet Street to the cathedral to pay silent tribute. American journalists who had enjoyed Lord Northcliffe's acquaintance were in the front rows in the Cathedral.

There were no honorary pallbearers. The massive open coffin, covered with a pall of silk and gold, was borne into the edifice by eight attendants of the Abbey. The cortege filed past the tomb of the unknown British soldier on its way to the catafalque before the altar, while the celebrant of the service repeated the stately sentences of the ritual: "I am the resurrection and the life."

The coffin was followed by Lord Northcliffe's widow, who, bowed with emotion, was supported by Lord Rothermere and Cecil Harmsworth, brothers of the dead journalist. Then came other relatives and close friends. George Harvey, the American Ambassador, occupied a pew near the choir. Next to the widow, the most pathetic figure in the cathedral was Lord Northcliffe's disabled brother, Vyvyan Harmsworth, who was wheeled to the altar in an invalid's chair.

The subdued sobs of women relatives, as well as women employes and others whom Lord Northcliffe had aided, could be heard above the solemn stillness of the Abbey.

Great Crowds Pay Tribute.

As the coffin was borne from the church for interment in St. Marylebone Cemetery, the bells tolled a dirge. Immense crowds stood reverent and uncovered as the procession moved out of Parliament Square and past the statue of Abraham Lincoln. A light but continuous rain and sodden skies lent additional melancholy to the occasion.

Prominent personages present included: P. G. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner; Sir Richard Squiers, Premier of Newfoundland; Lieut. Gov. Grant of Nova Scotia, and most of the foreign Ambassadors to the Court of St. James.

Among the mourners were Lord Northcliffe's six brothers, Viscount Rothermere, Cecil B. Harmsworth, Sir Robert Leicester Harmsworth, Hildebrand Aubrey, St. John and Vyvyan George Harmsworth.

Newspaper Directors Present.

Others present were Sir John Kaill, acting Lord Mayor of London, the directorates of The London Times and the allied Northcliffe publications, and representatives of all the London newspapers, news organizations, printing trades and distributing agencies, prominent among whom were Viscount Cowdray, Viscount Burnham, Lord Waring, Baron Montagu of Beaulieu, Baron Stuart of Wortley, Sir Thomas Lipton and Rudyard Kipling.

Floral offerings from all over the world were so numerous that the rooms of the Northcliffe home resembled a huge flower garden. There were many wreaths from representatives of American newspapers, business and civic organizations and friends. Scores of floral tokens were from the staffs of the various publications with which Lord Northcliffe was identified. Many of these were inscribed simply, "To Our Chief." One of them was a mass of flowers in the form of a closed book from the day staff of The Daily Mail, bearing the lines from Longfellow's "Psalm of Life," beginning "Lives of great men all remind us—"

Most conspicuous of all the floral offerings, perhaps, was a magnificent broken column of white flowers from the directors of the Associated Newspapers.

Ambassador Harvey interrupted his vacation in Scotland to be present at the funeral. He was accompanied by Consul General Robert P. Skinner and Post Wheeler, Counselor to the American Embassy.

Buried Beside His Father.

The body of Lord Northcliffe was buried beside that of his father. The services at the grave were conducted by the Bishop of Birmingham. Over the grave flowers were banked in profusion, tokens from persons of high and low degree.

Lady Northcliffe, through Ambassador Harvey, today sent a message of grateful thanks to President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes for their condolences. Other messages received today by Lady Northcliffe from persons offering their sympathy were from William Howard Taft, Chief Justice of the United States; Signor Orlando, former Premier of Italy, and Senor Edwards, the Chilean Minister to Great Britain. She asked The Associated Press to convey her profound appreciation of messages from the United States and Canada.

Capt. Robertson was a member of the 96th Company of the famous Sixth Marine Regiment. In the Marine attack on German positions he led a platoon through terrific artillery and machine gun fire, and stormed the fortified positions in Bouresches, which he afterward held against German counter-attacks for two days, although nearly all of his men were killed or wounded and he himself was wounded and gassed. For his gallantry on this occasion he was cited by both French and American Armies and received the Distinguished Service Cross, the Navy Cross, and the Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre with palm by the French.

TOWNS BURN, 6 DIE IN MINNESOTA FIRES

MILITIA CALLED TO HELP

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 17 (Associated Press).—Six known dead, hundreds homeless, five or more villages wiped out and a dozen others in imminent danger was the apparent toll tonight of a series of forest fires which swept Northeastern Minnesota today, causing the worst conflagration since 1918, when 400 persons lost their lives.

Official reports tonight said that Fairbanks, Silver Creek and Pimie, in Lake County, all small settlements, had been destroyed, the refugees mainly fleeing to two harbors. Cotton and Central Lakes, in St. Louis County, also were reported destroyed.

Fires were reported in Wisconsin, where it was said the City of Drummond was menaced. Telephone communication with that place was interrupted and no details were available.

Governor J. A. O. Preus tonight personally took charge of the situation, ordering out National Guardsmen here for relief duty.

Drought conditions have increased the menace to alarming proportions, according to State forestry officials, and tonight more than 2,000 men were fighting the fires in various sections.

The cars were menacing Eveleth, a town of 7,500 population, this afternoon. Every man available was rushed to the fires, which, fanned by a strong northwest wind, were threatening from the west and south. On the west Eveleth is protected by a large open pit mine, and the real danger is that fire might be driven into the town from the south.

Kinney, a town of 200 inhabitants, just northwest of here, was said to be in great danger. It was estimated that 1,000 men had left Eveleth in automobiles for the main fire front.

HYLAN TO LEND AID IN SAFETY CAMPAIGN

Accepts Judge Gary's Offer of Honorary Chairman for City Drive in October.

ENRIGHT ALSO WILL HELP

Police and Many Organizations to Co-operate in Week of Accident Prevention.

In a letter to Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Public Safety Committee of the Safety Institute of America, which plans an intensive campaign of safety for New York City, Mayor Hylan yesterday accepted the Honorary Chairmanship of the Committee. Police Commissioner Enright became head of the campaign's Police Committee.

The Mayor in his letter of acceptance said he would be glad to act as Honorary Chairman of the Committee, "which will seek by an aggressive campaign of education to reduce the annually increasing toll of deaths by accident in the City of New York.

"There can be no doubt that a more preponderating sentiment in favor of protection will be created by a better understanding of the mutual responsibilities of the pedestrian public and the drivers of motor and other vehicles. A more widespread recognition of these responsibilities will help immeasurably in cutting down fatal automobile accidents."

When he asked the Police Commissioner to aid the safety drive, Judge Gary pointed out that the committee which Mr. Enright would join would have two important functions, to outline a program of activities for the police during safety week, and to secure the co-operation of various individuals and agencies in assisting the police to safeguard the streets. In all of this work, he said, the staff of the Safety Institute would be at the Police Commissioner's command.

"In cities in which successful safety campaigns have been conducted, as you are well aware," Judge Gary wrote, "the police have played a very important part in reducing the toll of deaths and injuries on the streets. The citizens of New York are proud of their efficient police force, and they are well aware of the splendid service which the police render every day to safeguard the lives of the millions who walk and drive upon our streets.

"We feel sure that with your leadership in this campaign your army of 11,400 men will not only sustain its splendid record but will add new laurels to it."

At a conference of Police Commissioner Enright, Laurence Vail Coleman, Director of the Safety Institution, and C. W. Price, who has conducted similar campaigns in other cities, the following tentative program of police participation in New York's Safety Week, Oct. 8 to 14, was worked out subject to change or modification:

Parade of a regiment of police in Fifth Avenue on Wednesday of Safety Week, which has been designated as Police Day.

At noon the same day the presentation by Mayor Hylan of a gold medal to be awarded by the Safety Institute to the policeman who has performed the most meritorious act in saving child life within the year.

In the afternoon a children's story entitled "The Policeman, Our Friend," will be broadcast from the principal radio stations.

On Friday 200 Boy Scouts, after proper training by instructors from the Police Department, will be placed to observe and assist traffic officers in charge of traffic for a brief period at strategic points about the city.

Throughout the week every citizen in the city will be expected to wear a button reading, "We Are Helping Make New York Safe."

REPARATION BOARD MAY END DEADLOCK

BRUSSELS EXPECTS ACCORD

FRENCH DESIRE AGREEMENT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 17.—Heroic efforts have been made all day by members of the Reparation Commission, acting on instructions from their Governments, to reach a compromise decision on the German moratorium.

The initiative was taken by Belgium, which, with the Reparation Commission scheduled to meet this morning at 11 o'clock, was faced with a hasty choice between the English and French points of view. At the instance of M. Delacroix the meeting was called off while unofficial negotiations were begun. It is stated tonight that the chances are even that the Reparation Commission will find a decision to which both England and France can subscribe.

There are four votes on the commission—England, France, Italy and Belgium. Italy and England favor granting Germany a moratorium until the end of 1924, to which M. Poincaré in London refused to agree. The matter, therefore, went back to the Reparation Commission. Should Belgium vote with France, which is probable, there would be two against two, which would mean rejection of the moratorium motion. Were Belgium to vote with England, the commission's decision would stand in favor of a moratorium.

Forcing of Vote Dangerous.

Of course, it would have been a simple procedure to force a vote and have the decision recorded, but that would have been dangerous, it was realized, apparently just in time. Were the vote two to two and a moratorium refused thereby, it is not to be supposed that England and Italy would vote to take coercive steps as the result of a decision reached against their will. Were a moratorium granted, the French Cabinet had decided not to permit Germany to take advantage, with respect to France's dues, of a suspension of payment France had opposed. Either decision would thus have put the Entente in an extremely critical position.

As the result of private talks among members of the commission it is possible that a compromise will be reached by which France in return for guarantees less than she demanded at London will consent to a moratorium much shorter than Mr. Lloyd George favored at London, and in the meanwhile another and larger conference will be called. It is too early now to try and indicate what this compromise may be in detail, since no one now knows. It may be several days before the Reparation Commission meets formally, and then it may hear German representatives before acting.

Although M. Poincaré is determined, and unquestionably he has the whole Cabinet behind him, as he would have the Parliament were it called, nevertheless, the French position has weak features due to provisions of the Versailles Treaty. The treaty gives the powers the right to act if default by Germany is declared by the Reparation Commission. But half the Reparation Commission at least favors suspending Germany's payments, which means they would not vote Germany in default. Without such a vote, where is France's legal right to take separate action?

On the other hand, for France to declare herself not bound by the commission would require a year's notice or else a refusal to be bound by the treaty terms, which would amount to tearing up her mortgage on Germany. It is therefore apparent that under the circumstances France can perhaps afford new sacrifices if they will maintain allied accord, especially in view of the fact that no international loan for Germany is possible without the co-operation of the British.

As the situation is put by the Government-inspired papers tonight, what France demands is that the moratorium be not a prize given Germany for getting insolvent, but that it be the means of enabling Germany to get up with the assurance that she will get up to pay reparations. Convinced of the absence of German good faith, France insists upon guarantees in the form of German state-owned property and new customs.

It is worth while remarking, in view of the mess the treaty provisions have made of things, that the Reparation Commission was drafted in expectation that there would be five votes, including that of the United States. Were there five votes instead of four much of the absurdity of the present situation would not exist.

Millerand Anxious for Accord.

PARIS, Aug. 17 (Associated Press).—A compromise settlement on the German reparations problem acceptable both to France and Great Britain was regarded as probable by Reparation Commission officials tonight.

The Reparation Commission takes the view that France is entitled to demand further guarantees and that the basis of the new proposals suggested by the British delegate and others is additional security which would bring in more money than is suggested. Such measures and at the same time would not cause political disturbances. Commission experts say that Poincaré's proposal to take over German State forests, if adopted, would cause an open breach between the Berlin and Bavarian Governments.

The desire of the French Government to settle the reparation crisis within the commission and thus avoid independent action by France is reliably reported to be due to the policy of President Millerand, who wishes to explore every avenue of settlement within the Entente before embarking on an independent course and thus bring to an end Franco-British co-operation.

The belief persists in official and reparation quarters that if the present crisis can be bridged until the end of the year, the forthcoming American elections may bring a change of heart regarding the attitude of the United States toward its European debtors, when another possible some cancellation of debts and thereby favorably affect the reparation problem.

The Italians and Belgians are working hard to effect a temporary agreement which will tide over the crisis until November or December, when another allied conference is expected to be held.

The Reparation Commission is concerned over reports that the British Foreign Office takes issue with the idea that the President of the commission has the right to cast the deciding vote in case of a tie. It was said today in official French quarters that no treaty provision exists giving the President of the commission this right, but that precedent for this has been established in several minor cases. The British take the view that the question of a moratorium is too grave to be decided upon precedent based on minor matters.

Belgium Expected to Renew Offer.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 17 (Associated Press).—The Belgian proposal to accept German long-time notes, endorsed by German banks, in lieu of cash reparations payments will, it is widely believed, again be presented to the Allies through M. Delacroix, the Belgian member of the Reparation Commission.

This plan, which was broached at the London conference, is one of the several compromises on the reparations question which the Reparation Commission is discussing in Paris in an effort to save the Entente from threatened destruction. It would avoid the granting of a moratorium to Germany, which is so objectionable to France, yet it would have virtually the same effect, as Germany would not have to find cash.

Belgium, which is to get all the 1922 German payments under the priority agreement, would under the plan get negotiable paper which it is believed could be converted into cash through American banks.

WIRTH SAYS GERMANY NEEDS WORLD'S AID

Republic and Its Achievements Have Received No Recognition, Chancellor Complains.

By CYRIL BROWN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—Chancellor Wirth, considering the consequences to Germany of the mark's collapse, expresses the view that Premier Poincaré will find few persons outside of France and many within it to take seriously his charge that Germany is pursuing a policy of systematic depreciation of the mark.

"These consequences," said the Chancellor in an interview, "are obvious. They would mean the further impoverishment and progressive misery of broad sections of the people; an end to the most necessary imports of food and raw materials; the complete selling out of stocks of goods; hunger outbreaks of desperation among the masses; the undermining of all governmental authority; the annihilation of working capital for German industries and the laming of production. In view of these consequences the idea that a government or the leaders of private economy would work to bring about the collapse of the mark is senseless.

"The French Premier asserts that France needs 60 per cent. participation in the German chemical industry to prevent the manufacture of poison gases. As to this, it suffices to point out that the peace treaty gives the allied powers ample opportunities for controlling these manufacturing plants, and seeing that no poison gases are made there, and that more than enough use has been made of this control right. The French Premier's assertion is simply a pretext for prying into the business processes of German industry and for eliminating the competition of German industry.

"M. Poincaré declined to appeal to the League of Nations for the decision of juridical and controversial questions, as Mr. Lloyd George proposed. How much confidence can the German people then have in the impartiality of a League of Nations to which the French Premier himself denies authority to make a decision merely because neutral powers are represented therein?

"What recognition has the German Republic and its achievements received from the outside world? None. The vitally necessary insight may, like German policy during the war, come too late, and then a German-European catastrophe cannot be avoided. The world should demand that the reparation problem be viewed purely from the economic side and that then the political consequences be drawn from them.

HEAT KILLS WORKMAN; 3 ARE PROSTRATED

One death and two prostrations from the heat were reported in New York City yesterday. The thermometer climbed to 90 degrees at 3 P. The temperature from 3 to 4 o'clock was three degrees higher than the maximum of Wednesday when the mercury touched 87 at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The heat wave, according to information received in this city yesterday by friends, was responsible for the prostration of Dr. Stephen Smith, New York City's oldest physician, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. C. Mason, at Montour Falls. Dr. Smith is approaching his 100th birthday.

James Hunt, 50, of 123d Street and Park Avenue, died last night in Fordham Hospital when he was taken after having been overcome by the heat at 190th Street and Sedgewick Avenue, the Bronx. He was at work on a building when he collapsed.

Frank Klausler, 57, of 314 East 144th Street, the Bronx, was overcome by the heat at 482 Westchester Avenue. After receiving medical treatment he was sent home.

Isidore Markin, 32, 187 Main Street, Astoria, L. I., was taken to Fordham Hospital from 4,489 Third Avenue, where he was overcome.

Anthony Gati, 50, of 158 East Fifty-first Street, was overcome near his home. He was attended by a physician.

PARIS, Aug. 17 (Associated Press).—Premier Poincaré has ordered the French Debt Commission, headed by Jean V. Parmentier, to return to Paris from Washington immediately, it was learned today. M. Parmentier and his aids are expected to leave New York within the next few days.

ington was merely to outline the present that M. Parmentier's mission to Washingtos was merely to outline the present financial situation of France. He was not empowered to say when France could begin payment, it was said. Having laid all the facts and figures before the Refunding Commission, M. Parmentier had nothing else to do and the Premier ordered him home, Foreign Office officials assert.

He will probably return to Washington only after the reparations crisis is over. By that time France is expected here to know how much money she can expect from Germany.

Disappointed at Mission's Result.

In well-informed quarters it was stated that the results of the Parmentier mission are not as good as was expected. It is declared that there was considerable surprise and annoyance in official circles when M. Parmentier was requested by the Refunding Commission to name a definite date when France could begin to liquidate the debt.

Premier Poincaré's attitude had been defined in a speech to the Senate on the eve of M. Parmentier's sailing early in July. The Premier then said that all the Allies had profited equally by the use of the money borrowed from the United States. France did not repudiate her share, he declared, but if France was expected to pay fully, she in turn expected to be paid not only the sums she lent to other Allies, but also the reparations due her from Germany.

The Premier referred to the fact that the international bankers interrupted their recent deliberations concerning an international loan for Germany when France announced that she could not abandon any part of her reparations claims.

France, as was intimated by M. Poincaré at that time, feels that any settlement of the interallied debt situation must be a general one, in which she is not the only loser.

It is known that M. Parmentier immediately cabled M. Poincaré the nature of the Refunding Commission's request, and that the Premier received the cable in London. Reports that he instructed M. Parmentier to reply that no date could be fixed until the reparations difficulties were settled are said to be untrue. It is understood that the Government prefers not to give a definite reply to this question until later in the year.

It is believed that the French Government hoped M. Parmentier would not be asked to name a definite date for the payments, and that the American Government would see how difficult it would be to fix a date in view of the reparations and interallied debts question. However, it was made clear today that France wishes to comply as fully as possible with the request of the Refunding Commission, and the hope was expressed that when M. Parmentier returns, France will be in a position to submit some definite proposition.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The recall of M. Parmentier, head of the French Debt Commission now in Washington, was due solely to the desire of Premier Poincaré, who wished to get a verbal report on the negotiations with the American World War Debt Refunding Commission up to date, so Count de Chambrun, Chargé d'Affaires of the French Embassy, stated today.

Negotiations have not been broken off or interrupted, the count said, and M. Parmentier very likely will return to Washington in the Autumn with definite proposals for an understanding to refund the French debt.

M. Parmentier plans to sail for France, in company with M. Le Neveu, the other member of the Debt Commission, next Wednesday, it was stated.

At the Treasury Department a statement was given out this afternoon on behalf of the World War Foreign Debt Commission, of which Secretary Mellon is Chairman. It said:

"M. Parmentier and his associate, M. Le Neveu, conferred informally today with the World War Foreign Debt Commission. M. Parmentier informed the commission that he had consulted with his Government by cable as to the results of previous conferences with the commission, and that his Government had asked him to return to Paris for a full discussion of the situation as it had developed up to date.

"The commission expressed to M. Parmentier its belief that it could only be beneficial to have a complete statement in personal conference with the French Government as to the conversations which have taken place between M. Parmentier and the commission."

REPUDIATED BY MOTHER WON'T TAKE HER ESTATE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—The bulk of the estate of Mrs. Teresa Bell, valued at about $1,000,000, will go to the State and will not be contested by the three men and two women, whom she cut off with $5 each, although they believed her to be their mother, according to The San Francisco Call. The Call gives as its authority Reginald Bell, a Tulare County banker and one of the five legatees.

Mrs. Bell stipulated in her will that the estate must go to the State or any possible relatives who could prove a better claim to it, after some bequests were taken from it. She repudiated her parentage of the five, who believe her to be their mother, and, as far as is known, there are no other relatives eligible to start a contest.

The decision not to contest was reached because the five felt that the estate was not the property of Mrs. Bell. The question of parentage did not enter into the decision, the five feeling that their kinship to Mrs. Bell as children was established by church and other records, despite her denial. The Call article did not say to whom the five believed the estate belonged.

Northwestern Bans Married Instructors; Pay Too Small for Them to Keep Wives

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—Northwestern University today put up a barrier against married instructors engaged from now on, unless they have independent means.

In a statement made by Professor Roy C. Flickinger, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, it was explained that the $35 to $40 a week average salary of instructors is too little to support families in the expensive Evanstonian atmosphere.

Salaries at Northwestern are as high as in other universities, Dean Flickinger asserted; but the cost of living in Evanston is far higher than in most university towns and the social demands, with their attendant expense, are greater.

The result is, according to the Dean, that wives of instructors have in the past been forced to clerk in Evanston stores to make both ends meet. The husband, burdened by debt and the worries of trying to maintain his family on a meagre salary of $1,600 to $2,000, is unable to give his mind to his work, and the educational value of the instructors suffers accordingly.

Said Dean Flickinger:

"I am decidedly opposed to marriage for men who expect to make college teaching their life work. It should be delayed, at least until they get their doctor's degree and are assured of sufficient income to support their families and thus be able to give their entire time and thought to their important duties."

When Dean Flickinger came to the University as an instructor in 1905 he received only $800 a year—and he was married.

ENVER PASHA SLAIN BY SOVIET FORCE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Aug. 16.—Enver Pasha met his death in a desperate battle against odds in Southeastern Bokhara territory between Knovalingam and Barljuan on Aug. 4. The Turkish leader had been pressed severely by Soviet troops during the past months until he was virtually surrounded with a small body of cavalry of seven or eight sabres.

At the beginning of August Enver saw the red corps closing in from every side, and determined to attempt to break through. Reports state he divided his force into two sections, one of which appears, for a time, to have overcome the Russians opposed to it. Enver seized the advantage for a charge towards freedom, but the Russians rallied, and in a hand-to-hand combat Enver fell, pierced by five wounds.

The body was identified after the fight by documents, seals, &c., beyond the possibility of doubt.

The majority of his partisans surrendered and the insurrectionary movement is now considered at an end.

With the death of Enver Pasha the entire Turkish triumvirate, notorious alike for having steered Turkey into the World War on the side of Germany and to have actively schemed to solve the problem of minorities by annihilation, has now been wiped out by violent deaths.

First there was Talaat Pasha, who as a member of the Young Turk Government at Stamboul, frankly confessed to foreign envoys on the eve of war that the only way to solve the Armenian problem was by annihilating the race. From 1915 until the end of the war he put his theory into practice. Five years later in Berlin he met his death at the hands of an Armenian student, who was promptly acquitted by a German court after an array of documents tending to justify the deed had been read into the records.

Then there was Djemal Pasha, who, having been Minister of Marine before the war, was made Military Governor of Syria after Turkey entered the conflict. On his arrival at Damascus he pretended to show slight respect for the authorities at Stamboul and, by agents, encouraged in the Autumn the revolt of the Beirut Reform League against the Government. On his staff, however, was Emin Nuri Shalan, Incognito in the interests of the Grand Sherif of Mecca, who is now King of Hejaz. This Emin discovered that all Djemal wanted of the Beirut Reform League was to learn the names of the members. Arabs, Jews and Christians. There was no revolt, but a great round-up, followed by hundreds of executions. After the war Djemal allied himself with the Ameer of Afghanistan. He went to Berlin to buy supplies for the army, of which he had become Chief of Staff. On his return, in the middle of last July, Armenians killed him at Tiflis.

All three leaders had fled from Stamboul by the time the Allied troops occupied Constantinople, in October, 1918, and a few months later a Turkish court-martial condemned them to death "in contumacia."

Enver Pasha was one of the most romantic and adventurous figures in Islam. He began his career as an agitator for the Young Turks and was one of the triumvirate which made a successful coun d'état and dethroned Sultan Abdul Hamid.

He became Chief of Staff of the Turkish Army in January, 1913. In a British Government White Paper he was blamed for Turkey's entrance into the war on the side of Germany. He held several conferences during the war with the German high command and with Emperor William himself. He had unbounded confidence in the impenetrability of the Dardanelles.

In 1917 he became Minister of War. After peace was concluded he was forced to flee from Turkey, where he was accused of war profiteering and kindred activities.

He then was reported to have engaged in a conspiracy with the Bolsheviki to facilitate their invasion of Egypt, India and Afghanistan. He made frequent trips to Moscow, and was often found in conference with Premier Lenin. Through his offices a treaty of peace was signed between the Government of Bokhara and the Soviets.

At the beginning of this year, he was accused by the Soviets of betraying them. A like charge was made against him by the Turks, and both sought his arrest, but he always managed to elude his pursuers. He has carried on a campaign in recent months against the Bolsheviki. His last effort was an attempt to become the Emir of Turkestan.

D'ANNUNZIO'S SIGHT SAVED.

GARDONE RIVIERA, Italy, Aug. 17.—All of Gabriele d'Annunzio's admirers were greatly relieved today when, after an examination of the patient, Professor Cirincione pronounced that his sight was safe. After immediate danger was passed so far as the life of the soldier-poet was concerned, fear was entertained that even if he recovered he might lose the use of his left eye. D'Annunzio, in an accident during the war, lost the use of his right eye.

King Victor Emmanuel has sent Colonel Maioli to inquire about the condition of d'Annunzio.

D'Annunzio's condition, although still grave, is perceptibly improving. Yesterday he recovered from his torpor for a few minutes and was able to pronounce a few words. He understood what was said to him, and the doctors were able to get him to swallow a little milk and mineral water.

PEKING GOVERNMENT IS NEAR COLLAPSE

CHANGE IS EXPECTED SOON

Tsao Kun and General Chang Are Awaiting Time When President Will Give Up the Struggle.

PEKING, Aug. 17 (Associated Press).—The attempt to revive popular government in China is on the verge of collapse, according to a survey of conditions brought to the attention of the foreign legations. Military leaders are openly defying the Government. Cabinet Ministers are refusing to assume the responsibilities of their posts, the Treasury is empty and civil employes, unpaid, have quit their jobs.

President Li Yuan-hung, said to be disappointed at the lack of support pledged him when he assumed office, has renewed his pleas to Sun Yat-sen to cooperate with Peking in the eleventh hour attempt to prevent the militarists obtaining compipete control of the Government.

President Li has dispatched a special envoy to Shanghai, offering Sun every facility for coming to the capital. It is considered the Chief Executive's last throw in the game to baik the Tuchuns in their designs to seize power, and to reunite the North and South, but all observers here expect it to fail. A flat refusal from Sun has been predicted.

Parliament has been brought to a standstill with dissension splitting its ranks. One faction of Cantonese is declared to be endeavoring to muster the balance of power and elect Sun Yat-sen President, while another group opposed to President Li is composed of supporters of Tsao Kun, powerful Tuchun of the North, and other militarists who are fighting to maintain the Tuchun system and thrust responsible government.

Tsao Kun is reported hovering in the offing with his eyes on the Presidential palace, prepared to seize President Li's office if the latter, disheartened, should retire.

The executive branch of the Government is paralyzed owing to refusal of Cabinet Ministers to assume the responsibility of their offices in the midst of the existing chaos. Civil employes with many arrears of pay due them, have deserted their posts. The Government has almost reached the limit of its borrowing power on future revenues in its desperate efforts to operate on an empty treasury. Its army is on the verge of mutiny, tired of waiting for its pay. The Tuchuns, or military leaders, are openly defying the President in his struggle to enforce disarmament of the provincial troops.

And, up in Mukden, capital of Manchuria, General Chang Tso-lin, ex-bandit, with a well-paid, well-organized force at his back, and a full treasure chest at his command, again is menacing Peking, from whose gates Wu Pei-fu turned him back only a few short weeks ago.

WILL NOT LET HUGHES OPEN OHIO CAMPAIGN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—President Harding today turned down a plan of prominent Ohio Republicans to have Secretary Hughes make the keynote speech at the Republican State Convention next Tuesday.

The President's decision was given at a conference at the White House in which Carmi Thompson, Republican candidate for Governor of Ohio, and Congressman Simeon D. Fess, Republican nominee for United States Senator, took part. The proposal that Secretary Hughes should deliver the speech was made in behalf of the Ohio Republican State Central Committee. It had been planned originally that Senator Frank B. Willis should be the orator of the convention, but his daughter is critically ill.

President Harding said that it would be impossible at this time for any Cabinet member to give attention to politics, when the most acute industrial crisis in many years was requiring all the energy of the Administration.

Mr. Thompson and Representative Fess discussed possible other selections with Mr. Harding, but delayed a decision until they have received the opinion of the State leaders.

The choice of the Gubernatorial nominee for Executive Committee Chairman and State campaign manager is William Miller, who directed Thompson's primary campaign, and his choice is expected to prevail. It is satisfactory to the President, whom Mr. Thompson informed today of his endorsement.

CALLED 'CHEAP SKATE,' HAS CHAUFFEUR HELD

Nahan Franko Then Pays Guilty Driver Disputed Fare Plus Tip.

Nahan Franko, the orchestra leader, last night caused the arrest of Samuel D. Jacobson, a taxicab chuffeur, after the driver called the musician a "cheap skate" for protesting a charge of $1.60 for a ride from 125 Nineteenth Street and Broadway to the Hotel McAlpin.

When Mr. Franko first refused to pay the two went to the West Thirtieth Street Station to have the charge arbitrated by the police lieutenant, who ruled that $1.10 was the proper taxicab charge for the distance. Jacobson then called Franko a "cheap skate," and the orchestra leader had him arrested. In Night Court the chauffeur argued that Mr. Franko had failed to allow for the circuits made necessary by the traffic congestion on the way downtown. The Magistrate settled the matter by finding the chauffeur guilty of disturbing the peace and suspending sentence, at the same time holding that the musician should pay the original charge of $1.60.

"There's $1.75," said Mr. Franko, including a 15-cent tip in his payment to the chauffeur.

THREE MEN HELD IN BIG WHISKY PLOT

Nine More Said to Be Involved in Illegal Withdrawal of 4,900 Cases.

Customs and prohibition authorities announced yesterday that three arrests had been made in connection with the withdrawal of 4,900 cases of Scotch whisky from the Republic Warehouse on West Thirty-fourth Street on May 28, on what is alleged to have been a forged customs permit.

The three men arrested are Jack Goldman, his brother, Abraham Goldman, alias "Al" Goldman, and Ben Katz, who are partners in a barber shop. They were taken into custody following the finding on Wednesday night of eighteen cases of whisky in their rooms in the Canton Apartments, 1,696 Broadway, which bore the serial numbers of whisky withdrawn from the Republic Warehouse.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner Hitchcock by Assistant United States District Attorney Francis A. McGuirk the defendants were required to furnish $5,000 bail each. Emmet S. Kyte, a special agent of the Treasury Department, attached ot the Custom House here, made the complaint.

John D. Appleby, Prohibition Zone Chief in charge of New York State and New Jersey, said that the whisky was stolen from the Republic Warehouse, having been withdrawn on a forged customs permit. The spurious papers, Mr. Appleby said, were presented by six men who represented themselves as prohibition agents. Whether any agents were actually involved in the transaction, either innocently or otherwise, Chief Appleby did not know, though he did say that no agent is under suspicion.

Zone Chief Appleby said that the original 4,900 cases of whisky, which so far have not been accounted for but about 1,000 cases have been found, after cutting the original bottles with alcohol and distilled water. In that way the bootleg value was increased from about $500,000 to $1,000,000.

When the steamship Homeric of the White Star Line arrived at Pier 59 yesterday morning a fleet of six motor boats was off the end of the pier. One of the sextet moved around into the slip between Pier 59 and Pier 58. Several of the seven occupants of the fifty-foot craft went aboard the Homeric. Customs Guard Charles Ostman, on the lower deck of the pier, saw the men hurriedly leave the vessel and run across the pier, their coats bulging with what Ostman believed to be contraband whisky.

The men paid no attention to Ostman's commands to halt, and jumped into the motor boat moored alongside the pier. Ostman fired three shots over their heads.

"We'll get you for that," yelled one member of the crew, which was repeated by other members. Ostman declared that in view of this threat next time he would shoot to kill.

Ostman said that he believed the men got away with at least two dozen bottles of whisky, which evidently they had received from confederates among the crew of the Homeric.

DRY LAW CONDITIONS SATISFY HAYNES

Prohibition Commissioner, However, Asks Public to Co-operate in Enforcement.

Federal Prohibition Commissioner Roy A. Haynes of Washington, who spent yesterday in this city going over some important matters in connection with the enforcement of the prohibition law in this city with Ralph A. Day, Federal Prohibition Director for this State, E. C. Yellowley of Washington, head of the general agents of the country, and Zone Chief John D. Appleby, said that he was well satisfied with the progress being made in prohibition enforcement in this State and throughout the country.

"I was never more optimistic with regard to the progress that is being made in our work," he said. "Knowing it intimately, as I do, all the details of the problems in all parts of this country, surely the friends of law enforcement can aid with their optimism and respond to the calls for support of all law enforcement agencies in various localities throughout the United States.

"Nowhere in the country has the process been more marked or more gratifying than here in New York under the splendid directorship of Mr. Day, in co-operation with the effective work of Zone Chief Appleby.

"Every city, every county, every State has the initial responsibility of cleaning up its own conditions, through locally selected officials, before the Federal machinery should be expected to take charge. In other words, there at least must be close co-operation between local agencies and Federal agencies, and I am glad to state that there is tremendous encouragement and hopefulness in the spirit of helpful co-operation being manifested here in New York."

FORD CITED ON SPITE FENCE

DETROIT, Aug. 17.—Federal Judge Tuttle directed the Ford Motor Company today to appear in the Federal Court on Aug. 23 and show cause why he should not issue a mandatory order to remove an alleged spite fence built at night, blocking an entrance to the Wayco Oil Company station leased from Henry Ford on land across from the Highland Park plant. Ford also must show cause why a temporary restraining order should not be issued against further alleged molestation.

A petition for the order was presented by Routier Nichols, representing Harry G. Schlee, an official of the oil company, who attributes the erection of the alleged spite fence to his refusal to sell benzol, Ford's motor fuel.

Nay was painting the flagpole when he lost his hold and fell to the street. Patrolman Culhane, of Traffic C, commandeered a passing automobile and took the injured man to the hospital.

SLEUTHS COME TO AID OF MRS. GIBERSON

Private Detectives Scour Lakehurst in Behalf of Woman Accused of Slaying Husband.

MURDERED MAN BURIED

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 17.—The defense in the Giberson murder case assumed the offensive today. William H. Jeffrey, attorney for Mrs. Ivy Giberson, who is in the Toms River jail, accused of having shot her husband to death while he slept, has imported private detectives from New York. These men spent a busy day in Lakehurst and its environs, and tonight Jeffrey announced that their progress had been so satisfactory he already saw an excellent prospect of being able to substantiate the woman's story. That story is that two men killed her husband, robbed him of $700, bound and gagged her and fled.

At the same time Jeffrey took occasion to deny the story which emanated from the Prosecutor's forces yesterday that twice before Mrs. Giberson had reported that she had been bound, gagged and robbed, and that there had been one such previous incident. In Trenton ten years ago, Jeffrey said, but he declared the amount of the loss never was represented at $3,000. He asserted Mrs. Giberson lost but $500 and said so, and that under her then existing circumstances it would have been patently absurd for her to have pretended that she had been robbed of a much larger sum.

Dispels Mystery as to Boy's Birth.

The attorney for the defense straightened out another tangle in the affairs of the defendant, as they have been presented by persons unfriendly to her, when he dispelled the mystery about the birth of Joseph Meehan Richmond, Mrs. Giberson's 18-year old son. Jeffrey said that 23 years ago in Oneonta, N. Y., Mrs. Giberson, then Ivy Richardson, was married to William Meehan. She divorced Meehan, he said, about 18 years ago when their son, Joseph Meehan, was four months old. Subsequently her mother, Mrs. Leroy H. Richmond, adopted the boy and he became Joseph Meehan Richmond. The lawyer added that Mrs. Giberson had received a letter from Meehan on Aug. 1 last, dated at 1041 Massachusetts Avenue, North Cambridge, Mass. In that letter Meehan, so said Jeffrey, wished he had conducted himself that he and Mrs. Giberson might still be living happily together.

Joe, by the way, boylike, is having about as much fun as any one could have over this murder business. It was Joe himself who disclosed yesterday that he was going to be closely questioned regarding the "roll" he was supposed to have displayed the day after his stepfather was killed. It was the same Joe who admitted today that he had not been questioned at all, but who called the detectives were following him. Modestly Joe admitted he was keeping them busy. It is Joe who feels that everybody should know there was ill-feeling between him and his stepfather, though he does incidentally recall that they were getting together last Winter. Joe was as clear as a bell about that "roll" today. He went on a vacation with $50, two weeks pay. He stayed with friends, so his big time only cost him $10. He came back to Lakehurst, bought a suit for $25, and converted the rest into notes of such small denomination that the remains of that $50, carelessly displayed in poolrooms, looked like quite a wad. And that fishy story that his sudden wealth was due to successfully ventured opinion as to the outcome of a horse race, said Joe, was none other than a tale he told in self-defense when a sophisticated youth of his acquaintance boasted that he had acquired a small fortune in that manner.

So Joe goes about in his mother's car, discusses the crime, waits rather anxiously for something to happen that shows no sign of happening—and reminds everybody now and then that he was asleep in his grandfather's house all during the hours of the night and early morning of the murder.

Joe played pool today while his stepfather was being buried. He meant no disrespect, but, as he explained, "all this business would drive a fellow crazy if he didn't do something."

Funeral of Murdered Man.

The funeral was held from William Giberson's late home, with only relatives and six railroad men chosen as pallbearers there. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery, at Tom's River, where the Rev. Dr. William Moore of the Lakehurst Presbyterian Church and the Rev. Dr. Simeon H. Magee, pastor of the town's Methodist Episcopal flock, divided the prayers. Most of Lakehurst shut up shop to view the cortege.

Mrs. Giberson, on the advice of her attorney, did not ask to attend. Wilfred H. Jayne Jr., Ocean County prosecutor, having announced that he would oppose any such effort. Mrs. Giberson, through her sister-in-law, sent a pillow of white roses and asters with the legend "At Rest" on it. Jeffrey said that Mrs. Giberson was tearful at the time of the funeral, but soon was calmed.

In contrast to the chipper attitude of the defense, Jayne and his allies were secretive and uncommunicative today. If they have added anything to so much of a circumstantial case as they have been able to build up thus far, they kept quiet about it. Harold LaNoe, construction superintendent from the Bronx, New York, who came here with the prosecutor when affectionate letters from him to Mrs. Giberson were found in the woman's home, has heard from his own wife and wants to join her on her vacation. He has remained here voluntarily, but has been exonerated and probably will leave tomorrow.

LADDIE BOY'S PUP FOUND.

After being A. W. O. L. since Aug. 4, Happy, the 5-months-old son of Laddie Boy, President Harding's Airedale, was returned yesterday to his joint owners, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Colfelt, at 206 Eighth Street, West New York. Just what adventures Happy has experienced since he left the comfort of the Colfelt home may never be known, but Happy did not look hungry on his return, and he showed by wagging his tail that the disposition that earned him his name had not been impaired.

Three small boys found Happy in Fulton Street Union Hill, having a heated argument with a goat. It was a large and a very aggressive goat, and the boys said that Happy was getting the worst of the argument. They knew that the Colfelt Airedals was missing, and so they began to call "Happy, New York." Just Happy, evidently glad to forget his encounter with the goat, came to them. The boys took him home.

DUBLIN, Aug. 17.—The new rebel revolt in County Louth has been quelled. The national troops have retaken Dundalk and the main body of the irregulars have been dispersed. Railway communication has been re-established between Dublin and Belfast and the armored train which the mutineers used in their advance toward Drogheda has been found.

As anticipated, the irregulars devoted themselves wholeheartedly to the task of wrecking communications before the retreat began. Roads and bridges were mined, but the damage did not greatly impede the advance of the Government forces.

There was no serious fighting during the advance on Dundalk, the irregulars making a poor show and retreating everywhere on the approach of the troops. They scattered all over the countryside and most of them have now made their way to Greenore, a small seaport in the north of the county where they have taken up their quarters in the best hotel.

In the south the irregulars are cutting even a more sorry figure. They seem to have no fight left in them and are retreating all along the line without even a show of resistance. Vermoy, Mitchelstown and Mallow have been evacuated and the only territory now left to the rebels consists mainly of shaking bogs and craggy hills.

De Valera has fled to Kilpaddar, where he is said to be lying ill in a farmer's house. People who have

HEAVY DEMAND FOR SILKS

The heat yesterday failed to put a damper on the business transacted by firms exhibiting in the National Merchandise Fair at the Grand Central Palace and the 71st Regiment Armory, according to officials in charge. The crowds were cut down somewhat, but, as the announcement given out by the management at the Palace put it, "Those who came, came to place orders," with the result that the record for sales fully equaled that of any other day with the possible exception of last Wednesday.

Lew Hahn, managing director of the National Retail Dry Goods Association and Managing Director at the Palace, said that so great was the enthusiasm over the results of the fair to date that he had been approached by several men with suggestions for erecting a permanent structure in New York to house future fairs.

"I answered that we do not contemplate anything like that," said Mr. Hahn. "We do not want to keep this fair going all the time. That would destroy its effectiveness. It would become a common thing and would hardly attract a buyer to New York. If we hold other fairs, and there is every indication that we will, we shall hold them just as we have done this one, at the most suitable time, which is the beginning of a season. Then when the show has run several weeks it will be closed again for another year."

More Large Orders Reported.

At the Palace it was said that the greatest demand for the day was noted in muslins and cotton goods. One firm which deals exclusively in silks and linings reported a total of ninety-six orders, most of them for wash satin. Another firm, which does not book orders at its booth, sent sixteen buyers to its New York showroom after the buyers had inspected the goods on the floor.

A booth at the Palace that has no goods on display but which is attracting a great deal of attention from representatives of retail firms, is the space occupied by the Controller's Congress, an organization which undertakes to install a standardized accounting system in department stores, large or small. Theodore L. Blanke, in charge at the booth, is busy every day demonstrating the value of standardized accounting. Mr. Blanke said that Secretary of Commerce Hoover had urged upon the Controller's Congress nearly two years ago the necessity of getting retail stores to adopt a standardized method of accounting.

Among the foreign buyers who visited the Palace yesterday were H. B. Golgell, of Jacobson Van den Berg & Co., Semarang, Java; T. S. Woo, of the Wee Wee Company, Shanghai, China; Alfred Rodon, Madrid, and several others from Canadian cities.

Fair Exceeds Expectations.

At the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, which houses the ready-to-wear section of the Fair, John W. Hahn, Executive Secretary of the National Garment Retailers' Association, said that the results had already justified the most optimistic phophecies given out in a statement given to the press section of the Armory exhibit. Mr. Hahn said:

"The fair, which is concluding its second week, has been more successful than any member of the committee anticipated. It has done exactly what its supporters said it would do. It has brought thousands of buyers into the market here, many of whom have never been here on a buying trip before. The fair has given a stimulus to the market, which reminds one of the prosperous days of the war and the post-war period.

"Some of the oldest garment manufacturers in the industry have told me that never in the history of the business have they seen so many buyers in the local market. These buyers have come not only to look around and be amused, but to buy; and they have bought.

"While it is certain that the exhibitors reaped the most benefits, nevertheless the fair has benefited other manufacturers also, many of whom are as much pleased with the result as the exhibitors themselves. Some manufacturers who have not participated told me that they feel they made a mistake, and assured me that they would certainly be in here next season.

"It is also pleasing to note that all lines have been active. It would be a pretty difficult thing to point to any one branch of the industry and say that business in that line got more direct returns than any others.

"As I journeyed through the different sections of the fair, I found crowds of interested buyers, and I noticed that order books were much in evidence and that the buyers were placing orders in the booths.

"Assistant Secretary of Labor Henning, who spoke at the convention yesterday, told me that he had met retailers from his home town in California. He spoke particularly about the big advantage he found in the joint showing. He said he came to town with the idea of spending about a month, but finished up in a week and a half and has gone back home. This is just one example of service.

Fashion Show Great Success.

"The fashion show probably has brought as much favorable comment as any part of the fair. The committee went to great expense to make this show the most spectacular, as well as worth while as a selling event, of anything ever attempted in this country or abroad. The manufacturers in both the booths and the fashion show should be complimented on their vision, for, after all, they had to accept the Merchandise Fair in the beginning on the faith of the committee to make it a big selling event, which it has been, as the committee promised.

"The second week's exhibitors, I feel, really have gone at the Fair with more enthusiasm than exhibitors of the first week. This was bound to be so because the exhibitors in the second period had the opportunity of observing what had been done the first week, and of cashing in on whatever mistakes had been made. Those exhibitors who have put real merchandise in their booths and conducted real selling campaigns have sold large quantities of merchandise."

CREDIT MEN IN ALLIANCE.

Two Associations to Co-operate to Benefit Clothing Trade.

The battle line against dishonesty in the clothing trade was pushed forward last night in the ratification of a co-operative alliance between the National Association of Clothiers' Credit Bureau and the National Association of Credit Men by executives of the bodies at a meeting in the Hotel Brevoort. The alliance goes into effect at once.

Dishonest debtors, unscrupulous lawyers and irresponsible collection agencies are the chief evils to be combatted in the clothing industries by the new combination, which will furnish clothiers with credit information concerning hundreds of thousands of customers throughout the country.

"This alliance does two things," said T. H. Trego, Executive Secretary of the National Association of Credit Men. "It places in the hands of creditors a broader means of knowing the condition of merchants who seek their confidence and insures that when a debtor is temporarily embarrassed the interests of all concerned will be impartially safeguarded."

FEAR NEW TONG WAR OVER KO LOW CHARGE

The police fear that a tong war may result from the indictment by the Grand Jury yesterday of Tom Yee, James Chuck and one unnamed Chinese for murder in the first degree following their arrest on Aug. 8, charged with shooting Ko Low, National President of the Hip Sing tong, in Pell Street on Aug. 7.

At that time Chinatown insisted that the killing had nothing to do with the tongs. But developments of the past few days have given the affair a different aspect.

Yee, according to Detective McKettrick, comes of a family which in London has been in a state of seething hostility toward Low's tribe for more than fifty years. This feud found its first expression in New York when Sing Bow, Low's cousin, shot Yee. When Yee came out of the hospital a month later, he found the machinery of the Hip Sing had been set in operation to dissuade him from attempting revenge.

While Yee does not belong to the On Leong, rival of the Hip Sing, it is known that most of his relatives do, and Chuck, the other prisoner indicted, is a member.

It is also understood now that the all-night "peace" meeting held last Monday between the two tongs was much more electric than reported. It was only with difficulty, the police say, that hostilities were avoided.

The detectives state that when the three men were arrested a .25-calibre automatic and a .38-calibre revolver were found on Chuck. The bullet which lodged in the foot of May Malsbenden, one of the two women with Ko Low when he was killed, was a lead .38, while the two found in the body of the tong leader were steel capped .32s. A .32-calibre revolver was found across the street from the murder spot.

The police think that Yee and the unnamed prisoner, from whom important testimony is expected, did the actual shooting, while Chuck was the "lookout."

CONTRACT LABOR LAW BARS BUSINESS TRIP

Ruling that the case comes under the contract labor clause of the Immigration laws, Immigration authorities have excluded George T. Reinberg, 24 years old, the son of the agent in Guayaquil, Ecuador, of the Andean Trading Company, of 132 Front Street, it became known yesterday when an appeal was prepared to be filed with the Board of Review at Washington.

Reinberg's father, Martin Reinberg, is 70 years old, and has been the agent of this company, which is one of the largest exporting and importing companies doing business with South American countries, for many years. It was the father's desire that his son learn the business and succeed him as agent in that country upon his proposed retirement in a few months. For that reason it was arranged that the son should come to New York and learn the business from this end.

Under the Immigration laws it is illegal to bring immigrants into the country under labor contracts, and the inspectors at Ellis Island ruled that the son could not enter the country. A special Board of Inquiry confirmed this decision at Ellis Island yesterday. Reinberg arrived last Sunday on the steamer Pastores.

CONFER ON BORDER RAIDS.

Presidents of Three Central American Republics to Meet on Cruiser.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Aug. 17 (Associated Press.)—Using the borders of Nicaragua, Honduras and Salvador as a base, bands of robbers, revolutionists and refugees have been harassing the three republics by robberies, depredations and attacks, keeping them in a constant state of turmoil and unrest.

To do away with this menace and obviate the constant expenditure of public moneys in separate fights against the marauders, a conference has been arranged in which the Presidents of the three republics and the American Ministers accredited to their Governments will take part.

The plan originated with President Chamorro and John E. Ramer, the American Minister to Nicaragua. The latter referred the matter to Washington, and the American Government authorized the use of the United States cruiser Tacoma as a meeting place. The warship will proceed from Corinto tomorrow with President Chamorro, Mr. Ramer and others, to Arapahla, Honduras, where President Gutierrez and American Minister Morales will be taken aboard.

President Melendez and American Minister Schuyler will be picked up at the nearest Salvadorean port and the vessel will sail for neutral waters, where the vexatious frontier question will be discussed and a settlement attempted.

A similar meeting of the Nicaraguan and Honduran Presidents, held in the Gulf of Fonseca two years ago, had beneficial results.

Pacific Line Not to Meet Munson Reduction to South America.

Following the unexpected announcement by the Munson Line, which operates Shipping Board steamships, of an average reduction of $100 in passenger fares from New York to South America, the Pacific Line, from its office, 26 Broadway, yesterday issued a statement that it would not meet the threatened cutting of rates by east coast lines. The company operates steamships to Panama, Peru, Chile and the west coast of Central and South America.

Officials, however, said that, if the Valparaiso line should be threatened by the rate war, then rates would be reduced in order to meet competition.

Hand-Bag With Watch.

One of the novelties in leather handbags for Fall that are being featured has a small watch face on the outside. This idea has been applied to the so-called pencil bags, which have been very popular, the beauty case and the tailored bags. A variety of leathers is featured, including pin seal, morocco, beaver calf, India goat and patent leather. The watch is wound from inside the bag without being taken out, a special attachment permitting this and also holding the watch in place. The bags have sold very well, being made to appeal to the medium-priced trade. They retail from $3.50 to $5.

Gray Goods Market Firmer.

Although the rise in cotton did not stimulate trading to any great extent in the local gray goods market yesterday, prices were firmer in several directions. Buyers seemed more anxious to buy than sellers to sell. In the printcloths spot business was transacted in 39½-inch 68-72s at 9⅛ cents, in 64-60s at 8⅝ cents and in 38½-inch 60-48s, Southern, at 7½ cents. Early in the day business was done in 37-inch 48-square, four-yard sheetings for August-September delivery, at 9½ cents, but later on sellers asked from 9⅝ to 9¾ cents for them. For 36-inch 5.50-yard sheetings buyers paid 7⅝ cents. Trading in the specialties was limited.

Charmeuse More in Demand.

There has been an improvement recently in the demand for charmeuse, and some factors in the trade look for a better Fall season in this fabric than was anticipated. This is said to be due to the fact that the quantity of charmeuse that might be called "distress" merchandise has now been greatly cut down and the mills which stopped its production have not restarted their looms on this material. This, it is said, may lead to somewhat of a shortage later on, if the cutters-up are led to go into the market to a larger extent, owing to better business from their end. Prices of charmeuse are relatively stable at present, ranging from $1.35 up.

Hosiery Colors Finally Settled.

Summaries of the business taken to date for Fall lines of silk hosiery show that the color trend is now pretty well settled. For street wear otter, gray, cannon and chow were said yesterday to be the leaders. Otter is the tan shade which, under the name of bronze, went so well about a decade ago. In the gray range, the light and medium shades appear to be the best thought of. Cannon, of course, is a gun metal hue, while chow is described as a soft brown. Among the shades for evening use that show up well were said to be silver gray and the various reseda green family. This includes cypress, a dark green; cactus, a medium shade, and mistletoe, a light green.

Buying of Women's Gloves.

Buying of women's gloves for Fall is getting off to a slow start. Retailers have had a poor glove business during the last two months, which manufacturers say has apparently made them averse to placing advance orders of any substantial size. Some manufacturers do not look for the period of real buying to set in until after Labor Day. About 50 per cent. of orders placed for German gloves has already been delivered, according to one prominent importer, and considerable delay is being experienced in securing the remainder. This is due to the fact that the latest styles to manufacture were made up first, with the more fancy ones being held up. It is said that prices on the later shipments are considerably higher than for the orders first placed.

A Safety Box for Valuables.

For the purpose of safeguarding jewels, money, papers, or other valuables, a new safety chest is being placed on the market. This comprises a specially built brass box, in which is placed an ingenious electrical device, so arranged that if the box is moved in the slightest degree a loud buzzing sound will be emitted that cannot be stopped by any one except the owner with his special key. The electrical mechanism is very simple and requires practically no attention, the current for its operation being supplied by a small battery secured at any electrical supply store. The box is made of solid brass and is finished in either plain brass, bronze, silver or wood. It is roomy and is adaptable for either home or office. The warning sound will continue for over half an hour.

Ornaments for Dresses.

Manufacturers of dress ornaments are receiving more orders for certain types than they can turn out at present. Ornaments to hold the draping for the dress at the hip are in especial demand, the leading kinds being jet, rhinestone, pearl and colored beading effects. Jet and steel fringing have also been in good demand, the length of these ranging from twelve to thirty-six inches. There has been a fairly good call for beaded belts to go on the more moderate priced dresses, combining black and red shades. Makers of steel buttons have been especially pleased with the orders received for the combination button clasp used at the hip, this comprising one button on each side of the dress, the crystal clasps in a variety of high colors, as well as jet, have also been called for by garment manufacturers.

Jute Crop Reports Confirmed.

Late mails from Calcutta have brought confirmation of the Indian Government's preliminary jute crop forecast, according to a market letter issued by McLeod & Company of this city. In part, the letter continues: "The forecast gives the smallest acreage on record. It also confirms the advices that very little old stocks of jute are held upcountry. Last year's yield, on a four per cent. better acreage, is given as 4,000,000 bales, which is the lowest figure since 1895. The report also states that, while conditions early in the season were unfavorable, since the later part of May the weather has been better, and the crop came along well up until the time the report was published. Even so, it is hard to see how a large yield per acre can be expected, so that the estimate of between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 bales for the present crop seems reasonable."

Bad Check Passers Still at It.

The epidemic of bad check passing at the expense of local retail stores, which was mentioned several weeks ago, is apparently still on. Recently a well-dressed man, after buying two pairs of shoes and giving the clerk a cigar, tendered a check in payment. Although it was against the store rules, the clerk accepted the check, which proved to be bad. Prompt action on the part of the store's credit man resulted in the catching of the man in an apartment at the address he gave at the time the purchase was made and the recovery of the shoes. In another case, blank checks lost by a downtown fur dealer, drawn on an east side bank with his name forged by the finder were used to pay for certain purchases. The man gave one of the leading hotels as his address. In a third instance, a young man opened bank accounts with forged checks and then got merchandise on charge accounts opened on the strength of the pass books. He also passed small checks in certain stores on the strength of the accounts. He was caught finally and was found to have served a term in a New Jersey penitentiary.

Complain of "Pulling In."

So marked has been the extent of the "pulling in" methods used by a certain type of salesmen of late that many buyers were said yesterday to be complaining vigorously about it. One well-known local woman buyer of millinery, who goes home via the Sixth Avenue elevated, is said to walk several blocks out of her way to avoid going through Thirty-eighth Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues. In numerous cases salesmen have cornered buyers at the railroad stations and the hotels, much to their annoyance, and now it is asserted that the Hosier Street methods have been invaded by the Merchandise Mart. The sales manager of a concern with a booth at the Grand Central Palace said yesterday that he had to stop talking business to a prominent buyer on Wednesday in order to "shoo" away from the booth railing two men from competing concerns who were trying to attract her attention. One of the men left without comment at the sales manager's request, but the other one tried to put up an argument. He finally left, however, after shouting to the buyer that his booth was just down the line and asking her to drop in there later on.

Approves Sale of Ship Plant.

Federal Judge Edwin L. Garvin in Brooklyn yesterday approved the sale by the receivers of the Standard Shipbuilding Corporation of its plant on Shooters' Island to the Shooters' Island Company, with the exception of one small parcel of land. The purchase price for the plant named in Judge Garvin's order is $400,000.

BIG TRADE IN NEAR EAST.

Edward Pratt Says U. S. Will Have Big Opportunity When War Ends.

Although convinced that the Near East is the tinder box of Europe, Edward Ewing Pratt, General Manager of the American Chamber of Commerce for the Levant, said yesterday that if peace could be restored there a great avenue of trade would be opened, with Fall opportunities for American capital.

"The situation in the Near East, where I have just made a trip of inspection, is a critical one, and may at any moment involve the gravest consequences," said Mr. Pratt, speaking of a Civitan Club luncheon in the Hotel Astor. "It is literally the tinder box of Europe, and the smallest spark may set a blaze. In fact, it has been stated that the conflict between Greeks and Turks there is a war between France and England by proxy.

Mr. Pratt said that with that war over American merchants and manufacturers will have a great opportunity. "It will have to be carefully developed, but once obtained, it is likely to remain with us despite competition," he said.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Recovery in Stocks—French Exchange Rises, German Falls, Sterling Very Strong.

In the matter of the conference between railway managers and Brotherhood leaders, not the slightest trustworthy intimation as to the drift of negotiation came to hand before the close of business. It was not, indeed, definitely known even what proposals would be made from the labor side. The continued strength of the stock market, therefore, must have indicated financial confidence in an early settlement of the railway strike on the best terms obtainable, rather than knowledge of the outcome at the conference itself. That confidence, however, which at first had its basis in general principles, has in the last few days been supported by evidence of strong public sentiment throughout the country against the continuance of the railway strike and of public disposition not to tolerate the spirit which found momentary expression in the desertion of their trains by Brotherhood crews. The stock market was quick to recognize this attitude of the public, even when the New York community did not seem to realize it at all at the beginning of the week.

Yesterday's advance was irregular but in almost all stocks upward; the railway shares at one time ranging ¾ to 2 points above Wednesday's final prices, though with partial reaction later. At the day's highest prices, many of the more important railway shares sold 2 to 4 points above the lower prices reached in the brief decline of Monday. The bond market was stronger for domestic loans and, as it happened, even the wheat and cotton markets made distinct recovery. There can be no doubt that these as well as the financial markets have been under the influence of the lately disturbing home and foreign complications.

Nothing in the day's financial markets threw any light whatever on the probable outcome of the extraordinary deadlock over German reparations payments. The foreign exchange market was a confusing witness. German marks, whose previous low-record price was Tuesday's 5% one-hundredths of a cent, went to 8½ yesterday. When the German Government a month ago announced its purpose of suspending cash payments on reparations, its note to the Reparation Commission defended its decision by the fact that purchase of foreign gold credits, which had cost 60 paper marks for one dollar in the Spring of 1921, was, at the time of writing, costing 500 marks per dollar. At yesterday's lowest price, the dollar would have exchanged for 1,176 marks.

This change of a month has obviously not come from reparations payments, but from the panicky sale of paper marks by German citizens themselves. While the mark's fall yesterday might perhaps have been ascribed to belief that no compromise in the reparations matter was expected, French and Belgian exchange recovered and sterling went nearly 2 cents above Wednesday's final rate. Its high rate of $4.49¾ was above the best figure of any week this year except that in which, during the early part of June, it went to $4.51¾. There are undoubtedly special reasons for this remarkable strength, which has carried sterling 6 cents above the price which ruled when the recent London conference convened. It is not easy, however, to harmonize such a demonstration with the imagined existence, in financial London, of belief that disastrous political conferences are foreshadowed by the Anglo-French division over the policy toward Germany. But news of the Reparation Commission's decision on the moratorium question was awaited with great interest and quite without information as to the probable action or the practical results of decision either for or against such policy.

TELEPHONE STOCK SOLD.

Many Apply Under Plan for Those Who Did Not Get Allotments.

More than 9,000 subscribers have applied for more than $5,500,000 American Telephone & Telegraph Company stock under the plan recently completed, which offered stock to those applicants for New York Telephone preferred stock who did not get their allotments. The subscriptions varied in amounts from one to twenty shares.

According to the plan, the applicants for the recent offering of $25,000,000 New York Telephone preferred stock who did not secure their full subscriptions, were offered American Telephone & Telegraph at the market price, to be paid for on the same instalment plan.

UNITED RETAIL STOCK TRADE PROGRESSING

All but 165,000 of 793,000 Shares Have Been Exchanged for Tobacco Products.

According to preliminary figures on the new $157,000,000 Tobacco Products-United Retail Stores merger, all but 165,000 shares of the 793,000 outstanding of the United Retail Stores stock have been exchanged for the new Tobacco Products stock. The majority of the holders of United Retail Stores elected to take one-half class "A" and one-half ordinary common Tobacco Products for their holdings of Retail. Some of the larger holders of the latter stock, however, took all Tobacco Products common.

Under the new arrangement, Tobacco Products will receive approximately $2,800,000 a year in dividends from its holdings of 8 per cent. United Cigar Stores Company stock, which come to Tobacco Products in exchange for Retail Stores stock. This dividend is in addition to the earnings of Tobacco Products. The annual requirements for dividends on the new class "A" stock of Tobacco Products are $3,080,000. This leaves a balance of $400,000 a year to be taken out of the earnings of Tobacco Products, which is now paying 6 per cent. on the old common.

The output of Tobacco Products for the first eleven days of August is reported by the company as 75,500,000 cigarettes of the higher-priced brands, compared with 35,700,000 cigarettes in the corresponding period a year ago.

Ask Stock Exchange to Close Sept. 2

Members of the New York Stock Exchange have circulated a petition requesting the Board of Governors to close that Exchange on the Saturday previous to Labor Day. A similar petition was circulated in June requesting the Governors to close the Exchange on the Saturday prior to July 4. That petition was denied, and much dissatisfaction prevailed in brokerage house circles among clerks and other employes. It is believed that the present request will be granted, as the market is not as active as it was in June.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Firmness in Stocks.

After a firmness at the opening and irregularity and dullness at midday, the stock market in the last hour of trading yesterday started suddenly upward and most stocks ended the day at or near the high levels. With a few exceptions, as in the case of the shipping stocks, gains of a point or more were recorded in the more active issues. The advance in United States Steel to 103 a new high record for this movement and only ¾ below the high price of the year, had much to do with stimulating buying in the last hour. Steel common is not the speculative leader that it was in years gone by, but an advance in the stock these days has much to do with sentiment in stock market circles. With the exception of the shipping stocks, especially Mercantile Marine common and preferred, there was virtually not a single group of stocks which did not participate in the advance.

Thirty-three separate stocks established new high records for the year to date in yesterday's market. The list included a number of railroad issues. The stocks which made new records included Public Service of New Jersey, Columbia Gas and Electric, Advance Rumely, Allied Chemical, American Car and Foundry preferred, American Druggist, American Locomotive preferred, American Smelters A, American Sugar, American Water Works, Atchison preferred, J. I. Case Tarashing Machine common and preferred, Chicago & Northwestern, Electric Storage Battery, General American Tank preferred, International Paper, Lehigh Valley, National Enameling and Stamping, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, North American, Northern Pacific, Nova Scotia Steel, Otis Elevator, Pacific Gas and Electric, Pennsylvania, People's Gas of Chicago, Philadelphia Company, Postum Cereal, Shelly Oil, Stromberg Carburetor, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Union Bag and Paper, United Drug, United States Industrial Alcohol and Wright Aeroplane.

One angle of the railway conference yesterday between the union heads and the executives which caused wide speculation in Wall Street was the unusual secrecy over the program which was up for discussion. The financial district had its ear close to the ground all the morning in an effort to get some inkling even of the proposals to be made by the brotherhoods; all subterranean pipelines of information were utilized, but when the executives walked into the conference rooms at 2 o'clock not a word was public knowledge. Considerable significance was also attached to the fact which subsequently developed, that none even of the executive conferees knew what the brotherhood chiefs were going to offer them in the way of discussion.

A Spectacular Exchange Market.

Yesterday's fall in German exchange to 2½ one-hundredths of a cent brought the mark nearly to the level of the Hungarian crown and far below the Serbian dinar or the Jugoslavian crown. Its plunge to a low-record level was again ascribed to heavy selling of paper marks by Germany through neighboring European markets; possibly stimulated by the idea of forcible action on the part of France, possibly by the German Government's public talk of "complete dissolution of the financial, economic and social life of Germany" in case of continued depreciation. The simultaneously rapid advance of the pound sterling yesterday took the exchange market by surprise. The recent advance has been contrary even to London's opinion. It was, however, recalled in Wall Street that the action of sterling has, in each of the two past Summers, been entirely contrary to the expectations both of Lombard Street and Wall Street. The prediction made last Spring by the well-known British merchant, Mr. Selfridge, to the effect that sterling would go to par before the end of 1922 was recalled in connection with yesterday's advance. Wall Street has at no time taken that prediction quite seriously, but it was admitted yesterday that forces wholly de-ond the market's calculation must be at work on the sterling market.

Standard Oils Again Prominent.

Following a period of depression in the Standard Oil and other petroleum stocks, these issues again attracted attention yesterday because of their sharp advances. These stocks were under pressure during the last month or more because of the reductions in crude and refined prices, which started just at the time the Federal Trade Commission started to investigate the industry. This investigation is still going on, but has been attracting little attention in Wall Street. Another factor in the recent decline was the heavy stocks of crude oil on hand and indications of further increases in view of heavy production. This week, however, certain producers have agreed to curtail production pending liquidation of some of the large stock on hand, and with several months of large consumption before the industry enters the Winter months of fuel oil, the prediction has been made that stocks will be materially reduced "before the snow flies."

Ryan Stocks Sold.

It was reported in the financial district yesterday that the final share of stock taken over by the bankers who financed Allan A. Ryan had been disposed of by them, and that there is not a share of the so-called "Ryan stock" held by any of them at this time. The report was not confirmed by the bankers, who preferred not to discuss the matter, but it gained considerable credence in the financial district. The latest and final sale is reported to have been the shares of the Stromberg Carburetor Company, which were bid in at the auction sale of the Ryan assets at 42¾ per share. The stock purchased at that time by the banking interests is said to have been taken over by a group of individuals as a private investment. The action of this stock in the open market bears out the report. With such a block of shares hanging over, as that held by the bankers, the stock remained in the doldrums for many weeks, but suddenly became active in the last few days and advanced yesterday to $34 per share, a net gain for the day of 5½ points.

Favoring the Industrials.

It has been a very evident fact that, despite the great amount of "missionary work" which has been done in behalf of the railway stocks by brokerage houses and banks in the financial district, the industrial shares continue to hold the weight of favor as speculative and semi-investment vehicles. One frequently hears the head of a brokerage house say that his customers have made very little money out of the rise in railroad shares simply because they have not followed advice, preferring to make commitments in the industrial groups. It is in fact the consensus of opinion in the financial district that the railway shares are far behind the industrials so far as advances are concerned, and it is also true that the last half of the year for the railroads, unlike the industrials, is the better half. But the fact remains that of the new business in stock orders which come to Wall Street from day to day, the majority are for industrial shares and that the majority of transactions in shares of the railroads are for large investors, institutions, or others in a position to buy and hold them for what is called the long pull.

BETHLEHEM MERGER DETAILS ANNOUNCED

With Lackawanna Corporation, Will Have $77,000,000 Preferred and $82,608,500 Common.

VOTING POWER IN ALL STOCK

Directors Say That $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 Will Be Spent Later on Buffalo Plant.

Details of the plan under which the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Lackawanna Steel Company will merge were made public yesterday by both companies. President Eugene G. Grace said that there would be a readjustment of the capitalization of Bethlehem, subject to the approval of stockholders on Sept. 18, calling for the retirement of all classes of stock now outstanding and exchanging them for new preferred and new common stock, all of which will have full voting power. As it is now, Mr. Grace said, control of the company's operations rests in the hands of a few large stockholders.

The letter to Bethlehem stockholders, signed by Mr. Grace and Charles M. Schwab, Chairman of Directors, says:

"While no additional financing is required in connection with the Lackawanna purchase, it will eventually be wise to spend from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 in improving and enlarging the Buffalo plant. Your board prefers to raise this money and be in a position to meet other future capital needs through the sale of stock instead of bonds. Your corporation is advised by its bankers that it should be in a position to offer cumulative 7 per cent. preferred stock instead of the present non-cumulative 7 per cent. preferred stock. Your board therefore recommends the authorization of $15,000,000 of new 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock.

"Your board has become convinced that it will be to the advantage of the stockholders and greatly strengthen your corporation in meeting future capital requirements if its financial structure can be simplified by consolidating its entire outstanding stocks into two classes, viz., 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock with full voting powers and common stock with full voting powers. Argument seems to be unnecessary to show the advantages of the substitution of this simple financial structure in place of the present capitalization involving four classes of stock, to which a fifth class would be added by the creation of the proposed new 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock. In order to accomplish this it is proposed to offer to the stockholders the opportunity of exchanging their holdings on the following bases:

1. The existing $30,000,000 8 per cent. cumulative convertible preferred stock to be exchangeable for new 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock for a limited period on the basis of $115 in new stock for each share of the old stock, and thereafter, until the privilege shall be terminated by the Board of Directors, on such basis, not exceeding that specified, as shall be fixed by it.

2. The existing $15,000,000 of 7 per cent. non-cumulative preferred stock (and the additional stock of that class to be issued in connection with the Lackawanna purchase) to be exchangeable for new 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock for a limited period, which may be extended by the board, dollar for dollar.

3. The existing Class B common stock (and the additional stock of that class to be issued in connection with the Lackawanna purchase) to be exchangeable for common stock with full voting powers, dollar for dollar.

"It is proposed that a sufficient increase in the capital stock shall be authorized to accomplish the purposes above stated and provide an additional amount of common stock of approximately $38,000,000, to be available for use, in the discretion of the Board of Directors, in the payment of stock dividends and for any properties that may be acquired.

"Upon the consummation of the Lackawanna purchase, the sale for capital purposes of $15,000,000 of the new 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock and the consolidation of the existing classes of stock as above proposed the outstanding capital stock of your corporation would be as follows:

"Members of your Board of Directors (whose holdings consist principally of preferred and common shares with full voting powers) and other large stockholders have already approved the plan above outlined, which the Board of Directors recommends to the stockholders for their favorable action."

Regarding the purchase of the Lackawanna Steel Company, the letter points out that "the fact that a formal complaint by the Federal Trade Commission is pending would seem to furnish no reason for further delaying the call for the meeting of stockholders to act upon the proposed purchase the legality of which is supported by the opinions of counsel of both companies." The Attorney General of the United States some time ago investigated the consolidation and said "I am unable . . . to find in the exhaustive investigation I have made any reasonable warrant for asserting that the public will suffer if this consolidation is consummated."

Under the contract of purchase the consideration to be paid for all the properties of the Lackawanna Company, in addition to the assumption by Bethlehem of the existing liabilities and obligations of the Lackawanna Company, is $308,-080 in cash and Bethlehem stock for Lackawanna stock par for par. The new Bethlehem stock thus to be issued is divided as follows: $12,500,000 7 per cent. non-cumulative preferred and $22,-608,500 Class B, common stock.

The letter also points out that the acquisition of Lackawanna will add 1,800,-000 tons ingot capacity to Bethlehem's production, and that Lackawanna has a large capacity for the production of merchant steel bars, for the production of which there are no facilities at any of the Bethlehem plants. As the Lackawanna's plant is at Buffalo, Bethlehem can reach, through the Great Lakes, the markets of Canada, the Middle West, and Northern and Western New York.

WIRE GOODS MAKERS MERGE

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 17.—The Wire Goods Company of Worcester, the Cassady-Fairbank Company of Chicago and the Andrews Wire and Iron Company of Rockford, Ill., and of Watford, Canada, are consolidated as a $1,000,000 corporation, with headquarters in Worcester. Eventually the business probably will be conducted under the name of The Washburn Company, the other corporation names disappearing.

The business of the wire goods company was established in Worcester in 1880 and its growth has been large and steady ever since. In addition to the Cassady-Fairbank and the Andrews Company, the company has absorbed several other firms, including the Ayres Manufacturing Company, the E. Jenckes Manufacturing Company of Pawtucket, R. I., manufacturers of wire hardware, and the Woods-Sherwood Company of Lowell, the oldest concern in the country making kitchenwares.

NEW YORK AIR BRAKE READJUSTS CAPITAL

New Stock Is Soon to Be Substituted for the Outstanding Issues.

PLANS TO RAISE $5,000,000

Will Retire Bank Loans and Add $500,000 to the Corporation's Working Funds.

A reorganization of the capital structure of the New York Air Brake Company is under way, in which the present capital stock will be retired and new common stock, without par value, will be issued, as well as a series of Class A preferred. Edward B. Smith & Co. and Dominick & Dominick are the bankers handling the plan and will announce details of the offering to stockholders within the next few days. A brief statement to the effect that it "was understood that the corporation was to do some new financing in the near future," was issued in behalf of the corporation and the bankers last night. No other statement would be made of the details of the financing.

The new common issue will be, without nominal or par value, and will be issued in approximate ratio to the present $10,000,000 outstanding common stock, of $100 per value. Stockholders will be offered the new for the old, share for share, getting in addition the right to subscribe, at a price to be fixed at approximately $50 per share, of new Class A preferred stock. The success of the plan will raise approximately $5,000,000 of new capital. It will give the corporation the opportunity to retire its bank loans, which amount to approximately $4,500,000, the balance to be added to working capital. Formal announcement of the details of the new financing, along approximately these lines, will be made within the next day or so by the bankers.

J. S. Bache & Co. are offering $100,000 New York Connecting Railroad first 4½s, due in 1953, guaranteed principal and interest by the Pennsylvania Railroad by endorsement, to yield 5.05 per cent. The Guaranty Trust Company of New York announces that on and after Aug. 21 the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada 4 per cent. equipment gold notes in definitive form, with coupons due Jan. 15, 1923, and subsequent attached, will be delivered in exchange for trust receipts now outstanding upon presentation of the receipts at its trust department.

R. W. Grant & Co. are offering $160,000 City of Seattle, Wash., municipal light and power plant and system 6 per cent. gold bonds, due 1927 to 1942, to yield 5 per cent. Barr Brothers & Co., are offering a new issue of $44,000 Village of Johnson City, N. M. yesterday. The Central Union Trust Company has been appointed trustee of an issue of $25,000,000 Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes forty-year 8 per cent. secured external gold bonds, dated May 1, 1922 and due May 1, 1962.

TRACTION DEPOSITS GO ON.

No New Date Set in Interborough-Manhattan Plan.

Although the time set for making deposits of Interborough-Manhattan securities under the plan for a readjustment of these companies expired Aug. 15, deposits are still being accepted by all the committees, it was announced yesterday. Approximately 90 per cent. of the Interborough-Metropolitan 4½ per cent. collateral trust bonds have been deposited, and about 85 per cent. of Manhattan stock. According to reports yesterday deposits of Interborough 5 per cent. bonds, amounting to 85 per cent., and secured convertible gold notes, amounting to 70 per cent., are not considered sufficient to warrant declaring the plan operative.

No meeting of the various committees has been called for this week, so that no immediate announcement is expected. A report yesterday, however, held that no definite new date would be set for completing deposits. The difficulty in reaching security holders in vacation season is mentioned as one of the elements delaying the situation.

AMERICA ATTACKS NORWEGIAN CLAIMS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 17.—The case between Norway and the United States regarding the requisitioning of Norwegian ships and shipping contracts during the war, now before the Court of Arbitration, has reached a stage where details of Norway's fifteen claims are being discussed separately. This involves long consideration of the selling and reselling of these contracts with constantly increasing prices per ton.

The agent of the United States has produced an enormous chart showing the history of these claims. The chart almost entirely covers one wall of the courtroom, where, day after day from 10 to 1 o'clock, laborious discussions take place. The afternoons are given over to work on the case, the elaborate Peace Palace library being in great demand by both parties.

As the case proceeds more Norwegians arrive on the scene, so that they now number twenty-five, including lawyers, claimants and shipowners, besides American lawyers engaged on the Norwegian side.

M. Valloton, Swiss President, follows the involved case with remarkable keenness and alertness, always ready with pertinent questions at the right moment and never appearing to miss a single point, even where the intricacies of American or Norwegian law are involved.

The main points made up to the present time by the United States in denial of the Norwegian claims are:

First, that the Shipping Board did not requisition the contracts and therefore is not liable for their value, having only requisitioned materials which were in shipyards at the time and being only willing to pay for the value of the materials as so much wood or iron.

Second, the United States and Norwegian viewpoints differ as to the date when the requisitioning took place. The Americans maintain that the date was Aug. 3, 1917, while Norway maintains that it was Oct. 6. While admitting that all other vessels were requisitioned Aug. 3, Norway asserts that the Norwegian vessels were not requisitioned until Oct. 6, when values were presumably higher.

Third, the United States is endeavoring to show that the claims are speculative and that there may have been manipulation, so that the claims are not made in good faith.

Fourth, the United States agent charges the making of fictitious markets for shipbuilding contracts by manipulation and that these claims all grew out of these dealings.

About 25 per cent. of the claims is interest which has been running five years and the United States denies that it is liable for interest, as Federal statutes prohibit this. Norway maintains, however, that international law governs the case and that such law allows interest.

First, that the United States did requisition shipbuilding contracts and not merely shipbuilding materials and that although the Shipping Board officials were always very careful to state that they didn't requisition contracts, they in fact did everything that was necessary to appropriate contracts, and so are liable to pay for their value on the date of requisitioning, namely Oct. 6, 1917, not Aug. 3.

Second, Norway contends that in case the tribunal should decide that the contracts were requisitioned the effect of requisitioning was to destroy the contracts and that therefore the United States is bound to make compensation for their value.

Norway relies on the American statute authorizing requisitioning, which provided that in case shipping contracts were canceled by the United States compensation must be made for their value.

The United States admits that the effect of requisitioning was to "frustrate" contracts, but denies that it is liable to make compensation the argument being that the frustration of contracts was an indirect consequence of requisitioning.

Norway asserts that the high prices paid for contracts were the natural result of the great demand for and small supply of such contracts at the time.

The picturesque figure of Christopher Hannowig appears prominently in the Norwegian case. He was a poor Norwegian ship broker, with imagination, who foresaw what the war would do to the shipping of the world and went to the United States in 1916, making numerous contracts with Americans for shipping for Norwegians. After much success he began building for himself and finally owned three yards. Then he formed numerous other companies to operate and to deal in ships. As Hannowig amassed money he put it into yards, and if requisitioning had not taken place he would have continued. At the time of the requisitioning he was said to be worth $10,000,000, but overplayed and is now bankrupt.

OIL OUTPUT INCREASES.

Crude oil production in the United States for the week ended Aug. 12, averaged 1,504,150 barrels daily, against 1,499,100 barrels in the previous week and 1,504,070 barrels in the same week last year. A reduction in output is expected shortly as a result of the action taken by representatives of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association and the National Association of Independent Oil Producers in favoring a complete shutdown of oil drilling in Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma. This action was taken to prevent a further reduction in the price of crude oil.

North Texas	50,400	49,650	97,850
N. La. and Ark.	126,250	125,400	162,300
Gulf Coast	11,900	100,850	98,700
Eastern	121,000	120,500	120,000
Wyo. and Mont.	86,100	85,200	41,800
*Total	1,504,150	1,499,100	1,504,070

*Daily average.

According to figures collected by the American Petroleum Institute the imports of petroleum (crude and refined oils) at the principal United States ports for the week ended Aug. 12 totaled 2,958,813 barrels, a daily average of 322,687 barrels, compared with 2,191,000 barrels; a daily average of 313,000 barrels for the week ended Aug. 5.

RUMORS OF 200% GULF OIL DIVIDEND

MERGER REPORTS REVIVED

Combination With Standard of Indiana Foreseen—Profits of $10,587,579 Last Year.

Directors of the Gulf Oil Corporation will declare a 200 per cent. stock dividend in the near future, according to reports in Wall Street yesterday. Announcement is expected to be made at the time action is taken on the next quarterly dividend on the capital stock. It was also stated that the directors contemplate splitting the present stock of $100 a share par value into stock of $25 a share par, so that after the stock dividend is declared the stockholders will have twelve shares of new stock for each share now held.

Whether or not this is a preliminary step to merging with the Standard Oil Company of Indiana could not be learned from the source of information, but rumors that such a combination was proposed were heard frequently in Wall Street in the Spring. Officials of the company, however, flatly deny that a merger with the Indiana or any other company is being considered.

When the rumors of the consolidation were first heard in Wall Street, it was declared that the Gulf Oil officials had consented to come under the Standard of Indiana's fold, but that "they were holding out for their price." At that time Indiana was selling around $100 a share and Gulf Refining around $500 a share.

The Indiana officials are understood to have offered five shares of stock of their company for each share of Gulf, but officials of the latter company held out for exchange on a basis of eight of Indiana for one of Gulf. This inability to agree upon terms is understood to have ended the negotiations. With the Gulf corporation splitting up its capital into similar units it is believed that more will be heard of the negotiations before the close of this year.

The Gulf Oil Corporation is the largest and most powerful independent oil company in the country. It has only $55,148,100 capital stock of $100 a share par value outstanding. Declaration of a stock dividend of 200 per cent. will increase the stated capital to $106,435,300.

The annual report of the company as of Dec. 31, 1921, showed a profit and loss surplus of $111,237,792, but in addition to this there are certain assets which are not carried on the books to cover liabilities. For instance, plant and equipment is carried on the balance sheet at $178,400,891, whereas its book value is calculated at $100,000,000 additional. Net current assets, according to the last balance sheet, totaled $80,178,379 and net current liabilities $49,664,499. Reserves for depreciation and depletion amounted to $70,846,506.

Gross earnings last year aggregated $158,229,401 and net profits available for capital stock $10,587,579, or about $20 a share on the $36,145,100 stock outstanding. In the year 1920 net profits were $79 a share and in 1919 were $32 a share.

NOTE CIRCULATION OF RESERVE DROPS

RATIO DECLINE TWO POINTS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Unchanged total earning assets, an increase of $11,200,000 in total deposits and a reduction of $4,900,000 in Federal Reserve note circulation are shown in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly bank statement, issued as at close of business on Aug. 16, 1922.

Gold reserves decreased by $5,200,000 and total cash reserves by $4,800,000.

The reserve ratio declined from 80.4 to 80.2 per cent.

Federal Reserve Bank holdings of bills secured by United States Government obligations increased by $7,700,000 during the week, while other discounts declined by $7,300,000, and bills purchased in the open market increased by $2,800,000. As against an increase of $3,200,000 in United States bonds and notes, the banks report a reduction of $1,500,000 in Pittman certificates and of $4,800,000 in other Treasury certificates.

The largest decline in Federal Reserve note circulation amounting to $7,600,000, is shown for the New York Reserve Bank, most of the other reserve banks reporting slight additions to their note circulation. The banks' liability on Federal Reserve Bank notes in circulation shows a reduction of $2,400,000 for the week.

Shifts in gold reserves during the week include a loss of $21,200,000 by the New York Bank and gains of $11,100,000 by the Chicago Bank and of $5,000,000 by the Boston Bank.

Holdings of paper secured by Government obligations show an increase from $117,800,000 to $125,400,000. Of the total held, $106,700,000, or 85.0 per cent., were secured by Liberty and other United States bonds; $3,500,000, or 2.8 per cent., by Victory notes; $16,200,000, or 12.9 per cent., by Treasury notes, and $5,000,000, or 4 per cent., by Treasury certificates, compared with $95,900,000, $8,700,000, $13,700,000 and $4,500,000 reported the week before.

GERMAN RICHES ESTIMATED.

Country Has Twice the Wealth of France, a British Writer Asserts.

Germany is one of the richest countries in the world, according to a writer in the The London Daily Mail. National wealth does not consist of money but of tangible property and goods and it is increased by production.

Germany is far wealthier than France. All North Germany is a level plain, very fruitful and easily cultivable, and it is opened up by a unique system of gently flowing, deep rivers which can be connected, while France has little level ground and only turbulent or small rivers.

The principal wealth of nations is created nowadays in factories. Modern industry depends upon coal. Germany has lost a good deal of coal by the peace, but in the Ruhr Valley alone she has about 200,000,000,000 tons of coal—twelve times as much as all France and considerably more than the United Kingdom, the writer states.

For international commerce Germany has the best position in the centre of Europe. Last but not least, she has more than 60,000,000 inhabitants, while France has less than 40,000,000. Owing to her superiority in natural resources of every kind in man power and therefore in production, Germany is undoubtedly twice as rich as France, in the writer's opinion.

Germany's industries are extraordinarily prosperous, but their prosperity is disguised as far as possible, as the following example shows. A leading German chemical company, the Badische Anilin-und Soda-Fabrik, has the following record:

	Paid Up Ordinary Capital.	Gross Profits.	Written Off.	Dividends on Ord. Shares.	Per Cent.
1916..	M. 54,000,000	M. 40,614,837	M. 12,369,268
				Dividends on Preferred Shares.	Per Cent.
1916..	M. 23,548,772	M. 15,120,000			28
1921..	165,261,934	120,000,000			30

The other great chemical works and many other companies show similar results. The chemical industry should have done badly, because almost everywhere German chemical imports are hampered by high tariffs, prohibitions, and Government subsidies. Nevertheless gross profits increased tenfold between 1916 and 1921 and net profits eightfold.

Although gigantic sums were written off in other ways, and hidden in other writer, dividends equivalent to 220 per cent. on the capital of 1916 were paid. To disguise that fact the capital of the company was increased nearly eightfold, and the shareholders, besides receiving 220 per cent. in cash, got huge dividends in shares allotted to them far below the market price.

Similar conditions prevail almost everywhere, he continues. Germany has become the company promoter's paradise. During the first quarter of 1913 new issues came to 123,900,000 marks. During the first quarter of 1922 new issues came to 12,151,700,000 marks, or were 100 times as great.

We are told that Germany is crushed by taxation, that German income tax is the highest in the world, he says.

Unfortunately the high nominal rates do not yield corresponding revenue, because people refuse to pay. Those who defraud the revenue are lightly punished or not punished at all and their names are not published, as in Great Britain.

According to the official forecast, Germany's national revenue for the current year is to come to 103,206,855,677 marks. At the present rate of exchange that sum is equivalent to about £50,000,000. Before the war Germany's revenue came to £200,000,000.

British taxation yields from four to five times as much as before the war, while German taxation yields one-fourth as much as in the pre-war year.

PRICES RISING AGAIN, JULY FIGURES SHOW

One Per Cent. Increase in Retail Quotations, 3 1-3 Per Cent. in Wholesale, Over Month Before.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Wholesale and retail costs of food and other commodities took an upward jump during the month of July, retail prices averaging a 1 per cent. increase, while wholesale prices registered a gain of about 3 1-3 per cent., as compared with June prices, the Department of Labor announced today. Comparison of wholesale prices in June with those of a year ago indicated, the department said, that the general price level had advanced about 10 per cent., with fuel and lighting materials registering an increase of 36½ per cent.

The average retail price level was determined, the department stated, by an analysis of prices charged for forty-three food articles by dealers in fifty-one important cities and, it was explained, the quantity of each article consumed in the average workingman's family also entered into the determination. The largest increases were noted in the sale of granulated sugar, 7 per cent., strictly fresh eggs, 6 per cent.; navy beans, 5 per cent.; potatoes 3 per cent., while a 1 per cent. increase was registered against certain kinds of meats, cheese, baked beans and prunes.

Thirteen food staples decreased in price, onions dropping 13 per cent., cabbage 10, hens 3, lamb and flour 2, while canned goods showed but slight decrease.

In the upward trend of wholesale prices, based on 404 commodities, or series of quotations, for which comparable data for June and July were obtained, increases were reported for 146 commodities and decreases for 100, while in the case of 158 commodities no change in average price was reported. Based upon these figures the department computed a general average increase of 3 1-3. The increase from May to June was 1 1-3 per cent.

Fuel and lighting materials registered a 13 per cent. increase during the past month, farm products 8 per cent., foodstuffs 1¾ per cent., building materials 1¾ per cent., while clothing and metals increased 1 per cent. Decreases were registered in chemicals and drugs but no change was reported for the group of miscellaneous commodities, including cattle feed, leather, paper and pulp.

COCA-COLA GROSS RECEIPTS

Total $6,906,132 for Second Quarter, Against $8,868,605 in 1921.

The Coca-Cola Company for the three months ended June 30, 1922, reports gross receipts of $6,906,132, against $8,868,605 in the same period last year. Net income, after all expenses, including taxes and other charges, amounted to $2,755,925, which, after allowing for dividends on the preferred stock, was equal to $5.16 a share on the 500,000 shares of common stock of no par value outstanding. In the second quarter last year net profits totaled $1,170,315, or the equivalent of $1.99 a share on the same amount of stock.

For the first half of 1922 gross receipts totaled $10,171,220, against $14,903,046 in 1921. Net income for the six months amounted to $3,721,041, or $6.74 a share on the common stock, against $1,864,263, or $2.91 a share, last year. The increased profits despite the smaller gross income is attributed to the lower cost of sugar, an important item in the cost of production.

UPTURN IN COTTON BEST IN TWO WEEKS

Gains of 95 to 101 Points Recorded on Unfavorable Weather News and Liverpool Activity.

The whole character of cotton trading changed yesterday. After backing and filling for two weeks, declining nearly 3 cents following the Government report, unfavorable crop advices finally imparted a definite trend to prices. Liverpool started with an advance of nearly three-quarters of a cent, bringing confidence to speculative interests for the first time in weeks. After a 40-point opening rise prices moved upward, violently at times, until some months showed a gain of a cent a pound. The fact that last year's upward movement started about this date made a decided impression on sentiment. Momentum accumulated with the advance and near the close it became difficult to obtain contracts. Weather is still unsuited for best progress of the crop, while domestic labor conditions seemed to be improving. A final rush carried near months over 21¾ cents, a rise of 95 to 101 points for the day.

That the foreign cotton trade is beginning to regard crop prospects with anxiety was demonstrated by developments abroad. After holding barely steady for several days an active buying movement occurred in Liverpool before the local opening. So much cotton was taken from that market that prices here opened up 40 points, the most extensive opening gain in many weeks. After closing at 20.70, October started at 21.10 under the purchase of several large blocks as well as a quantity of smaller orders. Considering selling pressure a cent lower earlier this week, there were surprisingly few contracts for sale. A careful reading of Wednesday's weekly summary created a general impression that insect and drought damage is now going on along lines that must reduce ultimate yield considerably. Buying, however, remained confined to speculative and professional circles mainly, actual volume of trade being relatively still comparatively light. Industrial conditions have kept trade sentiment conservative, partly due to prevailing high prices when compared with other commodities. But the nature of reliable private reports reveals a deterioration to an extent that turned many professionals to the buying side with decided effect on prices. After halting a few moments immediately after opening, a rush carried both October and December over 21¾ cents.

The fact that Liverpool closed near the top after an advance of 70 American points had a steadily increasing influence on sentiment as the day wore on. An more or less cotton appeared for sale on bulges several reactions occurred during the session but these only served to attract increased demand. Houses with Southern connections reported less inclination to sell and more disposition to take cotton than for several days. Shortly after midday speculative buying took place on the largest scale in several weeks. Large blocks of contracts were taken at advancing prices, demand being scattered throughout the list. Several large orders in March were executed with a steady stream of buying orders in near positions. For the first time since the decline started immediately following the last report, more important market interests appeared as heavy buyers. Commission houses with Wall Street and Western connections bought steadier. A quantity of October and December were for sale on scale orders each 10 points up but failed to supply enough cotton to fill the demand.

There was no change in weather conditions. At three or four points in Texas light showers fell but not enough to afford relief. In Eastern sections rains were general. This has now continued for so long that severe deterioration is being reported from reliable sources. Predictions of clear weather West and rains East served to increase apprehension.

Heaviest buying of the day took place the last half hour. New Orleans became highly excited, throwing orders into the local ring. All months rushed through 21½ cents and though a 10,000 bale block of December was disposed of near the close, prices ran to 21¾ cents before the gong sounded. Better trade buying occurred during final trading of the day.

O'MALLEY TESTIFIES IN MARKET INQUIRY

DID NOT WAIVE IMMUNITY

Dr. Buchler Also a Witness—Superintendent Malley to Be Called Today.

Edwin J. O'Malley, Commissioner of Public Markets, testified yesterday before the Kings County Grand Jury, which is investigating disposition of the fees paid by peddlers to supervisors. Apparently O'Malley did not waive immunity. When the Grand Jury met for its second day's inquiry District Attorney Ruston said that instead of issuing a subpoena requiring Mr. O'Malley to testify in a John Doe inquiry, he had been served with a subpoena requiring his attendance "in the matter of the inquiry into the alleged willful and corrupt misconduct of certain public officers in office in the County of Kings."

Mr. Ruston said that under such a subpoena Mr. O'Malley could refuse to answer specific questions on the ground that to do so might tend to incriminate or degrade him, but that he could not refuse to appear and testify. Mr. Ruston said that a similar procedure would be followed in the case of Aloysius Malloy, Superintendent of Markets.

Mr. O'Malley was the first witness called and was in the Grand Jury room for nearly three hours. "I answered every question put me," he told reporters.

Dr. Samuel Buchler, formerly Deputy Commissioner of Markets, was the principal witness in the afternoon. Dr. Buchler, who resigned after a disagreement with Mr. O'Malley, was said to have explained the manner of appointment of market supervisors, the collection of fees from the peddlers and the relation in general between the supervisors and the peddlers.

Mr. O'Malley will be called again today as a witness. Others who are expected to testify today are John Haller and John F. Reilly, market supervisors, and Superintendent Malloy. It is expected that the inquiry will last five or six days, and that Mrs. Blanche W. Welxmiller, Deputy Commissioner of Markets, will be asked to testify.

CITY DODGES TEST ON AUTO CARD LAW

Arranged Constitutionality Suit on Photograph and Pedigree Ordinance Dropped.

The City of New York through the Corporation Counsel's office yesterday, avoided a test of the constitutionality of the city ordinance requiring motorists to furnish their photographs and pedigrees to the police and to carry cards to be punched by the police for minor violations of traffic laws.

The city dodged the issue by asking Magistrate McGeehan to release Eugene A. Bofinger, who, by an arrangement between the American Automobile Association and the District Attorney, had been arrested for the purpose of testing the law.

The city still intends, according to reports to the American Automobile Association, to compel drivers to carry the photograph card, but it is alleged that an indirect effort is to be made to enforce this policy. The instructions to the police, as reported to representatives of the association, are not to arrest drivers for lack of cards, but to arrest them for other offenses and prosecute them with increased severity when they do not possess cards.

It is not the purpose of the city to coerce automobilists into obeying the ordinance by indirect methods, but to test but the constitutionality of the law on some other case, according to Assistant Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson.

William B. Brice, counsel for the American Automobile Association, expressed disappointment at the withdrawal of the case in the Magistrate's Court, but Magistrate McGeehan said he had no power to compel a prosecution when the city desired dismissal of the charge. Detective Barney Flood of the District Attorney's office, who had made the arrest, informed the Court that he understood that it was the intention of the Corporation Counsel's office to test the law in a Brooklyn case in which a driver had violated a traffic law and had failed to produce his city card.

BOSTON GETS BRITISH COAL

Steamers Bring 40,000 Tons in 24 Hours—150,000 on Way.

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—Forty thousand tons of British coal arrived at this port within the last twenty-four hours on five steamers. Twenty more steamers are now on their way here with about 150,000 tons. The coal arriving today and yesterday was consigned to railroads and public utilities.

Mayor Curley today telegraphed to President Harding that a real service could be rendered New England "through the issuance of an order by the National Fuel Administration that shipments of anthracite coal west of the Mississippi River be suspended until after March 1 next."

BRITAIN CUTS FOOD COST.

Employment Conditions Also Improved in July.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The index figure for the cost of living in the month of July, just announced by the Labor Ministry, is 81 above the pre-war level, a drop of 3 points from that of June. The reduction is ascribed entirely to the heavy drop in the price of potatoes.

Employment, though still bad generally, has shown a further slight improvement. The number of unemployed on July 31 was approximately 1,400,000, as compared with 1,455,000 at the end of June.

Craig Appoints Fox to $2,500 Job.

John H. Fox of St. Albans was yesterday appointed by Controller Craig, deputy receiver of taxes in Queens. The position pays $2,500 a year. He succeeds Anthony Moore, one of the old-time Republican leads of Queens, who was removed by the Controller a month ago when he failed to report the visit to his office of several members of the Queens Grand Jury. Fox opposed Borough President Connolly several years ago, but since the last city campaign he has supported the organization. He was recommended for appointment by Mason O. Smedley, leader of the organization.

WESTERN UNION SHIES AT BARBADOS CABLE

Newcomb Carlton, President of the Western Union Telegraph Company, made public yesterday a telegram that he had sent to President Harding offering to return the State Department's license to operate the Miami-Barbados cable, granted at Mr. Carlton's request a week ago to relieve the congestion caused by the seizure of European cables by Irish insurgents. Mr. Carlton asks the President whether the Western Union representatives in Miami, who have been working to get the cable in order to transmit messages, shall abandon their work and seal the cable. The message follows:

"Thank you for your prompt co-operation in the present cable emergency.

"We are now advised that there is dissatisfaction growing out of the fact that some time ago Brazil accepted every condition imposed by the State Department for the operation of the Miami cable for United States-Brazilian business. As that cable was laid two years ago for this and other South American traffic and never permitted to operate, it is felt that we should not now use Brazil's shores for a cable favoring United States-European business to the exclusion of United States-Brazilian business.

"To attempt to operate the cable under these circumstances would involve us in difficulties with the Brazilian Government. Hence we desire to ask if we shall return the license to the State Department and have the cable sealed in our Miami office and notify the public that we are unable to offer relief through this additional facility, which I hardly need add we would do with great regret."

It was Mr. Carlton's plan to use the Miami-Barbados link to connect with the cable to Pernambuco and thence by the Western Cable Company's lines to Europe. This would have given an additional route to Europe to supplement the six cables now working to Great Britain, France and Northern Europe that remained in service after the seizure of most of the lines by the Irish irregulars.

AZORES CABLE APPROVED.

State Department Refuses to Take Blame for Miami Cable Delay.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The application of the Western Union Telegraph Company for a license to construct a cable to Germany via the Azores has received State Department approval, it was learned today. The American Government, it was stated, has consistently backed the Western Union Company in its efforts to expand, whenever this could be done with justice and fairness.

As specific examples of this backing, the case of the representations made by the United States against the monopoly of the Western Telegraph Company, a British concern, in South America, was cited, and it was also stated that this Government had made representations on behalf of the Western Union when the Portuguese Government opposed granting landing permits in the Azores for the proposed new cable to Germany.

These facts were divulged at the Department today following publication of a statement attributed to Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, in which he was quoted as criticising the State Department's methods of handling cable negotiations.

The policy of the Department opposing cable monopolies wherever they may exist was reiterated in explaining the delay incident to the granting of a permit to open the Miami-Barbados cable. No fault lay with the State Department, it was said, which was ready to grant permission to open the line just as soon as all the South American countries had accepted the renunciations by the companies involved of monopoly privileges.

As for Mr. Carlton's statement that the Western Union had been trying for more than a year "to extend its cable system to northern and southern Europe, South America, Japan and China," it was stated that no concrete proposal had been received by the State Department from the Western Union to construct a cable in the Pacific. At the same time, it was pointed out that the situatiaon in China was complicated by the fact that a British concern and a Danish concern now claim monopoly cable rights in that country.

The company's application for license to construct a European cable had been approved, it was stated, and the license for operating the Miami-Barbados cable to South America would be granted as soon as Argentina has signified her acquiescence in the plan, which is expected within a few days.

ITINERANT LION DIES ON STATION PLATFORM

For the first time in two days conditions assumed something of their normal aspect Wednesday at the receiving platforms of the American Express Company at the foot of Borden Avenue, Long Island City, for the big lion, whose tantrums had been keeping the station hands on tenterhooks, succumbed to the heat and died.

The lion arrived at the express platform on Tuesday from an animal dealer in Coney Island ticketed for Mingo Junction, Ohio, where he was to have been picked up by a circus. The jolting ride from Coney Island to Long Island City did not agree with the lion and he was indignant after he was landed on the platform. Every effort to quiet him was tried and some of the freight-handlers telephoned to the Bronx Zoo for instructions. It was suggested that perhaps he was hungry, but when choice chunks of meat were passed to him the lion did not eat. He roared continuously and thrashed about in his close quarters trying to escape, but the stout cage held him securely. A veterinary was finally called, but the lion died before he arrived.

The Hunters Point police and officials of the Queens Board of Health struggled yesterday with the problem of the disposal of the lion's remains. Several persons had applied for permission to mount the skin, but the owner had not been heard from last night.

Eastern Time Ordered for Detroit.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The City of Detroit was ordered today by the Interstate Commerce Commission to be classified in railroad schedules in the standard Eastern time zone. The commission said that although the State of Michigan generally was in the Central time belt the people of Detroit had shown a permanent preference for keeping the earlier time. The order affects only the schedules on which railroads operate.

SPIRITUALISTS OPEN WARFARE ON FAKERS

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 17.—In a public letter issued after a session of its Legislative Committee in this city the New Jersey State Association of Spiritualists served notice that wholesale prosecution was about to begin upon those who have abased Spiritualism.

The public letter is signed by Dr. Richard R. Schleusner of Paterson and Elwood C. Lear of Atlantic City. After citing the State laws which guarantee to organized Spiritualism the same freedom and privileges that is accorded to any other religion, and the measure of July 4, 1922, which makes the association "the central head and guiding power of all organized Spiritualist churches within the State," the letter says:

"The law also places it beyond the power of unaffiliated organizations and societies to become incorporated or chartered unless first receiving the approval and indorsement of the State Association of Spiritualists. These laws were passed at the request of the Spiritualists themselves in order that they might by strong organization place outside the pale of Spiritualism all charlatans, fakers and pretenders that have been infesting their ranks under the cloak of this religion for mercenary reasons, and thereby bringing ridicule and disrepute upon legitimate organizations.

"Please note that at no time in the history of this State or any other State has this crime, for we can call it by no other name, been so rampant as at the present time.

"Let us awake and at once prove to the world that we are in earnest and fully appreciate the wonderful favors accorded us by the Legislators of the State, which has cost us so much mental effort to gain, and never rest until we can stand forth with pride for our religion."

AT THE
GRAND CENTRAL PALACE
NEW YORK CITY

Sherman & Lebair, Inc.,
116 West 32nd Street,

Gentlemen:

After a period of careful observation, covering half the duration of the First National Merchandise Fair, the management of the Fair now is of the opinion that this event has proved splendidly successful.

We are carefully and constantly gathering information concerning sales made by the various exhibitors, contacts established by them with retail concerns that they had not heretofore done business with, and the general impression made by the Fair on both sides of the market, and as a result we are convinced that the Fair has more than measured up to our expectations.

At this juncture it seems proper for us to say a word or two of thanks to those who have cooperated in the making of the Fair, and I want therefore to express to you our satisfaction over the way in which the Fair has been advertised.

Our advertising which was in the hands of Sherman & Lebair from the inception of our preparations has been very satisfactory and we feel has helped in a large measure to get the message over both to the retail trade throughout the country and to the manufacturers of many cities who are our exhibitors.

We have found Sherman & Lebair always ready with ideas and service even upon short notice and I want to thank you for your cooperation.

Sincerely yours,
NATIONAL MERCHANDISE FAIR
Director

Proud of the Part We Played

THAT the National Retail Dry Goods Association selected this Agency to serve them in the advertising of the Merchandise Fair is a matter of considerable pride to us. An honor which came to us unsolicited and without our previous knowledge. The splendid co-operation rendered us by the officers and management of the Fair has been productive of very satisfactory advertising results.

Our contact and experience with the National Retail Dry Goods Association, and The National Garment Retailers' Association, has proven extremely valuable. It has been of great aid in the service which we render daily to our many clients — national manufacturers and distributors, who are selling their nationally advertised merchandise through the stores of these very merchants.

We are in a position to render a real advertising and business advisory service to a few more manufacturers, with whom we will gladly confer on request.
